UNKNOWN STEAMER NEAR WHEN TITANIC SANK.

Tragic.

SHIP IN SIGHT OF WRECK MIGHT HAVE SAVED ALL.

Officers of Stricken Liner Signaled Big Vessel, Within Five Miles, for Aid.

Titanic Officer Tells Senate Committee that Others Saw Mysterious Craft's Lights and Response to Appeals for Help, but She Passed by—Franklin Unable to Explain Reassuring Messages of Passengers' Safety.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 22.—With rescue only five miles away, the Titanic slid into its watery grave, carrying with it more than half its passengers and crew, while a mysterious steamer that might have saved all, failed or refused to see the signals of those on board.

This tragic feature of the disaster was brought out today before the Senate Investigating Committee when Lightoller, fourth officer of the Titanic, told of his unsuccessful attempts to attract the stranger's attention. This vessel, according to Boxhall, could not have been more than five miles away and was steaming toward the Titanic. So close was it that from the bridge Boxhall plainly saw its masthead lights and side lights. He fired rockets and with the Morse electric signal did the young officer hail the stranger. Capt. Smith and several others in the vicinity of the bridge declared at the time their belief was that the vessel had seen the distress signals and was signaling in reply. Boxhall failed to see the replies, however, and in any case, the steamer did not come obliquely past the Titanic without extending aid.

This was the declaration by P. A. S. Franklin, vice-president of the White Star line, that there were not enough lifeboats aboard the Titanic to care for the ship's company at one time, were features of the hearing.

The official was quizzed throughout the morning session on the messages exchanged between the Carpathia and himself after the ship had started for New York with the Titanic's survivors aboard. Among the survivors was J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the line.

ISMAY WANTED CLOTHES.

Among the wireless telegrams read into the record was one from Mr. Ismay urging that the steamship Cedric be held until the Carpathia arrived with its sorry burden. He declared he believed it most desirable that the survivors of the Titanic's crew be rushed out of the country as quickly as possible. He, also, the message said, would sail on the Cedric, and asked that clothing be ready at the pier for him when the Carpathia docked. The Senate's subpoena blocked the plan.

The committee will resume its hearing tomorrow.

EVERGLADES RECLAMATION.

Opening of the Drainage Canals by Which Millions of Acres Will be Made Available.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TALLAHASSEE (Fla.) April 22.—The official opening of the Everglades drainage canals, being constructed to reclaim the Everglades of Florida, began today. The programme included a trip through the newly-completed Gulf to the Atlantic Canal by a large party of visitors from various parts of the country, led by Gov. Gilchrist.

The Gulf to the Atlantic Canal is the first of a system of five great channels begun two years ago to reclaim 4,000,000 acres of Everglades land.

The contracts provide that the channels shall be completed before July 1, 1913.

Cost of draining the Everglades will not exceed $1 per acre. Title to the land is held by the State.

Engineers Reach the Breaking Point.

Direct Action, However, Is Stayed by Offers of Mediation.

Commerce Judge and Labor Commissioner in Role of Arbitrators.

Fifty Big Eastern Railways Involved in a Wage Dispute.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 22.—The tender of the "friendly offices" of representatives of the Federal government called a temporary halt tonight to a strike of railroad engineers in the territory east of Chicago and north of the Potomac River. It is estimated that 52 per cent. of the railroad traffic of the entire country is handled in this territory.

The mediation of Federal officials came immediately after the refusal of managers of fifty railroads to concede the engineers' demands for an 18 per cent. increase in wages, when Chief Warren S. Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers had announced that in view of this refusal a strike of engineers would go into effect within thirty-six hours.

Knowing the situation had reached a critical stage Martin A. Knopp, presiding justice of the United States Commerce Court, and Charles P. Neill, Commissioner of Labor, hurried here from Washington, and as soon as the break occurred they addressed a letter both to Chief Stone and to J. C. Stuart, chairman of the Conference Committee of Railroad Managers, declaring that a grave situation had arisen, and the sense of duty impelled them to tend their "friendly offices" in the hope that some means might be found to adjust the matters in dispute without the calamity of a general strike.

Although Chief Stone a few minutes before had declared his associates on the Engineers' Committee would proceed tonight to their headquarters to prepare for a strike he was impressed with the letter of Messrs. Knapp and Neill to the extent that he amended the order, and the committee later met and voted to accept the proposal of Messrs. Knapp and Neill for mediation.

He said: "No organization is so strong that it can fail to hearken to an appeal from representatives of the Federal government."

Chairman Stuart of the Railroad Committee received an identical letter from Messrs. Knapp and Neill, but would not comment on what position the railroads would take as to the tender of mediation. He immediately ordered a meeting of the committee tomorrow to consider the proposal. In this manner the crisis rested tonight, still regarded by many observers as critical, but by others as promising some sort of adjustment.

THE RAILROADS AFFECTED.

The railroads affected by the strike include:

Boston and Albany.
Boston and Maine.
Central New England.
Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville.
Chicago, Terre Haute and Southeastern.
Chicago, Indiana and Southern.
Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton.
Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis.
Delaware, Lackawanna and Western.
Erie.
Lake Erie and Western.
Lake Shore and Michigan Southern.
Lehigh Valley.
Maine Central.
Chicago Central.
New York Central and Hudson River.
New York, Chicago and St. Louis.
New York, New Haven and Hartford.
New York, Ontario and Western.
New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk.
New York, Susquehanna and Western.
Pere Marquette.
Toledo, St. Louis and Western.
Vandalia.
Western Maryland, Wheeling and Lake Erie.
Wabash, Pittsburgh Terminal.

The list includes virtually all except three of the railroads in the territory roughly described as east of Chicago and north of the Potomac.

The three exceptions are the Central Railroad of New Jersey, whose contract with the engineers does not expire until June 1, and the Central Vermont and Rutland railroads in Vermont, which have a separate agreement.

MARCH ON MEXICO CITY IS BEGUN BY THE REBELS.

Scouting Parties of the Federal and Insurrecto Forces in View of One Another—Orozco, Ill, Plans to Cut Off Madero's Supplies from United States—An Attack on Juarez Said to Be Contemplated.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

JIMENEZ (Mex.) April 22.—Gen. Salazar reinforced the rebel army below Rellano yesterday, with 400 men under Gen. Luis Fernandes, and preparations are being made to continue the mobilization of the liberal forces in positions facing Huerta's army.

What has appeared to be only a plan of defense now is said to be the preliminary of the long-talked-of march to the south. Delay has been due to lack of organization and ammunition. The first weakness has been remedied to a great extent and the supply of cartridges is growing steadily.

Gen. Salazar has between 3500 and 4000 men south of Rellano; more will be sent tonight.

The advance guards of the two armies are close together. Yesterday scouting parties sighted each other just half way between the lines. Each retired. The main body of the rebels is at Escalon, but attention is being paid to the flanks extending along the branch railroad to Sierra Mojada, southeast, and over the mountain trails to Cerro Gordo, south.

TO CUT OFF SUPPLIES FROM UNITED STATES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHIHUAHUA (Mex.) April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Gen. Orozco, through his chief of staff here this afternoon, ordered a forced march of 1000 troops to attack the Federal position at Ojinaga, the only remaining stronghold of the Madero government in this State.

Ojinaga is a point of extreme strategical importance to the Federals, as it is through that gateway Madero has been shipping arms, cartridges and other munitions of war to Gen. Huerta's troops at Torreon and Bermijillo, the last remaining bases of supply for the government army in the States north of the capital.

Madero has been getting his supplies for Huerta's forces from the United States shipped either from Laredo or El Paso, Tex., and sending these supplies through by way of Ojinaga. Should Orozco defeat the Federals at that point, the Madero forces would have to depend entirely on Mexico City, and in the past Madero appears to have been unable to supply the needs of his northern forces from the capital. Twelve hundred Federals are reported comprising the garrison and trenches at Ojinaga.

Gen. Orozco today ordered 100 rurales from Casas Grandes to reinforce the garrison in Juarez. Advices reaching the rebel headquarters are to the effect that Madero sympathizers are planning an attack on Juarez.

Col. Fernandez, Orozco's chief of staff, directed all these operations. The insurrecto leader, if here, has not been seen for three days. Fernandez declares his chief is "indisposed," but not seriously ill.

FOR AND AGAINST INTERVENTION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The State Department endeavored today to put a stop to what it regards as inflammatory talk of the government's purpose to intervene in Mexico, by declaring that the reports of the United States Consular officers in that country reiterate that whereas there is not one reason for military intervention there are countless strong reasons why there should be no intervention.

Secretary Knox said that while the President had under consideration the question of dispatching a vessel to the west coast of Mexico to look into the safety of the United States residents there, it did not necessarily mean that a warship would make the trip. He said the principal object was to get news about those United States citizens who were in a country where great disorder prevailed with no communication with the outside world.

Braulio Hernandez, a leading Mexican, and formerly Secretary of State of Chihuahua, has voluntarily surrendered to the Department of Justice to answer an indictment at El Paso, Tex., charging him with conspiracy to violate President Taft's proclamation prohibiting the exportations of munitions of war to Mexico.

He is now en route from Washington to El Paso in the custody of a special agent of the department, and will arrive there tonight or tomorrow.

AMERICAN RELIEF DELAYED BY FIRE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Southward bound from Guaymas to Altata the steamship Ramon Corral, engaged by Nelson Rhoades, Jr., owner of the largest sugar refinery at Navoiato, to rescue thirty Americans in that city, was partially destroyed by fire this morning off Topolobampo. All quarters for the passengers were gutted, but the passengers escaped injury and disembarked at Topolobampo. The freight compartments of the steamship were not badly damaged, it is said.

After putting into port Nelson Rhoades and other Americans composing the rescue party got transportation over the line of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient to San Blas on the Southern Pacific of Mexico and, disregarding burned bridges and other obstructions to railroad traffic in Sinaloa, they got a hand car and are now hastening south toward Culican. Over the Occidental line they will proceed to Navolato, where they will get the Americans and any other foreigners who want to accompany them and proceed to Altata.

Before leaving Topolobampo Rhoades sent word to Mazatlan reporting the damage to the steamer Ramon Corral and making arrangements for a steamship to put out from that port for Altata to pick up the Americans and others who will be awaiting her arrival.

The Ramon Corral plies regularly between Guaymas and Mazatlan. The origin of the fire is not reported in the messages received here by railroad officials.

TRAILS MUNITIONS TO SAN DIEGO, CAL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Returning to Tucson after trailing a shipment of 500 rifles and 500,000 rounds of ammunition to San Diego, Mexican Consul H. V. Anaya says he believes the munitions were to have played an important part in the I.W.W. movement in Lower California. Thus far the seizure of the arms and ammunition has been impossible, he says, because no effort has been made to take it across the border into Mexico, although he is of the opinion such a move was originally intended before he started on the trail which led to Yuma, thence to Los Angeles and ending in San Diego.

"I stayed with the shipment as long as I could, waiting for something to materialize, but San Diego is keeping a careful eye on the I. W.W.," he said.

REBEL COMMANDER IS PUT TO DEATH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Tried before a court-martial of his own companions P. Quinteros, the rebel commander who captured Culiacan, capital of the State of Sinaloa, was condemned to death and executed early this morning, according to a report flashed here tonight.

Quinteros was second in command in the State to Justo Tirado, the rebel leader who captured Mazatlan, and who was assassinated a short time later by conspirators who proposed that he again desert Madero, whose cause he espoused after overthrowing the administration of Gov. Rentira.

Following the capture of Culiacan and its looting by rebels the people of Culiacan held a big public dance in which residents of all classes took part.

OFFER SERVICES TO FIGHT MEXICO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—The Nationals, a volunteer military organization dating back to vigilante days, offered its services to President Taft today for duty in Mexico, in case of intervention. The telegram follows:

"The Nationals, the oldest military organization of the Pacific Coast, the only company remaining of those serving in the days of the vigilantes in this city and the only western organization having seen service in the Civil and Spanish wars and the disasters in this city in 1906, which has a shooting record of 90 per cent., hereby offers its services to you as Chief Executive of our nation for duty in Mexico in case of intervention. Enough members on roll to fill four war strength companies of infantry, making a battalion.

[Signed] "HOMES H. MITCHELL, "Captain commanding Nationals."

Exodus from Mexico.

Preparedness.

CONGRESS ENACTS LAW TO INCREASE MEXICAN ARMY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In the absence of the bitter opponents of the administration's army bill, the Mexican Congress at midnight passed the bill which increases the Federal army to 60,000 men.

This measure has been fought by the opponents of the administration ever since it was introduced, but since the warning note from the United States government of a week ago the opponents of the bill have ceased to fight the measure.

The fact that these opponents were absent when the bill was brought up tonight, although all knew it was to be finally disposed of, is considered significant.

Americans here see in the act a deeper reply to Assistant Secretary Wilson's note than the communication sent by President Madero to Washington. To them it shows that while the Mexicans are fighting among themselves they will unite if the "Gringo Boors" attempt to cross the Rio Grande to teach them to behave.

News of the passing of the army bill, which now only awaits Madero's signature to become law, reached the American defense corps a few minutes after Congress had acted and created much uneasiness.

Those prominent in these corps who could be roused tonight refused to discuss the action, but all see in it a slap at Wilson.

pay was made upon all the railroads concerned January 22, and a committee of general managers was appointed to confer in New York with Chief Stone and a board of fifty officers of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

At the first conference in March the Railroad Committee announced the demands, if granted, would add to their pay roll of $7,552,000 a year or an increase of 17.62 per cent. Ten days later the railroads formally rejected the demands, declaring the increase would place a lien of $186,844,000 on the properties which would have preference over the first mortgage bonds and lessen the ability of the roads to make additional improvements and install additional safeguards.

It also was stated that the railroads were not making sufficient net earnings to warrant the increase; and that the increase, if granted, would be followed by demands of other employees which would result in actual bankruptcy to some roads.

On March 26 Mr. Stone and his lieutenants voted to order a strike ballot, the question being whether the engineers would authorize a strike if further negotiations with the railroads should fail. The result of the vote as announced on April 12 was declared to be overwhelmingly in favor of a strike, or by a percentage of 93.3 of the 25,700 votes cast.

The engineers presented their demands again, notifying the managers that if their reply was unsatisfactory a strike order might issue at any time, but the engineers agreed to wait until the night of April 18 for further word from the railroads.

When that time came, Mr. Stuart requested an armistice of forty-eight hours so that members of the committee could be rounded up, and this was granted.

It expired last night, but Mr. Stone agreed to continue it until this afternoon and announced he would await word from the committee before dispatching the assistant chairmen of the brotherhood to their various headquarters for the purpose of calling a strike.

FROM THE RAILROADS.

The committee of railroad employers this afternoon sent this letter to Mr. Stone:

"In reply to your favor of the 19th inst., the managers in conference today and with the approval of the presidents, beg to state:

"They have carefully reconsidered the whole subject at issue and regret they see no way of modifying the conclusions previously announced.

[Signed] "J. C. STUART, "Chairman."

Nearly an hour before the formal receipt of this letter, Mr. Stone, apparently with knowledge that the railroads were in the act of making another refusal, decided that a strike would be called in thirty-six hours. He said:

"The Engineers' Committee has decided that its fifty-two men would start for their respective points tonight and that a strike would be called in thirty-six hours. This will allow twenty-four hours for the men to get back to their respective points; ten hours in which to put the strike orders into effect, and two hours in which to notify the different railroads of the intention to strike."

Mr. Stone had barely made this announcement when he received the letter offering mediation. Mr. Stone dictated the following reply:

"Dear Sir: This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of even date, advising final decision of conference committee of managers, with the approval of the presidents wherein you state, 'You see no way of modifying four former conclusions, previously announced.'

"We consider that your letter terminates all negotiations and as previously advised the chairman will leave the city at the earliest possible moment to look after our interests; and you will be notified as per my formal letter as to the time the engineers will be withdrawn from the service.

It was declared by leaders that 34,000 men would be affected by a strike order. Of these 25,700 are members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and about 6500 are in the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, who, the engineers declare, will join the strike. The rest are non-union men, who Chief Stone said, have joined in the strike vote passed by the brotherhood.

FEDERATION SELECTS NAME.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) April 22.—The Federation of Western Railroad Shop Workers began as an actual organization today when conferees representing workmen employed on forty-seven lines west of the Mississippi, after deliberations lasting more than a week, agreed upon the name, "Federation of Federations" for the new body.

The 250 delegates adopted a constitution and entered upon work of adopting the by-laws, which it is believed will be completed tomorrow.

The Federation of Federations has 300,000 members. It includes the unions of five crafts—the Brotherhood of Railroad Carmen, Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Helpers, Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers, International Association of Machinists and the International Association of Sheet Metal Workers.

DEATH TOLL SEVENTY-TWO; SCORES INJURED IN STORM.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 22.—Latest figures regarding the tornado which swept over Illinois and Indiana last evening give seventy-two dead, nearly 200 injured, and nearly 100 families destitute as a result of the storm. More than 100 homes were demolished and the property loss totalled several hundred thousand dollars.

Greatest damage was done at Bush, Willisville, Murphysboro, Campus, Freeman and Kankakee, Ill., and Morocco, Ind.

Gov. Deneen and Adjt.-Gen. Dickson today arranged to extend State relief to the stricken district in Illinois.

Bush, Ill., eighteen dead, 100 injured.

District east of Bush, Ill., eight dead, thirty injured.

Marion, Ill., seventeen dead (unconfirmed.)

Willisville, Ill., three dead, twenty injured.

Kankakee, Ill., seven dead, twenty-one injured.

Morocco, Ind., nine dead, one injured.

Freeman, Ill., three dead.

District near Morocco, Ind., two dead.

TWO STORMS MEET. TOWN IN RUINS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, April 22.—Late reports from the storm-swept territory of Southwestern Illinois tonight tell of more than fifty dead, 200 injured and property damage estimated at $500,000 to $2,000,000.

Bush, a village of 600 persons in Williamson county, suffered most. The two storms which wrought havoc in Central and Southern Illinois Sunday met at Bush at 6 p.m., one coming from the west and the other from the southeast.

Fifteen persons were killed, three died of injuries, and a hundred or more are suffering from injuries as the result of the storm.

The storms met at a velocity of seventy-five miles an hour and in a few minutes Bush was in ruins. The property of the Western Coal and Mining Company was destroyed, as were the postoffice, general store, hotels, restaurants and forty dwellings. Thirty-five other homes were wrecked partially.

In addition to the dead and injured accounted for, fifteen persons are missing.

Thirteen persons, a family of eight and five boarders, sought refuge in a cistern. The house was blown over, covering the opening of the cistern, and they were not rescued until late tonight.

Traffic on the Herrin, St. Louis and Benton divisions of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern railway will be tied up three days because of the wrecking of the sixty cars on the main line near Bush.

The fifteen persons killed at Bush include J. W. Campbell, his wife and six children.

Campbell was section foreman at Bush. With his wife and six children he was sitting in the section-house when the storm demolished it, killing the occupants instantly. One son, 14 years old, was in Benton when the storm broke and escaped.

The storm at Bush was accompanied by the usual freak incidents. A cow was picked up in the main street, carried 100 yards by the wind and landed safely on the railroad tracks.

A trainload of injured were taken from Bush to Murphysboro, where three died. They have not been identified.

In Murphysboro, Ill., George Meade, who lived two miles north, died of injuries. One woman and two children of the forty-one persons brought here last night from Bush died today in a hospital.

Two men were reported dead in Freeman, Ill. The second relief train, which was started from Bush for Murphysboro, was sent to another town because of the crowded condition of the Murphysboro hospital.

A child of Thomas Taylor was killed and many persons were injured when the storm swept a path in Hamilton county, Illinois. Fourteen houses were demolished.

In Bush, five persons were killed in the home of Section Foreman Campbell of the Iron Mountain road. Seventy-five houses, the hotel, postoffice, mining company's offices and store and the roundhouse were destroyed. Seventy-five families are destitute and the State has been asked for assistance.

Ten of the Iron Mountain's employees of Bush are en route here for treatment. It is thought they cannot live. W. E. Murrifield of Chester, Ill., division superintendent of the Iron Mountain, departed today for Bush.

Reports also tell of eight persons being killed near West Frankfort in the storm's path in Franklin county.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DANVILLE (Ill.) April 22.—The terrific force of the storm which leveled thirty houses and injured forty-one persons in Grant Park, Ill., last night, was shown when it became known today that twelve box cars loaded with brick had been blown from the track and overturned.

At Sheldon, Ill., it is reported that a man and a baby were killed.

STORM IN GRAVEYARD. MONUMENTS DESTROYED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BLOOMINGTON (Ill.) April 22.—A tornado Sunday afternoon destroyed a house and six barns in Piper City and approaching Chattsworth, struck the cemetery, wrecking many monuments.

REFUGE DESTROYED. ONE WOMAN KILLED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KANKAKEE (Ill.) April 22.—Mrs. David Jay, who with several friends was returning from Kankakee Sunday night to her home eight miles west of here, was killed by the tornado and others in the party were seriously injured. They had taken refuge in a deserted house.

The wind tore off the roof and threw down some of the walls. Mrs. Jay was instantly killed by a heavy timber.

SOUTHERN TORNADO. FIFTEEN DEATHS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BIRMINGHAM (Ala.) April 22.—A tornado passed over Adamsville, Hinckney City, Jugtown, Brookside and several mining towns today. Incomplete returns say twelve to fifteen persons were killed and several were hurt. Twenty houses were destroyed in Brookside.

THE LOUISIANA FLOOD. HUNDREDS MAROONED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW ORLEANS, April 22.—Hundreds of persons are still marooned on floating housetops and rafts in the flooded sections of Northwestern Mississippi, according to official reports received here today. Rescue parties have employed motor boats and launches to scour the inundated country for refugees. There has been intense suffering among prisoners. Nearly 100,000 persons from the flooded sections of Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi are gathered in State and government camps. A report had reached here today that 500 negroes, marooned in box cars near Stoneville, Miss., are menaced by starvation.

FIRST AID FOR RESCUED. THOUSANDS SUFFERING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The government contemplates feeding 83,000 Mississippi River flood sufferers for forty-two days at a daily cost of $10,000. Secretary of War Stimson made this estimate today when he asked an additional appropriation of $207,121 for the commissary department. Previously Congress voted $212,819 for the same purpose.

Six Dead in Georgia.

NEWBORN (Ga.) April 22.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Six persons were killed and a score injured by a tornado which swept this section of the State early today. Demolished houses and dead live stock were left in the wake of the storm, which took a track three-quarters of a mile wide through Jasper, Newton and Morgan counties.

Six Killed by Tornado.

NEEBERN (Ga.) April 22.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] A tornado which passed over this section of the State today caused the death of six persons and injured a score of others.

Uprising.

MOROCCANS REVOLT AND MASSACRE FRENCH TROOPS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FEZ (Morocco) Thursday, April 18.—[Delayed in transmission.] The revolt of the populace and the Moorish soldiery began at midday yesterday, after a delegation of native troops had obtained admission to the palace and complained to the Sultan of the new military regulations in connection with the French protectorate.

As the military delegation left the palace, the soldiers composing it seized and killed a French captain. This was the signal for general pillage and massacre.

The native soldiers, urged on by shrieking Moorish women, rushed through the streets, slaying the French and inciting the population to violence by the false cry, "The Sultan is a prisoner of the French and must be liberated!"

The French telegraphers were attacked and made a heroic stand, defending their offices for four hours, in the meantime sending messages to headquarters in Tangier. Finally the office was captured, the telegraphers killed and their bodies mutilated and burned.

The heads of the Europeans slain were paraded through the streets on pikes.

The French legation sent out relief troops and brought in many foreigners and afterwards the French artillery opened fire on the rebels grouped in the northern quarter.

MANY ATROCITIES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, April 22.—The revolution in Fez, the Morocean capital, in which the populace and many mutinous Moorish soldiers participated, developed into a massacre accompanied by many atrocities, according to a wireless dispatch received today at the Foreign Office. It is now said that five French officers and forty soldiers were killed, while thirteen civilians, all of them French citizens, were massacred in their homes or in the streets.

Besides these, four French officers and seventy soldiers were wounded, and 100 Jews were slain and many wounded and mutilated.

The French government explains that the absence of detailed news from Fez is due to the fact that four or five telegraphers stationed there, as well as those attached to the wireless stations, were assassinated.

COAL STRIKE CONFERENCE.

NEW YORK, April 22.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] The subcommittee representing the anthracite miners and operators conferred here today for what is expected to be the final session, as a settlement of the demands of the miners, it is understood, has already been virtually reached. The basis is said to be a 5 per cent. increase in wages, and an indirect recognition of the union. There will be no acceptance of the check-off system.

MYSTERIOUS FIRE.

Fire of mysterious origin destroyed a one-story frame cottage, owned by J. E. Kelly, and occupied by Fred Dixon, at No. 2700 San Franco street, late yesterday afternoon, and the police were called upon to make an investigation of the case, without, however, unearthing evidence to substantiate the theory that the blaze might have been due to incendiarism. The loss on the structure was estimated at about $1150, and on the additional on the contents to the amount of insurance carried on the ascertained last night, and no effort will be made today with a view to establishing the exact cause.

New Voter.

Woman Registers, Hundr Four Years Old.

Is Strongly in Favor of Ta and Will Aid Him.

Venerable Patriot Active Interested in Politics.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The oldest woman voter in California has just registered in Lakeport, as Mrs. Hey Law son Hill, aged 104 years, and when asked concerning her party affiliation replied according to the recollection of her youth:

"I am a Whig."

She stated further that she believes in principles of Taft and has written to the Susan B. Anthony Club of this city for Taft literature which she intends distributing among her townspeople.

This venerable woman, who is actively interested in the world history in spite of the stress of life she must have been through during her 104 years, came to California from Kentucky in 1854, with her husband.

Of the twelve children born to her only two are living, a son, aged 74, living in Oregon and a daughter, Mrs. Mary J. Arnold, with whom she makes her home.

Mrs. Hill is the oldest living "real" daughter of the American Revolution, and is an honorary member of the National Society of that organization.

She has always been intensely patriotic and has expressed her earnest desire to vote, and the prayers of her daughter, son and friends are that her wish may be realized.

CURDLED MILK FOR BABES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Further investigation of the private baby home conducted by Mrs. I. E. Miller, in a fashionable residence district of Portland, has revealed shocking conditions. Four youngsters, each less than a year old, were found in a state of extreme neglect. In several instances curdled milk was found in their bottles and the nurses at the County Hospital, to which they were removed, declare that the lack of care was manifested by sores in the mouth and on other parts of the bodies of the infants. One is not expected to live.

The house, when inspected by Health Officer White, was found to be in the last degree of filth and disorder. Mrs. Miller is upward of 60 years of age and says she has at times had seven and eight infants under her charge.

The place has been under surveillance some time and further developments are expected.

MR. TAFT INDORSED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] At a meeting of the Taft Club of Pima county, resolutions were adopted unanimously indorsing the renomination of President Taft and pledging the best efforts of the club to the election of delegates to the Chicago convention instructed to oppose the insertion in the national platform of the recall of the judiciary, the recall of judicial decisions, or the recall of the unwritten law limiting a Chief Executive to the two terms in the White House.

The resolutions include Col. Roosevelt's words praising President Taft as follows: "The honest wage-worker, the honest laboring man, feel that in a peculiar sense Mr. Taft will be their representative because of the very fact that he has the same scorn for the demagogue that he has for the corrupt man of great wealth; the same fourteen for the threats of personal violence from a mob with the unqualified and lofty indifference that he would front the anger of the wealthiest and most powerful corporations. Beyond his sympathies are, there is in fact not the slightest tinge of weakness. No consideration of personal interest any more than of fear for his own personal safety could make him swerve a hair's breadth from the course which he regards as right and as in the interest of the whole people."

ON PRISON REFORM.

ADDRESS BY A WOMAN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX, (Ariz.) April 22.—The Arizona legislature extended a formal invitation today to Miss Kate Barnard, state commissioner of charities and institutions of Oklahoma, to address it on the subject of prison reform. Miss Barnard reached Phoenix today after having attended yesterday as a guest of honor, Hunt, the first musicale ever given at the state penitentiary by convict talent.

UNIVERSAL CALENDAR.

A CONVICT'S INVENTION

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—Under sentence to Folsom penitentiary for seven years, James P. West has spent the last four years in perfecting what he calls a "universal adjustable calendar," by which it is possible on the space of pasteboard to tell the day of the week for any given date backward or forwards over a period of 1000 years. William T. Day, prison inspector, brought the calendar to San Francisco today that it might be examined in West's name.

MARCH ON MEXICO CITY IS BEGUN BY THE REBELS.

Scouting Parties of the Federal and Insurrecto Forces in View of One Another—Orozco, Ill, Plans to Cut Off Madero's Supplies from United States—An Attack on Juarez Said to Be Contemplated.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

JIMENEZ (Mex.) April 22.—Gen. Salazar reinforced the rebel army below Rellano yesterday with 400 men under Gen. Luis Fernandez, and preparations are being made to continue the mobilization of the liberal forces in positions facing Huerta's army.

What has appeared to be only a plan of defense now is said to be the preliminary of the long-talked-of march to the south. Delay has been due to lack of organization and ammunition. The first weakness has been remedied to a great extent and the supply of cartridges is growing steadily.

Gen. Salazar has between 3500 and 4000 men south of Rellano; more will be sent tonight.

The advance guards of the two armies are close together. Yesterday scouting parties sighted each other just half way between the lines. Each retired. The main body of the rebels is at Escalon, but attention is being paid to the flanks extending along the branch railroad to Sierra Mojada, southeast, and over the mountain trails to Cerro Gordo, south.

TO CUT OFF SUPPLIES FROM UNITED STATES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHIHUAHUA (Mex.) April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Gen. Orozco, through his chief of staff here this afternoon, ordered a forced march of 1000 troops to attack the Federal position at Ojinaga, the only remaining stronghold of the Madero government in this State.

Ojinaga is a point of extreme strategical importance to the Federals, as it is through that gateway Madero has been shipping arms, cartridges and other munitions of war to Gen. Huerta's troops at Torreon and Bermillio, the last remaining bases of supply for the government army in the States north of the capital.

Madero has been getting his supplies for Huerta's forces from the United States shipped either from Laredo or El Paso, Tex., and sending these supplies through by way of Ojinaga. Should Orozco defeat the Federals at that point, the Madero forces would have to depend entirely on Mexico City, and in the past Madero appears to have been unable to supply the needs of his northern forces from the capital. Twelve hundred Federals are reported comprising the garrison and trenches at Ojinaga.

Gen. Orozco today ordered 100 rebels from Casas Grandes to reinforce the garrison in Juarez. Advices reaching the rebel headquarters are to the effect that Madero sympathizers are planning an attack on Juarez.

FOR AND AGAINST INTERVENTION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The State Department endeavored today to put a stop to what it regards as inflammatory talk of the government's purpose to intervene in Mexico, by declaring that the reports of the United States Consular officers in that country reiterate that whereas there is not one reason for military intervention there are countless strong reasons why there should be no intervention.

Secretary Knox said that while the President had under consideration the question of dispatching a vessel to the west coast of Mexico to look into the safety of the United States residents there, it did not necessarily mean that a warship would make the trip. He said the principal object was to get news about those United States citizens who were in a country where great disorder prevailed with no communication with the outside world.

Braulio Hernandez, a leading Mexican, and formerly Secretary of State of Chihuahua, has voluntarily surrendered to the Department of Justice to answer an indictment at El Paso, Tex., charging him with conspiracy to violate President Taft's proclamation prohibiting the exportations of munitions of war to Mexico.

He is now en route from Washington to El Paso in the custody of a special agent of the department, and will arrive there tonight or tomorrow.

AMERICAN RELIEF DELAYED BY FIRE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Southward bound from Guaymas to Altata the steamship Ramon Corral, engaged by Nelson Rhoades, Jr., owner of the largest sugar refinery at Navolato, to rescue thirty Americans in that city, was partially destroyed by fire this morning off Topolobampo. All quarters for the passengers were gutted, but the passengers escaped injury and disembarked at Topolobampo. The freight compartments of the steamship were not badly damaged, it is said.

After putting into port Nelson Rhoades and other Americans composing the rescue party got transportation over the line of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient to San Blas on the Southern Pacific of Mexico and, disregarding burned bridges and other obstructions to railroad traffic in Sinaloa, they got a hand car and are now hastening south toward Culican. Over the Occidental line they will proceed to Navolato, where they will get the Americans and any other foreigners who want to accompany them and proceed to Altata.

Before leaving Topolobampo Rhoades sent word to Mazatlan reporting the damage to the steamer Ramon Corral and making arrangements for a steamship to put out from that port for Altata to pick up the Americans and others who will be awaiting her arrival.

The Ramon Corral plies regularly between Guaymas and Mazatlan. The origin of the fire is not reported in the messages received here by railroad officials.

TRAILS MUNITIONS TO SAN DIEGO, CAL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Returning to Tucson after trailing a shipment of 500 rifles and 500,000 rounds of ammunition to San Diego, Mexican Consul H. V. Anaya says he believes the munitions were to have played an important part in the I.W.W. movement in Lower California. Thus far the seizure of the arms and ammunition has been impossible, he says, because no effort has been made to take it across the border into Mexico, although he is of the opinion such a move was originally intended before he started on the trail which led to Yuma, thence to Los Angeles and ending in San Diego.

"I stayed with the shipment as long as I could, waiting for something to materialize, but San Diego is keeping a careful eye on the I. W.W.," he said.

REBEL COMMANDER IS PUT TO DEATH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Tried before a court-martial of his own companions P. Quinteros, the rebel commander who captured Culiacan, capital of the State of Sinaloa, was condemned to death and executed early this morning, according to a report flashed here tonight.

Quinteros was second in command in the State to Justo Tirado, the rebel leader who captured Mazatlan, and who was assassinated a short time later by conspirators who proposed that he again desert Madero, whose cause he espoused after overthrowing the administration of Gov. Rentiria.

Following the capture of Culiacan and its looting by rebels the people of Culiacan held a big public dance in which residents of all classes took part.

OFFER SERVICES TO FIGHT MEXICO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—The Nationals, a volunteer military organization dating back to vigilante days, offered its services to President Taft today for duty in Mexico, in case of intervention. The telegram follows:

"The Nationals, the oldest military organization of the Pacific Coast, the only company remaining of those serving in the days of the vigilantes in this city and the only western organization having seen service in the Civil and Spanish wars and the disasters in this city in 1906, which has a shooting record of 90 per cent., hereby offers its services to you as Chief Executive of our nation for duty in Mexico in case of intervention. Enough members on roll to fill four war strength companies of infantry, making a battalion.

[Signed] "HOMES H. MITCHELL, "Captain commanding Nationals."

Exodus from Mexico.

CONGRESS ENACTS LAW TO INCREASE MEXICAN ARMY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In the absence of the bitter opponents of the administration's army bill, the Mexican Congress at midnight passed the bill which increases the Federal army to 60,000 men.

This measure has been fought by the opponents of the administration ever since it was introduced, but since the warning note from the United States government of a week ago the opponents of the bill have ceased to fight the measure.

The fact that these opponents were absent when the bill was brought up tonight, although all knew it was to be finally disposed of, is considered significant.

Americans here see in the act a deeper reply to Assistant Secretary Wilson's note than the communication sent by President Madero to Washington. To them it shows that while the Mexicans are fighting among themselves they will unite if the "Gringo Boors" attempt to cross the Rio Grande to teach them to behave.

News of the passing of the army bill, which now only awaits Madero's signature to become law, reached the American defense corps a few minutes after Congress had acted and created much uneasiness.

pay was made upon all the railroads concerned January 22, and a committee of general managers was appointed to confer in New York with Chief Stone and a board of fifty officers of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

At the first conference in March the Railroad Committee announced the demands, if granted, would add to their pay roll of $7,553,000 a year or an increase of 17.62 per cent. Ten days later the railroads formally rejected the demands, declaring the increase would place a lien of $138,844,000 on the properties which would have preference over the first mortgage bonds and lessen the ability of the roads to make additional improvements and install additional safeguards.

It also was stated that the railroads were not making sufficient net earnings to warrant the increase; and that the increase, if granted, would be followed by demands of other employees which would result in actual bankruptcy to some roads.

On March 26 Mr. Stone and his lieutenants voted to order a strike ballot, the question being whether the engineers would authorize a strike if further negotiations with the railroads should fail. The result of the vote as announced on April 12 was declared to be overwhelmingly in favor of a strike, or by a percentage of 93.3 of the 35,700 votes cast.

The engineers presented their demands again, notifying the managers that if their reply was unsatisfactory a strike order might issue at any time, but the engineers agreed to wait until the night of April 18 for further word from the railroads.

When that time came, Mr. Stuart requested an armistice of forty-eight hours so that members of the committee could be rounded up, and this was granted.

It expired last night, but Mr. Stone agreed to continue it until this afternoon and announced he would await word from the committee before dispatching the assistant chairmen of the brotherhood to their various headquarters for the purpose of calling a strike.

FROM THE RAILROADS.

The committee of railroad employers this afternoon sent this letter to Mr. Stone:

"In reply to your favor of the 19th inst., the managers in conference today and with the approval of the presidents, beg to state:

"They have carefully reconsidered the whole subject at issue and regret they see no way of modifying the conclusions previously announced.

[Signed] "J. C. STUART, "Chairman."

Nearly an hour before the formal receipt of this letter, Mr. Stone, apparently with knowledge that the railroads were in the act of making another refusal, decided that a strike would be called in thirty-six hours. He said:

"The Engineers' Committee has decided that its fifty-two men would start for their respective points tonight and that a strike would be called in thirty-six hours. This will allow twenty-four hours for the men to get back to their respective points; ten hours in which to put the strike orders into effect, and two hours in which to notify the different railroads of the intention to strike."

Mr. Stone had barely made this announcement when he received the letter offering mediation. Mr. Stone dictated the following reply:

"Dear Sir: This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of even date, advising final decision of conference committee of managers, with the approval of the presidents wherein you state, 'You see no way of modifying four former conclusions, previously announced.'

"We consider that your letter terminates all negotiations and as previously advised the chairman will leave the city at the earliest possible moment to look after our interests; and you will be notified as per my formal letter as to the time the engineers will be withdrawn from the service.

It was declared by leaders that 24,000 men would be affected by a strike order. Of these 25,700 are members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and about 6500 are in the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, who, the engineers declare, will join the strike. The rest are non-union men, who Chief Stone said, have joined in the strike vote passed by the brotherhood.

FEDERATION SELECTS NAME.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) April 22.—The Federation of Western Railroad Shop Workers began as an actual organization today when conferees representing workmen employed on forty-seven lines west of the Mississippi, after deliberations lasting more than a week, agreed upon the name, "Federation of Federations" for the new body.

The 250 delegates adopted a constitution and entered upon work of adopting the by-laws, which it is believed will be completed tomorrow.

The Federation of Federations has 300,000 members. It includes the unions of five crafts—the Brotherhood of Railroad Carmen, Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Helpers, Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers, International Association of Machinists and the International Association of Sheet Metal Workers.

THE TONG WAR.

DEPORTATION OF CHINAMEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—The Federal government took a hand in the tong war today. Yim Horn, one of the tong warriors under arrest, was removed to Angel Island and an effort will be made to deport him. The same course will be followed with other highbinders who cannot show identification papers. The situation is a difficult one because many Chinese desired at Angel Island as witnesses are afraid to venture out of doors

DEATH TOLL SEVENTY-TWO; SCORES INJURED IN STORM.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 22.—Latest figures regarding the tornado which swept over Illinois and Indiana last evening give seventy-two dead, nearly 200 injured, and nearly 100 families destitute as a result of the storm. More than 100 homes were demolished and the property loss totalled several hundred thousand dollars.

Greatest damage was done at Bush, Willisville, Murphysboro, Campus, Freeman and Kankakee, Ill., and Morocco, Ind.

Gov. Deneen and Adjt.-Gen. Dickson today arranged to extend State relief to the stricken district in Illinois.

Bush, Ill., eighteen dead, 100 injured.

District east of Bush, Ill., eight dead, thirty injured.

Marion, Ill., seventeen dead (unconfirmed.)

Kankakee, Ill., seven dead, twenty-one injured.

Morocco, Ind., nine dead, one injured.

District near Morocco, Ind., two dead.

TWO STORMS MEET. TOWN IN RUINS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, April 22.—Late reports from the storm-swept territory of Southwestern Illinois tonight tell of more than fifty dead, 200 injured and property damage estimated at $500,000 to $2,000,000.

Bush, a village of 600 persons in Williamson county, suffered most. The two storms which wrought havoc in Central and Southern Illinois Sunday met at Bush at 6 p.m., one coming from the west and the other from the southeast.

Fifteen persons were killed, three died of injuries, and a hundred or more are suffering from injuries as the result of the storm.

The storms met at a velocity of seventy-five miles an hour and in a few minutes Bush was in ruins. The property of the Western Coal and Mining Company was destroyed, as were the postoffice, general store, hotels, restaurants and forty dwellings. Thirty-five other homes were wrecked partially.

In addition to the dead and injured accounted for, fifteen persons are missing.

Thirteen persons, a family of eight and five boarders, sought refuge in a cistern. The house was blown over, covering the opening of the cistern, and they were not rescued until late tonight.

Traffic on the Herrin, St. Louis and Benton divisions of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern railway will be tied up three days because of the wrecking of the sixty cars on the main line near Bush.

The fifteen persons killed at Bush include J. W. Campbell, his wife and six children.

Campbell was section foreman at Bush. With his wife and six children he was sitting in the section-house when the storm demolished it, killing the occupants instantly. One son, 16 years old, was in Benton when the storm broke and escaped.

The storm at Bush was accompanied by the usual freak incidents. A cow was picked up in the main street, carried 100 yards by the wind and landed safely on the railroad tracks.

A trainload of injured were taken from Bush to Murphysboro, where three died. They have not been identified.

In Murphysboro, Ill., George Meade, who lived two miles north, died of injuries. One woman and two children of the forty-one persons brought here last night from Bush died today in a hospital.

Two men were reported dead in Freeman, Ill. The second relief train, which was started from Bush for Murphysboro, was sent to another town because of the crowded condition of the Murphysboro hospital.

A child of Thomas Taylor was killed and many persons were injured when the storm swept a path in Hamilton county, Illinois. Fourteen houses were demolished.

In Bush, five persons were killed in the home of Section Foreman Campbell of the Iron Mountain road. Seventy-five houses, the hotel, postoffice, mining company's offices and store and the roundhouse were destroyed. Seventy-five families are destitute and the State has been asked for assistance.

Ten of the Iron Mountain's employees of Bush are en route here for treatment. It is thought they cannot live. W. E. Murrifield of Chester, Ill., division superintendent of the Iron Mountain, departed today for Bush.

Reports also tell of eight persons being killed near West Frankfort in the storm's path in Franklin county.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DANVILLE (Ill.) April 22.—The terrific force of the storm which leveled thirty houses and injured forty-one persons in Grant Park, Ill., last night, was shown when it became known today that twelve box cars loaded with brick had been blown from the track and overturned.

At Sheldon, Ill., it is reported that a man and a baby were killed.

STORM IN GRAVEYARD. MONUMENTS DESTROYED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BLOOMINGTON (Ill.) April 22.—A tornado Sunday afternoon destroyed a house and six barns in Piper City and approaching Chattsworth, struck the cemetery, wrecking many monuments.

REFUGE DESTROYED. ONE WOMAN KILLED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KANKAKEE (Ill.) April 22.—Mrs. David Jay, who with several friends was returning from Kankakee Sunday night to her home eight miles west of here, was killed by the tornado and others in the party were seriously injured. They had taken refuge in a deserted house.

The wind tore off the roof and threw down some of the walls. Mrs. Jay was instantly killed by a heavy timber.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BIRMINGHAM (Ala.) April 22.—A tornado passed over Adamsville, Hinckney City, Jugtown, Brookside and several mining towns today. Incomplete returns say twelve to fifteen persons were killed and several were hurt. Twenty houses were destroyed in Brookside.

THE LOUISIANA FLOOD. HUNDREDS MAROONED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW ORLEANS, April 22.—Hundreds of persons are still marooned on floating housetops and rafts in the flooded sections of Northwestern Mississippi, according to official reports received here today. Rescue parties have employed motor boats and launches to scour the inundated country for refugees. There has been intense suffering among prisoners. Nearly 100,000 persons from the flooded sections of Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi are gathered in State and government camps. A report had reached here today that 500 negroes, marooned in box cars near Stoneville, Miss., are menaced by starvation.

FIRST AID FOR RESCUED. THOUSANDS SUFFERING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The government contemplates feeding 83,000 Mississippi River flood sufferers for forty-two days at a daily cost of $10,000. Secretary of War Stimson made this estimate today when he asked an additional appropriation of $207,121 for the commissary department. Previously Congress voted $212,819 for the same purpose.

Six Dead in Georgia.

NEWBORN (Ga.) April 22.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Six persons were killed and a score injured by a tornado which swept this section of the State early today. Demolished houses and dead live stock were left in the wake of the storm, which took a track three-quarters of a mile wide through Jasper, Newton and Morgan counties.

Six Killed by Tornado.

NEEBERN (Ga.) April 22.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] A tornado which passed over this section of the State today caused the death of six persons and injured a score of others.

Uprising.

MOROCCANS REVOLT AND MASSACRE FRENCH TROOPS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FEZ (Morocco) Thursday, April 18.—[Delayed in transmission.] The revolt of the populace and the Moorish soldiery began at midday yesterday, after a delegation of native troops had obtained admission to the palace and complained to the Sultan of the new military regulations in connection with the French protectorate.

As the military delegation left the palace, the soldiers composing it seized and killed a French captain. This was the signal for general pillage and massacre.

The native soldiers, urged on by shrieking Moorish women, rushed through the streets, slaying the French and inciting the population to violence by the false cry, "The Sultan is a prisoner of the French and must be liberated!"

The French telegraphers were attacked and made a heroic stand, defending their offices for four hours, in the meantime sending messages to headquarters in Tangier. Finally the office was captured, the telegraphers killed and their bodies mutilated and burned.

The heads of the Europeans slain were paraded through the streets on pikes.

The French legation sent out relief troops and brought in many foreigners and afterwards the French artillery opened fire on the rebels grouped in the northern quarter.

MANY ATROCITIES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, April 22.—The revolution in Fez, the Morocean capital, in which the populace and many mutinous Moorish soldiers participated, developed into a massacre accompanied by many atrocities, according to a wireless dispatch received today at the Foreign Office. It is now said that five French officers and forty soldiers were killed, while thirteen civilians, all of them French citizens, were massacred in their homes or in the streets.

Besides these, four French officers and seventy soldiers were wounded, and 100 Jews were slain and many wounded and mutilated.

The French government explains that the absence of detailed news from Fez is due to the fact that four or five telegraphers stationed there, as well as those attached to the wireless stations, were assassinated.

COAL STRIKE CONFERENCE.

NEW YORK, April 22.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] The subcommittee representing the anthracite miners and operators conferred here today for what is expected to be the final session, as a settlement of the demands of the miners, it is understood, has already been virtually reached. The basis is said to be a 5 per cent. increase in wages, and an indirect recognition of the union. There will be no acceptance of the check-off system.

MYSTERIOUS FIRE.

Fire of mysterious origin destroyed a one-story frame cottage, owned by J. E. Kelly, and occupied by Fred Dixon, at No. 2700 San Franco street, late yesterday afternoon, and the police were called upon to make an investigation of the case, without, however, unearthing evidence to substantiate the theory that the fire might have been due to incendiarism. The loss on the structure is estimated at about $1500, and additional on the contents, the amount of insurance carried not ascertained last night, and it will be made today with a view to establishing the exact amount.

WOULD VOTE AS A "WHIG."

Woman Registers, Hundred Four Years Old.

Is Strongly in Favor of Taft and Will Aid Him.

Venerable Patriot Actively Interested in Politics.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The oldest woman voter in California has just registered in Lakeport, as Mrs. Hey Lawton Hill, aged 104 years, and when asked concerning her party affiliations stated according to the recollections of her youth:

"I am a Whig."

She stated further that she believes in principles of Taft and has written to the Susan B. Anthony Club of this city for Taft literature which she intends distributing among her townspeople.

This venerable woman, who is actively interested in the world history in spite of the stress of life she must have been through during her 104 years, came to California from Kentucky in 1854, with her husband.

Of the twelve children born to her only two are living, a son, aged 74, living in Oregon and a daughter, Mrs. Mary J. Arnold, with whom she makes her home.

Mrs. Hill is the oldest living "real" daughter of the American Revolution, and is an honorary member of the National Society of that organization.

She has always been intensely patriotic and has expressed her earnest desire to vote, and the prayers of her daughter, son and friends are that her wish may be realized.

CURDLED MILK FOR BABES.

That Is What Infants Got in a Portland "Home," According to the Health Officer.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] PORTLAND (Or.) April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Further investigation of the private baby home conducted by Mrs. I. E. Miller, in a fashionable residence district of Portland, has revealed shocking conditions. Four youngsters, each less than a year old, were found in a state of extreme neglect. In several instances curdled milk was found in their bottles and the nurses at the County Hospital, to which they were removed, declare that the lack of care was manifested by sores in the mouth and on other parts of the bodies of the infants. One is not expected to live.

The house, when inspected by Health Officer White, was found to be in the last degree of filth and disorder. Mrs. Miller is upward of 60 years of age and says she has at times had seven and eight infants under her charge.

The place has been under surveillance some time and further developments are expected.

MR. TAFT INDORSED.

Pima County Republicans Quote Language of Roosevelt in Praise of the President.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] TUCSON (Ariz.) April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] At a meeting of the Taft Club of Pima county, resolutions were adopted unanimously indorsing the renomination of President Taft and pledging the best efforts of the club to the election of delegates to the Chicago convention instructed to oppose the insertion in the national platform of the recall of the judiciary, the recall of judicial decisions, or the recall of the unwritten law limiting a Chief Executive to the two terms in the White House.

The resolutions include Col. Roosevelt's words praising President Taft as follows: "The honest wage-worker, the honest laboring man, feel that in a peculiar sense Mr. Taft will be their representative because of the very fact that he has the same scorn for the demagogue that he has for the corporationist and that he would front the threats of personal violence from any man with the unquailing and lofty fearlessness that he would front the threats of the wealthiest and most powerful corporations. Broad and kindly sympathies are, there is in fact no the slightest tinge of weakness. No consideration of personal interest any more than of fear for his own personal safety could make him swerve a hair's breadth from the course which he regards as right and demanded by the interest of the whole people."

ON PRISON REFORM.

ADDRESS BY A WOMAN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] PHOENIX, (Ariz.) April 22.—The Arizona legislature extended a formal invitation today to Miss Kate Barnard, state commissioner of charities and corrections, Oklahoma, to address it on the subject of prison reform. Miss Barnard reached Phoenix today after having attended Yosemite yesterday as a guest of Gov. Hunt, the first musicale ever given at the state penitentiary by convict talent.

UNIVERSAL CALENDAR.

A CONVICT'S INVENTION

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—Under sentence to Folsom penitentiary for seven years, James P. West has spent the last four years in perfecting what he calls a "universal adjustable calendar," by which it is possible on the face of pasteboard to tell the day of the week for any given date backward or forwards over a period of years. William T. Day, prison lifer, has brought the calendar to San Francisco today that it might be patented in West's name.

IN POLITICS FOR LOVE.

Society Leader Says She Is Out to Help Women Who Have to Make Their Way.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DENVER, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "I've dropped into politics because I think it is intensely interesting and I want to help out if what little I may be able to do will be of service to the party."

So says Mrs. Crawford Hill, long acknowledged leader of Denver's social "Four Hundred," and who is a member of the Republican Woman's Advisory Committee.

"I'm not and never have been for woman's suffrage," she went on, "unless women are working and need the vote to protect themselves. My heart is bowed before any woman who has had to make her way and can make it in this world.

"I'm for her having everything that will make that way easier."

Mrs. Hill insists she has not been influenced in the least by the attitude of such women as Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont and Mrs. Clarence Mackay and also English women of distinction.

VICTIM OF BLACKJACK.

Naval Quartermaster En Route to Los Angeles, Slugged by San Francisco Room-mate.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] John Hobart, a quartermaster in the navy, who was on his way from Los Angeles to join the cruiser Independence, reported to the police this morning that he had been hit on the head with a "blackjack," during the night and robbed of his watch and $90 by a stranger with whom he was sharing a room in Sacramento street.

Hobart said he met the man on Pacific street and consented to rent a room with him. After they had engaged the room, he was conscious of nothing until he found that his companion had vanished, taking with him all his funds. He went to the Harbor Emergency Hospital where his injury was treated. He then reported to the police. A search is being made for his assailant.

OBJECT TO THE SALE.

Heirs of the Little Estate Resist Sale of Land Made Privately by the Executor.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In the estate of William J. Little, in litigation nearly four years, a contest with respect to the validity of a land deal, started today between the executor, George F. Buck, and the children of the deceased. The Little estate is valued at $75,000, and consists of nearly 2000 acres of land.

It seems that when the executor sold to the San Joaquin Investment Company 320 acres of land for $26,501, the heirs were displeased and today, when Buck asked Judge Frank Smith to confirm the sale, the children filed an objection. The court refused to sanction the sale, giving each side an opportunity to offer evidence.

The grounds on which the objection is based are that the price obtained for the land was disproportionate and that the sale was privately conducted.

DORR REGAINS HIS WITS.

Stockton Man Charged with Murder in Lyon Mass. is able to Recognize Chief.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON, April 22.—William A. Dorr, charged with the murder of George E. Marsh, the soap manufacturer of Lynn, Mass., who was shot to death presumably while automobile riding, regained his mental faculties this afternoon and recognized police believe to have been an insane. Chief of Police Briare and Chairman E. E. Tretheway of the Board of Supervisors, with whom Dorr had associated fraternally.

Dorr refused to talk about the charges against him other than to deny all knoledge of it. Chief Briare feels confident Dorr will confess later on and in the hope that he will yield earlier if let alone, he will not be further urged for the present, says Chief Briare.

THREE TRAINMEN KILLED.

LOCOMOTIVE EXPLODES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ELKO (Nev.) April 22.—Three trainmen were instantly killed this afternoon when the boiler of a locomotive on the Western Pacific Railroad blew up on the top of Antelope Hill, forty-four miles west of Winnemucca. The dead:

JAMES CASEY, engineer.
FRED READER, firemen.
JAMES CROSBY, brakeman.

Crosby is a son-in-law of Judge William Bonnifield of Winnemucca.

The cause of the explosion has not been ascertained.

The explosion occurred shortly before the arrival at Antelope of eastbound passenger train No. 4, and as the track was badly torn up, the passenger was delayed several hours. The three victims of the explosion, all of whom resided in Winnemucca, were blown literally to pieces. Nothing was left of the engine except the running gear.

THE CORPORATION TAX.

RULE ON "OUTLAWS."

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, April 22.—Foreign corporations which went out of existence last November, or at any time prior to that, may "come back," according to an opinion rendered today by the Attorney-General's office to Secretary of State Jordan, and will not have to pay up their delinquent license taxes. Upward of 2500 foreign corporations forfeited all right to do business in California last November. They are now required to comply with sections 405 and 406 of the Civil Code, which lays down the rules for foreign corporations seeking charters in this State.

Call Stone's Case Monday.

NAPA (Cal.) April 22.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] It was held in the Superior Court here today that the indictment recently returned by the grand jury charging Dr. Elmer E. Stone, formerly superintendent of the State Asylum for the Insane, with the embezzlement of $140 from the "hay fund" of the institution, was invalid. The District Attorney has filed an amended indictment and the case will be called again next Monday.

BIG DOINGS IN BERKELEY.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK AT THE UNIVERSITY.

Baccalaureate Sermon Will Be Preached in the Greek Theater. Outposts to Be Established in the Yosemite Valley — Reminiscences of Edison Edify the Students.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, April 19.—Preparations are under way for commencement time at Berkeley—the week from May 10 to 15, when the alumni will come in pilgrimage to the University of California. On April 29 a United States Army inspector will inspect the university cadets (all male students are required to drill for two years.) From April 29 to May 9 the final examinations will be in progress. The commencement festivities will begin on Friday evening, May 10, with the annual "Senior Extravaganza," this year to be "Ephraim," a humorous rejoinder to Prof. Charles Mills Gayley's book on the problems of the university life, "Idols of Education." "Ephraim" was written by C. Nelson Hackett, '12. Its action, choruses, dances and spectacle will be participated in by several hundred members of the graduating class. Saturday afternoon, May 11, Verdi's "Requiem" will be sung in the Greek Theater by the Berkeley Oratorio Society, the chorus and the orchestra being conducted by University Chorague Paul Steindorff. That evening the class banquets will occur. The same day the fourth annual picnic will be held at the University Farm at Davis, an event which will bring several thousand farmers and their families together to see the flocks and herds, the experimental fields and gardens, and the varied equipment of the farm school and its 600 acres of rich Sacramento Valley land.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON.

Sunday afternoon the baccalaureate sermon will be preached in the Greek Theater. Class day will be celebrated on Monday. In the morning the graduating class will go in pilgrimage from the Senior Oak to North Hall, with speeches by Prof. Henry Morse Stephens and by various student leaders, at California Hall, Boalt Hall, South Hall, the Agricultural building, the Physiology buildings, the two Senior halls, the Chemistry, Mining and Mechanics' buildings, and at the new University Library, which stands as monument to Charles F. Doe. Class Day afternoon there will be a recital of chamber music in the Greek Theater, given under the direction of Sigmund Beel, the violinist. The Beel String Quartette, assisted by four other musicians, will give the Schubert octette, op. 166, and the Beethoven sextette, op. 20. This concert will be open to the students and to the world at large without charge. Class Day night the senior ball will be given at Hearst Hall.

The forty-fourth annual commencement will be held on Wednesday morning, May 15, in the Greek Theater, the faculty and alumni joining in the academic procession from the library to the great open-air theater.

THE TRACK MEET.

Ten universities and colleges will be represented in the conference track meet at the University of California on May 4—the Universities of California, Stanford, Washington, Nevada, Southern California and Oregon, and Washington State Agricultural College, Santa Clara, Pomona and Occidental College. This will be the most important intercollegiate track meet ever held on the Pacific Coast.

Interclass swimming races will be held in the university's open-air swimming pool in Strawberry Canyon on April 26. Special instruction is being given there, for the students in the classes in hygiene and first aid to the injured, in how to rescue the drowning, how to break the hold of a panic-stricken drowning man, and how to revive those apparently drowned, by inducing artificial respiration.

The associated students have adopted a new method of electing their officers. A majority vote is now required. The first use of the new method has resulted in the choice for president of the student body of C. M. Torrey of Berkeley; graduate manager (to be in charge of all the athletic and other business of the students,) William G. Donald of Tacoma, Wash.; vice-president, E. G. Hill of Pasadena; secretary, G. H. Sweet; yell leader, Stanley L. Arnot of Placerville. At another election Miss Harriet S. Judd of Pasadena was elected president of the Associated Women Students. A highly-effective system of student self-government has prevailed for many years at the University of California. All cases of discipline are handled by the students' own committee.

UNIVERSITY OUTPOST.

The University of California will establish a temporary outpost this summer in the Yosemite Valley. At the conclusion of the summer session (which extends from June 24 to August 4) the summer students of botany and zoology will go to the Yosemite for two weeks. For five weeks during the summer a party of summer-session students will be encamped south and east of Mt. Diablo. Still another summer outpost of the university will be the summer school of surveying at Camp California, near Swanton, in Santa Cruz county.

A monumental "Guide to the Mexican Archives," a volume of 600 pages, is to be published in June by Dr. Herbert Eugene Bolton, professor of American history in the university, The Carnegie Institution of Washington issues the work.

Among the visitors who have given lectures or addresses at the university lately have been William Faversham, the English actor; Wilhelm Paszkowski of Berlin, director of the Academic Bureau of Information; Prof. Bliss Perry of Harvard, long editor of the Atlantic Monthly; R. M. Searle, who began life as Edison's office boy and is now head of the principal public-service corporation of Rochester, N. Y. (Mr. Searle gave personal recollections of Edison, and told of two of his recent inventions—a phonograph free from the usual scratching noise, and a machine which combines the phonograph and the moving-picture apparatus, so that one may sit at home and see and hear a grand opera, with music and picture perfectly synchronized;) Mrs. E. S. Simpson, who told of newspaper work as a career for woman; State Forester G. M. Homans, and Arthur Rugh, for the past six years secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Shanghai, who talked on the revolution in China. James A. Johnston of the State Board of Control is to give an address next week on the work of that body, which safeguards the State in the spending of over $17,000,000 annually.

ARMY MANEUVERS.

ARTILLERYMEN PARTICIPATE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—Two thousand artillerymen from Forts Miley, Baker and Barry, in this city, leave this week for three days' maneuvers in the hills about the State rifle range at Manzanita, Marin county. The artillerymen will maneuver as infantry and will engage in both day and night sham battles. This will be the greatest movement of artillery troops ever made in this district. The rolling hills about Manzanita are excellently suited for military maneuvers, affording chance for both open and covered actions.

Maj. W. C. Davis will command the forces.

SHORTAGE OF COAL.

VESSELS ARE HANDICAPPED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—Vessels operating between San Francisco and Panama are badly handicapped just now as the result of a coal shortage on the isthmus. Ships leaving this port are carrying sufficient fuel for the round trip and their cargo capacity is suffering in consequence. Steamship officials say the coal famine is due to the enormous consumption by the government in the construction of the canal. Colliers from the Atlantic side are reported to be en route to Panama, and it is believed the situation will be relieved within a short time.

UP MT. TAMALPAIS.

AN ELEVATOR PROJECT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—Plans for the installation of a mammoth elevator on the summit of Mt. Tamalpais, to be used in hoisting passengers from the Muir Woods station to the top of the peak, are under consideration by the directors, and the sanction of the State Railroad Commission for the construction of the giant lift has been sought. The elevator, if constructed, will have a carrying capacity of 200. The total distance to be surmounted is 400 feet. Engineers have assured the directors that the project is feasible and, unless the railroad commission interposes objections, the elevator will be installed. It would be operated in much the same manner as a skip in an incline mine shaft.

SALT RIVER PROJECT.

HEARINGS IN PHOENIX.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) April 22.—The Congressional Committee to investigate the expenditures on the Salt River irrigation project, and the expenditures generally in the Reclamation Service, reached Phoenix today and will begin public hearings tomorrow. The committee is composed of Representatives Walter L. Hensley of Missouri, Oscar Calloway of Texas and Louis Hanna of North Dakota. Judge M. C. Burch, Special Assistant Attorney-General for twelve years in charge of western land-fraud cases, and Edward O'Brien, an attorney connected with the Department of Justice, came with the committeemen to assist them in their investigation.

LA FOLLETTE'S ITINERARY.

COMING TO LOS ANGELES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—Having been advised by a throat specialist that his voice would be in working order again within three days, United States Senator La Follette announced today that he would begin in Fresno on April 25 his California campaign for the Presidential nomination. Senator La Follette spent today in conferences with Rudolph Spreckels and various State Committeemen, alternating politics with informal receptions to various friends and townsmen from his home in Wisconsin. From Fresno he will go to Los Angeles, where he will speak Friday night. The remainder of his itinerary has not been definitely arranged. He will be in San Francisco again by the last of April.

BUSINESS MEN IN CONFERENCE.

National Board of Trade May Be Organized.

Nagel Tells Delegates of an Irrepressible Conflict.

President Taft Receives Ovation at the Convention.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It was a splendid ovation that greeted President Taft this morning when he stepped on the platform to address the representatives of the commercial bodies gathered here to organize a national body which shall co-operate with the national government.

Los Angeles is represented by Representative Stephens, who is especially delegated by the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Exchange to act for them.

Berkeley is represented by Senator Perkins, Congressman Knowland and Interstate Commerce Commissioner Franklin K. Lane.

San Francisco is represented by William M. Bunker and the members of Congress.

Considering the importance of the movement and the very representative gathering of commercial men, the statement is made that California should have shown greater interest in the movement. The day is being given up largely to organization. It seems certain that the results will be a large and powerful body which will be potent in forwarding the cause of the nation's commerce and manufacturers.

NAGEL'S ADDRESS.

"IRREPRESSIBLE CONFLICT."

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Secretary Nagel, today outlining the purpose of the commercial conference called here by President Taft to form a national Chamber of Commerce, made an urgent plea for a permanent representative trade body to assist the Federal government in solving the economic problems pressing for decision. Unless the government met these questions along the lines of progress of development, Secretary Nagel foresaw a conflict with business.

So pressing are the problems, the Secretary declared, that if the governmental agencies do not find the solution the commercial and industrial forces would compel that solution in one form or another. "The conflict is irrepressible," he added.

"If the government does not find and establish rules by which development may be intelligently and normally had, then ultimately the expansion and the progress will be had in defiance of rules that do not fit. That has been the story and that will be the story of development everywhere.

"In my judgment, much of the confusion which exists to discourage and to embarrass is to be attributed to the circumstances that impartial, comprehensive, thoughtful advice has not been afforded by those who are primarily interested and whose experience is more essential to a correct understanding. Instead of depending upon advice or the demand of specialized interest we must have a common judgment of commerce and industry, and to get that common judgment we must have a common representation. There is the meaning of the organization which is here proposed.

"In other countries the relation between the government and the industries and commerce is so close that the Board of Trade forms an immediate part of the government itself. This we will not be able to accomplish and may not want to have. But to my mind it is true beyond the possibility of refutation that by some means we must establish a common commercial representation, which shall sustain a relation to the government for the purpose of general advices and intelligent direction with respect to proposed measures and the administration of existing laws."

Mr. Nagel said he hoped to see the proposed organization ultimately clothed with a national charter, "so as to give the right and the means to have the government and representatives of commerce and industry touch elbows."

MONEY TRUST INQUIRY.

TWO LAWYERS ENGAGED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Samuel Untermeyer of New York and Edwin H. Garr of Chicago, former president of the American Bar Association, have been employed on the House Committee on Banking and Currency to conduct the investigation into the so-called money trust. They will direct an inquiry into the private affairs of leading financial institutions before the committee begins cross-examination of witnesses at public hearings.

THE MILITANT WOMAN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Militant methods may not be effective in getting votes for women, but they go a long ways toward reforming taxi drivers and getting chivalric treatment from them.

Mrs. W. A. Beckingham, No. 634 Oakdale avenue, a young and athletic graduate of Bryn Mawr, was overcharged by a driver. She remonstrated and the driver became insolent. She pulled him from his seat, bounced his head on the curbstone and held him until the police arrived.

The bumps she raised on the driver's head have resulted in a new plan evolved by the Walden W. Shaw Livery Company to prevent overcharging by drivers. The plan was announced today by J. D. Hertz, manager of the firm. He has instituted a system requiring drivers to give receipts to all passengers. The receipts must show the distance traveled and the charges.

Federal Judges in Philadelphia Take Under Advisement a Motion in the "Steel Trust" Case.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—Judges Gray, Buffington and McPherson, sitting in the United States Court here today, took under advisement the petition of the government for a permanent injunction to prevent the United States Steel Corporation and subsidiaries from destroying papers, books, or documents which the government might need in its suit to dissolve the so-called steel trust.

The paper alleged to have been destroyed by the American Steel and Wire Company, counsel said, had been in the hands of the government a long period, and when agents of the Steel Corporation's subsidiaries destroyed them they did not act in bad faith, as they had no idea that the government wanted them again.

RECEIVER'S CERTIFICATES.

Plan to Issue Them to Raise Money for the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railways.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KANSAS CITY, April 22.—A proposal to issue receivers' certificates amounting to $2,350,000 for the improvement of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railroad, was submitted today by the road's receivers to Federal Judge Pollock for his approval, at a hearing in Kansas City, Mo. Judge Pollock will announce his decision next Saturday.

It was said that $1,000,000 was needed to complete the road from Granada, Tex., to Alpine, Tex. This section will give the road a much desired connection with the Southern Pacific.

Present plans do not contemplate any construction work in Mexico.

Telephones have been jangling all day on the desk of the "May Day Joy Ride" editor.

One has brought messages from generous motorists who wish to offer the use of their autos to the poor children of Los Angeles for the second annual May Day Joy Ride to Venice.

The other messages are tremulous and a little anxious. They are coming from the children who were taken in the automobiles last year and who have been counting the days this year.

"Say, Missus," the voices say over the telephone, "Say you ain't going to forget us this year, are you?"

It depends entirely upon the automobile owners of Los Angeles whether or not any of the children are forgotten.

If the offers of cars continue to come in at the present rate it is evident that most of them will be remembered.

The offers of cars have come in response to the following letter sent to those who took part in the celebration last year and to other automobile owners:

"Last year The Times arranged a May Day joy ride for the poor children of Los Angeles, the hosts of the occasion being the automobile owners of this city. Over 250 automobiles participated, and about 1000 children from the charitable institutions and public schools in the poorer districts were given the one great day of their lives. Since then every event in those schools has been dated as before or after 'the ride.'

"For months these little ones, and others, have been counting the days until another May Day comes. They are waiting for May 1 with the confident trust of childhood. Unless there are just as many automobiles as last year, there will be little hearts broken. One who has not come in contact with these children can have no idea what a tragedy it will be to those who may be left behind. In the light of these circumstances may we depend upon you and your car for the afternoon of May 1?

"Yours very truly,

"THE TIMES."

The first person to offer a car this year was "Bud" Rose, the son of Justice Harry Ross. Bud couldn't wait to write a letter; he telephoned.

The first return mail began bringing in letters; they have been coming ever since.

Eddie Maier, the owner of the Vernon baseball team, was prompt in donating the use of one of his big touring cars and also said that, if preferred, he would send one of the big auto trucks used at the brewery. This, when seats are put in, will accommodate about thirty children.

Champ Vance of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Company notified The Times that the company would send a big truck, which could be made comfortable with seats and which will accommodate from twenty to thirty children.

The number of children who will be made happy on May Day depends entirely upon the number of automobiles donated.

They will be in use from about 1:30 p.m. until dinner time.

The Times will make all arrangements; assign the cars to the children and conduct the not inconsiderable routine and clerical work in connection with the day.

RESCUES HISTORIC PAPERS.

Mississippi Floods Threaten Destruction of Letters of Andrew Jackson and Others.

Having in his possession a number of valuable old letters written by historic Americans, Harold Mitchell, Montana mining man, whose home is at Warm Springs, arrived at the Van Nuys yesterday after a hazardous trip through the flood district of the South. He nearly lost some of the relics, among them a letter by Gen. Andrew Jackson to Gov. Blount of Tennessee, written in May, 1814. One of his first duties on arriving was the securing of insurance on the property in the sum of $10,000.

"My grandfather was a soldier and officer under Gen. Jackson and for that reason I treasure that particular letter more highly than one written by Benjamin Franklin in 1780, or one written by President Jefferson early in the last century," said Mitchell. Having properties in Mississippi near Natchez, he traveled there when first indications of the flood came and less than two weeks ago witnessed the inundation of his property because of a break in the levee.

"The cheapest thing for the people along the Mississippi to do would be to erect real concrete walls instead of the earthen dikes," said Mitchell. "They have the old ideas of things and the proposition of concrete retaining dikes would seem a fabulous waste of money when suggested, in all probability, but in the end it would mean safeguarding of life and property.

"To do this concerted action on the part of all the property owners along the Mississippi River and the government would be essential, since the weakness in levees a hundred miles or more away flooded some of the properties."

While endeavoring to get away from Mississippi, Mitchell was caught in the flood and was forced to jump off a boat to rescue his grip which contained a number of the valuable letters. It is his intention to present them to one of the historical societies of the South or to the State of Montana as soon as he returns.

FORFEITS HIS BOND.

Deputy County Auditor E. W. Close, for a time secretary to the late Capt. Auble when the latter was Chief of Police, forfeited $25 cash bail in Police Judge Chamberlain court yesterday. When arrested late Sunday night, in company with J. Nicholson, for disturbing the peace and quietude of the J. Goldfarb family, No. 867 Wall street, he gave the name of Robert Jones. Nicholson, who was unable to give bail, and passed the night in jail, was fined $20 or twenty days.

PITH OF THE DAY'S NEWS FROM THE MIDDLE WEST.

CHICAGO, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Chicago shivered today under a sudden drop in the temperature, chiefly due to the presence of tornadoes and cyclones at various points near the city. It is feared that the death list may reach about fifty. The known dead tonight are thirty-two, with more than 200 grievously injured, and the property loss will probably reach $2,000,000. The maximum temperature was 53 deg. and the minimum 52 deg., with a west wind blowing six miles an hour and .03 per cent. of rainfall. Middle West temperatures:

ALLEGED RIOTERS INDICTED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ROCK ISLAND (Ill.) April 22.—Indictments charging assault with intent to murder, against E. H. Gardner, a Socialist editor; Harry McCaskey, Republican nominee for State's Attorney, and Phillip Wells, a justice of the peace, were returned today by the grand jury that investigated the recent riot which resulted in the killing of two and the wounding of nine persons. The three mentioned are held responsible for bringing about the fatal clash between the police and the mob that attacked the City Hall. Gardner is at the head of a movement for the recall of Mayor Schriever and Police Commissioner Hart. There are twenty-six indictments not yet made public.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FOX LAKE (Wis.) April 22.—Benjamin Card, an amateur electrician, who is still in the high school, has been awarded $100,000 by the United States government for a rat trap that will solve the problem of exterminating rats on board warships, according to notice received by Card yesterday. An uncle of Card, residing in the East, who financed the experiments, will receive half the award, it is announced.

RETURN STOLEN MEDICINE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 22.—When hurrying to visit a dying patient, Dr. E. W. Hervey, No. 301 West Chicago avenue, was held up by highwaymen near his home early today and robbed of a case of medicine, a small tank of oxygen, his watch and chain and his purse containing $12. The robbers struck the physician on the head with an empty bottle and he sank to the ground dazed, but recovered as the men were running away and shouted to them: "I am a physician and on my way to attend a dying woman; please give me back my medicine and that tank of oxygen." The men held a whispered conversation and a moment later walked back, helped the physician to his feet and gave him back the medicine and oxygen. When Dr. Hervey arrived at the home of his patient he found her dead.

PREICING OF FRUITS NOT TRANSPORTATION.

Ruling by Interstate Commerce Commission Means Two Hundred Thousand Dollars a Year to the Citrus Growers of California—Text of the Decision in Long-Contested Case.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Precing is not properly a part of transportation. The Interstate Commerce Commission today ruled against the proposed demand of $30 per car for precooling. The opinion was written by Commissioner Prouty, and is worth $200,000 a year to citrus fruit growers in California.

"We are of the opinion that carriers have the right to prescribe $1.50 per car is a reasonable charge to be made by the carriers for their service as stated in their opinion in that connection that the tariffs withdrawing this service unlawful and that the tariffs, or their equivalent, be continued in effect and it is so ordered. Carriers are ordered on or before June 20, 1912, 'to file said tariffs and supplements as they abrogate such charges unlawful, and that the present rate for two years.".

THE DECISION.

The report of commission says: "In the case of Heights Fruit Exchange vs. Southern Pacific company, the complainants reduced the charge of the carriers for precooling from $30 to $20 per car. The proceedings were dismissed as to the carriers in the Commerce Court, to enjoin the enforcement of this order, but that court refused to interfere, holding apparently inasmuch as the order simply required the reduction of a rate theretofore established by the carriers, leaving but the amount of the charge to be fixed by the court, and that the right of shippers to insist upon the furnishing of precooling could not be passed on in that proceeding.

"Thereupon the carriers filed tariffs reducing the rate of $7.50 as ordered by the commission, but immediately thereafter they filed other tariffs cancelling these tariffs and withdrawing the privilege of precooling altogether. Upon protest from interested shippers, the commission suspended the tariffs cancelling the precooling privilege by its order in this proceeding, so that the question for our present consideration it: Have the carriers the right to cancel their precooling tariffs and thereby withdraw that privilege entirely?"

This is eventually answered in the negative.

SERVICE REQUIRED.

Whether or not precooling was part of transportation as claimed is treated at length, and decided in the negative, and then the opinion says: "The only service required of the carriers is to provide the car, set it at the packing-house and when loaded, haul that car within a reasonable time, to its destination, and there make delivery in the same condition in which it was received. The mere fact that ice is used in connection with this shipment no more makes the process of precooling a transportation service than as though ice were placed in the receptacle containing the article to be shipped and not in the bunker of the car. Fish and poultry are very often shipped in barrels filled with ice, but it will not be claimed that fo rthis reason the carrier has the right to furnish the ice which is placed in the package, or to decline to receive the package because it does contain this ice. The complainants urge that they have the legal right to precool and that this right cannot be denied them by this commission. We are clear that until the carriers offer a substitute for precooling which is fairly its equivalent in cost and in efficiency, it is the right of the shipper to avail himself of this privilege. As stated in our former opinion, the difference in expense applied to all the carloads of citrus fruits, which are now refrigerated in transit would equal $600,000 per year.

"It is a singular proposition that this enormous waste must continue indefinitely and increasingly because these carriers have made an investment the value of which will be impaired if the privilege to precool be accorded."

Stock Troubles.

WARRANT FOR BROKER BUT HE'S NOT FOUND.

WARRANT for the arrest of H. C. Barlow, a prominent broker of Pasadena, was issued yesterday afternoon by the District Attorney. The complainant is J. A. S. Furlong, an investment broker. The charge is filing embezzlement.

Barlow had not located Barlow late last night, but expected to arrest him this morning.

Furlong asserts in his complaint that Barlow delivered 1000 shares of Los Angeles company stock to Barlow on the 9th inst., with the understanding that Furlonge was to receive a commission of $135. If Barlow sued for disposing of the paper.

Furlong charges that Barlow hypothecated the stock with a Los Angeles bank and concern, receiving $110 for using it.

According to Furlonge, the accused broker promised to reimburse him for the entire amount, but failed to do so.

Members of the Los Angeles Stock Exchange, where Barlow has operated for several years, stated yesterday that he lost heavily in the market through poor investments and financial deals.

Barlow was formerly a member of the firm of Barlow & Bragdon, and for many years was recognized as one of the most reckless and daring stock operators in Los Angeles. Four years ago the firm closed its doors and Barlow has been operating alone since, with offices in the I. W. Hellman building.

His father-in-law, C. C. Bragdon, is one of the wealthiest men in the city. Mrs. Barlow is a society woman and well known in women's club circles.

San Pedro.

TORPEDO BOATS ORDERED TO MEXICAN WEST COAST.

SAN PEDRO, April 22.—The United States armored cruiser Maryland, Capt. J. H. Ellicott commanding, the naval tug Fortune towing the submarines Grampus and Pike, officially known as A3 and A5, Lieut. Donovan commanding, and the torpedo boat destroyers Hull, Lawrence, Howard and Perry came up from San Diego this morning to engage in the annual torpedo practice with vessels of the Pacific torpedo fleet, off the breakwater in this harbor. The divisions will sail this evening.

The Hull, Preble and Stewart have been ordered to proceed from San Diego to the West Mexican coast.

The destroyers and torpedo boat Whipple, Lawrence and Farragut and Preble have been here for several days in preparation for the final tests, which will rank in competition with vessels of similar type in Atlantic waters. Mimic warfare furnishes an element of rivalry among the various officers and the crew of each little craft, which are on edge for the fray. The Maryland arrived today, held the trophy awarded by the Navy Department for several years consecutively, but the honor was wrested from her last year by a destroyer flotilla. The Maryland arrived today, held with her guns and will remain in port for three days and then return to San Diego. The vessels of the torpedo boat flotilla are expected to complete firing about midnight and will then sail for San Diego.

Delay Ended.

WHITTIER HEIRESS IS MARRIED AT PASADENA.

WHITTIER, April 22.—An automobile party, composed of Miss Grace Harvey-Elder, Bernardo Shorb, James J. Harvey-Elder and Mrs. C. W. Harvey, left Whittier this afternoon, for Pasadena, where Miss Harvey-Elder and Mr. Shorb were married by Justice Robertson.

PASADENA, April 22, a marriage license was issued to Miss Harvey-Elder and Mr. Shorb, who made application with Justice Frank Austin, Los Angeles, to be married at 7:30 o'clock Friday night. They literally "stole a march" on their friends, waiting at the home of the bride did not show up for the ceremony. Because of the prominence of the families of the contracting parties, a wedding had been followed.

Various rumors to account for the people for not using the license on Friday. One was that the grandfather, C. W. Harvey, a banker and pioneer of this city, was opposed to the match, but all that could be learned from the interested parties was that the couple had changed their minds and would be married at a later date.

Miss Grace Harvey-Elder is one of Whittier's most charming young women. She is a sister of Dudley Harvey-Elder of this city, and the late A. C. Harvey-Elder, one of the victims of the dynamiting and fire in the Times Building.

Bernardo Shorb comes of one of the oldest families of the State. His people live in San Francisco, where his sister is recognized society leader, and they are related to the Shorb family who took such prominent part in the early settlement of Southern California, in this section. Mr. and Mrs. Shorb have been close friends for many years.

The couple left by automobile for Santa Barbara, where they will spend a quiet honeymoon.

NEW COMPANY.

Organized for the purpose of taking over the water supply for the big tract, the Orchard Dale Water Company, a mutual organization, has just been formed, with Attorney A. Moore as president; J. P. Thompson, vice-president; Edwin M. Clark, secretary, and J. W. Harvey, treasurer. The new mutual company engages to supply the tract with water and takes over this work from the promoters, Smith & Mizener.

These shares, in the article of incorporation, are valued at $4 each, as the company is not run for profit. It takes over the business from January 1.

The following special committees have been appointed:

Water Rates and Runs—Edwin M. Clark, J. W. Harvey and A. W. Allison.

Finance and Estimates—J. W. Harvey, A. W. Allison and C. A. Landreth.

Where Is She?

GIRL VANISHES AS A PHANTOM.

PARENTS SEEK HER VAINLY ON EVE OF DEPARTURE.

Are About to Follow Their Trunks to the Depot on Their Way to Texas When Their Most Precious Treasure Is Noted Missing—Police Scout Elopement Theory.

On the eve of departing with the members of her family for their new home at San Antonio, Agnes Vaze, the 16-year-old daughter of Charles G. Vaze, a contractor living at No. 109 North Olive street, suddenly disappeared a few days ago and the police were called upon last night to seek some clew as to her whereabouts.

Juvenile Officers Marden and Winn made an investigation and decided that the young woman had not been led away by any affair of the heart, as was first believed, and neither did she have any ambition to carve out a career for herself, as is frequently the case with girls of that age.

Agnes had expressed great pleasure at the idea of going to Texas to live and had dressed herself with unusual care in preparation for the trip. The trunks had been dispatched to the station and the tickets already purchased when the family was called together to start for the depot. It was they discovered for the first time that Agnes was not with the party and a hasty search of the house on Olive street failed to explain the mystery.

The matter was kept quiet for a few days in hopes that the girl voluntarily would return or at least communicate with her parents, but as time passed it was decided to ask the police to send out a general alarm.

The missing girl is described as about five feet, four inches in height, weighs 120 pounds, has an olive complexion, with brown hair and eyes.

At the time of her disappearance she was dressed in a two-piece black dress with a tight skirt; a blue and black straw hat trimmed with a pink ribbon, and a gold brooch with an imitation diamond.

In view of the circumstances, the police are inclined to believe that Miss Vaze might have been lured away or else that she gave way to the nervous strain induced by the preparations for the trip to Texas.

Your Moment

To every man there comes a moment when this world of weary humdrum facts—of weary, prosy occupations of men and women each hot footing down Life's Highway on selfish and petty ends; a moment which seems none the less suddenly good—shot thru with charm and shimmery romance.

It may come to a man with healthy awakening on a May morning—at a trip to the theater—or out in the mysterious shadows of a moonlit evening.

It's the moment when he realizes he is really winning the love of a maid. And—

SPEND MILLION TO FIND CORPSE.

First Wife Sympathizes With the Colonel's Widow.

The Two Women Probably Will Meet Soon.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Vincent Astor, son of Col. John Jacob Astor, said today he did not know today whether or not he would send an expedition from Halifax to search for his father's body. An expedition will probably be sent, but the details of the plans are yet to be worked out. The captain of the Noma, Col. Astor's yacht, left for Halifax tonight.

At the offices of the Astor estate today there was intense activity in making arrangements. While no reward has been offered for the recovery of Col. Astor's body, it is known that a million dollars will be freely spent in an effort to find it. The managers of the estate have been in consultation with marine engineers and have retained several to go with the expedition.

From those in the confidence of young Mr. Astor and from managers of the estate it was learned that the hurried trip of Col. Astor, which caused him to engage passage on the Titanic, was due to his desire to make changes in his will in anticipation of the birth of an heir, the contingency of which he had been made certain. The child is expected to be born in about two months.

Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, who divorced Col. Astor, is expected here Thursday or Friday of next week. Her own wishes will be consulted as to where she will stay, but it is understood she will occupy Col. Astor's town house here with her son, Vincent. Mrs. Madeline Force-Astor will in the meantime be taken to the Astor country place, Rhinecliff.

There is said to be no resentment on the part of the first wife against the second wife, and it is not improbable that they may meet in a most friendly way after a time.

A cabled message of sympathy from Mrs. Ava Willing Astor has already been received by Mrs. Madeline Force-Astor. An acknowledgment was at once returned.

Captain of the Republic, Rammed by the Florida, Has Some Views on the Subject.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ANN ARBOR (Mich.) April 22.—Capt. Inman Sealby, who was commander of the steamship Republic when she was rammed by the Florida, would make Congress responsible for the lives of travelers on the ocean. Capt. Sealby is a student in the University of Michigan.

"I believe that by way of reducing the possibility of such tremendous disasters as that which overtook the Titanic," said Capt. Sealby, "increased lifeboat facilities should be added to the passenger steamers and that water-tight bulkheads should be constructed as strongly as the hull itself.

"I would recommend, first, that the commanders of the North Atlantic steamers be ordered by their owners to go south of the ice track and always to travel slowly in a fog. Any infringement of this should be met with instant dismissal.

"Second, the government should hold the owners of ships responsible in seeing that the orders are carried out to the letter at all times, any failure of which would result in the withdrawal of their passenger-carrying license.

"Third, the people of the country should hold their representatives in Congress responsible, or liable, for the ship owners' carrying out these provisions, failing which the representatives themselves should be compelled to resign their seats.

"The structural alterations of steamers and carrying out of the requirements would mean additional cost to shipowners and this cost would have to be met by the public. A passage that can be bought today for $50 would cost $350."

Hilles Insists That Maj. Butt Was Not Sent to Rome on a Mission to the Pope.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 22.—In response to a letter from William J. Oliver of Knoxville, Tenn., C. D. Hilles, secretary to President Taft, denied today on behalf of the President, that Maj. A. W. Butt had been sent abroad on a mission to Rome. In part the letter reads:

"There is absolutely no truth in the report that Maj. Butt was on a mission to Rome. The sole object of his trip was the benefit of the long sea voyage, and to add to the interest of his trip, the President gave him several formal notes of introduction to personages in Rome whom he knew."

Public Administrator In San Francisco Hears That Jacob Birnbaum Was a Titanic Victim.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—Public Administrator Hynes filed a petition today for letters of administration in the estate of Jacob Birnbaum, head of the diamond firm of Jacob Birnbaum & Co., of this city, who is thought to have been lost on the Titanic.

Shortly before the sailing of the steamer from England, Birnbaum cabled his firm that he expected to return to this country on the Titanic. Nothing has been heard of him since. His name does not appear in the list of survivors.

The petition of the public administrator says that Birnbaum died at sea on April 15.

TITANIC INQUIRY.

to appear on the stand to tell more fully of the events immediately preceding the collision.

Vice-President P. A. S. Franklin of the International Mercantile Marine Company, told the Senate Investigating Committee how he had asked to have the earlier reports of the Titanic disaster held up to avoid unnecessary alarm. He denied any knowledge of the message addressed to Representative Hughes of West Virginia about the ship's being towed to Halifax, and gave other details. Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan presided.

After denying that officials of the White Star line had any knowledge of a misleading telegram to Mr. Hughes, it was acknowledged by Mr. Franklin that he had issued reassuring statements when he had no facts on which to base them.

The witness read from a great sheaf of wireless telegrams received Monday morning. None of them contained any information of value, but it was on this data that the line issued its statements, in an effort, said Mr. Franklin, to reassure inquirers.

REPORTERS VANISH.

Later, when the news came, he said, he sent immediately for the reporters and proceeded to begin reading to them the long Marconigram from the Carpathia giving the gruesome news in considerable detail.

"I began to read: 'Titanic went down this morning at 2:20,' and then I looked up," said Mr. Franklin. "There wasn't a reporter in the room. They were all racing for telephones to get the news out to the world."

Bit by bit Mr. Franklin contributed to the light the Senate is seeking to throw on the catastrope that sank the Titanic, sent almost 1600 persons to their death and plunged the world into mourning.

The inquiry christened the luxurious caucus room of the Senate office building, regarded as perhaps the handsomest executive hearing room in the world. In its center sat the subcommittee with William Alden Smith of Michigan presiding. Jammed about the long table which the committee occupied were witnesses and spectators.

Among them were Senators and Representatives and their wives, Baron von Hengelmuller, the Austrian Ambassador, and other representatives of diplomatic and official circles, and many women, mostly drawn from the national gathering of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Franklin denied that the White Star company had any intention to spirit away from the country any officer of the Titanic or member of its crew or that the plans to return the survivors of the crew were prompted by any desire to suppress the facts. He said that nothing that the officers or crew could tell would affect what might be told by surviving passengers.

J. Bruce Ismay, president of the International Mercantile Marine; Vice-President Franklin of the White Star line; H. T. Cottam, wireless operator of the Carpathia, and four officers and twenty-eight sailors of the Titanic's crew were waiting today to be called as witnesses.

BEFORE FULL COMMITTEE.

Although Chairman Smith and Senator Newlands were the only members of the subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee present, when the preliminary testimony was taken in New York, the full subcommittee will be in attendance in the hearings here. The other members will be Senators Perkins of California, Burton of Ohio, Bourne of Oregon, Simmons of North Carolina and Fletcher of Florida.

Many of the Titanic's surviving passengers will be called to give evidence before the committee. It is expected that among the witnesses will be Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. J. B. Thayer and Col. Archibald Gracie.

When Fourth Officer Boxhall entered the room, Senator Smith asked him to step aside and called Mr. Franklin. He began to question Mr. Franklin as to the companies comprising the corporation, its connections and its capitalization.

Mr. Ismay, as he sat talking to his attorney, C. C. Burlingham, and Vice-President Franklin, appeared wan and haggard.

There had been a long delay before the first witness took the stand. Mr. Ismay seated at the end of the long table, chatted with J. P. Kierlein, one of the officials of the White Star line. Incessantly he drew upon a sheet of paper he had taken from the press table. The sketch was always the White Star flag, such a flag as was flown at the peak of the Titanic.

Hours before the resumption of the inquiry, crowds swarmed to the Senate office building and made a rush for the caucus room. Hundreds were women and, as in the Titanic disaster, it was "women first" who were admitted to the hearing.

Capitol police took charge of the arrangements and by 10 o'clock there were no available seats and standing room was exhausted. Even Senators and Representatives who sought places of vantage for their families were unsuccessful.

FRANKLIN EXAMINED.

"You are the real representative in this country of the White Star line?" Senator Smith asked Mr. Franklin.

"Yes, sir."

"Does anyone share the responsibility with you?"

"I am mainly responsible?" answered Mr. Franklin. "There are directors in this country and meetings are held frequently."

"So far as you know, did you or any of your subordinate officers have any communication with Capt. Smith on his last voyage?"

"None at all."

Mr. Franklin said he had received no communication from Mr. Ismay except one by cable from Southampton announcing the success of the Titanic's trial trip.

"This is the only attempt at communication and so far as you know, any attempt from officers, crew or passengers to communicate with you after they left Southampton?" the Senator asked.

"Yes."

Senator Smith then showed Mr. Franklin the telegram received by Congressman Hughes of West Virginia from the White Star Line, dated New York, April 15, and addressed to J. A. Hughes, Huntington, W. Va., as follows:

"Titanic proceeding to Halifax. Passengers probably land on Wednesday. All safe. [Signed] The White Star Line."

"I ask you," continued the Senator, "whether you know about the sending of that telegram, by whom it was authorized, and from whom it was sent?"

"I do not, sir," said Franklin. "Since it was mentioned at the Waldorf-Astoria Saturday we have had the entire passenger staff examined and we cannot find out."

Asked when he first knew that the Titanic had sunk, Mr. Franklin said he first knew it at 6:27 p.m., Monday.

"About twenty minutes of two on Monday morning," said Mr. Franklin, "a reporter telephoned me that the Titanic had met with an accident and was sinking. The information, he

ROW STARTED IN COMMONS

British Law-makers Begin Titanic Investigation.

Peppery Questions Are Fired at Sidney Buxton.

President of the Board o Trade on Defensive.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, April 22.—Tonight's session of the House of Commons was devoted to a debate of the Titanic disaster, and incidentally the Board of Trade's antiquated regulations were discussed. Will Crooks, Labor member, initiated the necessary motion, and many members rose to support him.

A regular fusillade of questions was fired at Sidney Buxton, president of the Board of Trade, prior to the motion.

Mr. Buxton said he already had summoned a meeting of the leading British ship-owners. He also had taken steps to confer with the Lord Chancellor regarding the appointment of a high legal authority as wreck commissioner to preside over the Titanic inquiry. All questions as to boats, speed, lifeboats, searchlights, etc., said, would be submitted to the strongest possible court of inquiry, and if the Board of Trade's present powers were inadequate he would not hesitate to ask Parliament to confer further powers.

Mr. Buxton also said he was carefully considering the advisability of approaching other governments with a view to calling an international convention to suggest legislation.

Some of the members displayed anxiety regarding the attendance of witnesses at the British inquiry.

Mr. Buxton said he had no power to detain them.

To a question by Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, who cited the case of the Oceana, when officers who manned the boats were allowed to leave the country without testifying, Mr. Buxton replied:

"I have no power to detain the passengers or crew, but the court of inquiry will have the fullest powers."

The relief funds for the assistance of the sufferers by the Titanic disaster now amounts to upwards of £700,000.

SURVIVORS RECOVERING.

Most of Those Who Escaped Death on the Titanic Are Now on Their Way Home.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 22.—The Titanic survivors, who were taken to hospitals on their arrival on the Carpathia, have now practically all recovered, and many of them have left for their homes. Relief societies have gathered more than a quarter of a million dollars, and the relief committees have been swamped with clothing. Not only that, but countless letters were received, all offering assistance of every sort.

That many of the lifeboats of the Titanic were sent away only half filled, and that if Capt. Smith's orders had been obeyed many more lives would have been saved, has been confirmed by Peter D. Daley of Lima, Peru, a first-cabin survivor. Daly states that he saw the captain rush to the railing after the boats had been put out from the ship and call to bring those boats back, they are only half filled."

How many boats obeyed the captain's orders to return, Mr. Daly was unable to tell.

John Thompson, a fireman of the Titanic, suffering with a broken arm at St. Vincent's Hospital, may be an important witness in the Senatorial investigation into the wreck. Thompson comes from Liverpool, and he asserts that the Titanic was out "to beat all records on maiden trips." "From Queenstown out," Thompson is quoted as saying, "all the firemen had been talking of the orders we had to fire her up as hard as we possibly could. We had to make as quick passage as possible, the orders. I heard that these orders came from the engineering department. 'We were carrying full pressure. From the time we left Queenstown till the moment of the shock we never ceased to make from seventy-six to seventy-seven revolutions. During that whole Sunday we had been keeping up the seventy-seven."

MEDALS FOR ROSTRON.

Bill in Congress to Honor the Captain of the Carpathia and the Officers Under Him.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 22.—A bill to provide medals of honor for Capt. A. H. Rostron and the officers and crew of the Cunard liner Carpathia was introduced in the House today by Representative Francis of Ohio. It would appropriate $5000 and instruct the director of the mint to cast a suitable medal to commemorate their heroism in rescuing the Titanic's survivors.

Senator Martine of New Jersey introduced a bill today requesting the president to send several revenue cutters to the spot where the Titanic went down and to keep them there at least a month in the hope of finding other bodies. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Resolutions authorizing $10,000 appropriations for the families of each of the three United States postal clerks who lost their lives on the Titanic were introduced in the House today by Representative Reilly of Connecticut. The three men were Oscar S. Woody of North Carolina, Clyde H. March and William Gwynn of New York. Gwynn had exchanged trips from another vessel in order to get home because of an operation to be performed on his wife.

Titanic Insurance Figures.

HARTFORD (Ct.) April 22.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] The Titanic disaster will cost insurance companies a total of nearly $1,000,000, according to statements by officials of the companies. The loss will fall chiefly on those companies which do an accident business, while the companies issuing only life policies suffer small losses.

Night Session.

OW STARTED IN COMMONS.

Law-makers Begin a Titanic Investigation.

Questions Are Fired at Sidney Buxton.

President of the Board of Trade on Defensive.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, April 22.—Tonight's session of the House of Commons was devoted to a debate of the Titanic disaster, and incidentally the Board of Trade's antiquated regulations were discussed. Will Crooks, Labor member, initiated the necessary motion, and many members rose to support it.

A regular fusillade of questions was fired at Sidney Buxton, president of the Board of Trade, prior to the motion.

Mr. Buxton said he already had summoned a meeting of the leading British shipowners. He also had taken steps to confer with the Lord Chancellor regarding the appointment of a high legal authority as wreck commissioner to preside over the Titanic inquiry. All questions as to rafts, speed, lifeboats, searchlights, etc., would be submitted to the most competent court of inquiry, if the Board of Trade's present powers were inadequate he would not hesitate to ask Parliament to confer further powers.

Mr. Buxton also said he was carefully considering the advisability of consulting other governments with a view to calling an international conference to suggest legislation.

Some of the members displayed anxiety regarding the attendance of witnesses at the British inquiry.

Mr. Buxton said he had no power to compel them.

In a question by Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, who cited the case of the Oceana, when officers who manned the boats were allowed to leave the country without testifying, Mr. Buxton replied:

"I have no power to detain the passengers or crew, but the court of inquiry will have the fullest powers."

The relief funds for the assistance of sufferers by the Titanic disaster now amounts to upwards of £400,000.

ITORS RECOVERING.

Most of Those Who Escaped Death on the Titanic Are Now on Their Way Home.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 22.—The Titanic survivors, who were taken to hospitals on their arrival on the Carpathia, have now practically all recovered, and many of them have left for their homes. Relief societies have gathered more than a quarter of a million dollars, and the relief committees have been swamped with clothing. Not only that, but countless letters were received, all offering sympathy of every sort.

How many of the lifeboats of the Titanic were sent away only half filled, and that if Capt. Smith's orders had been obeyed many more lives would have been saved, has been declared by Peter D. Daley of Lima, Ohio, a first-cabin survivor. Daly says that he saw the captain rush about calling after the boats had been sent out from the ship and call them back, they are said to have been only half filled.

How many boats obeyed the captain's orders to return, Mr. Daly was unable to tell.

Alfred Thompson, a fireman of the Titanic, suffering with a broken arm in St. Vincent's Hospital, may be an important witness in the Senatorial investigation into the wreck. Thompson came from Liverpool, and he says that the Titanic was out "to break all records on maiden trips." From Queenstown out," Thompson is quoted as saying, "all the firemen have been talking of the orders to force her up as hard as we could. We had to make as much passage as possible, the orders. I found that these orders came from the engineering department. We were carrying full pressure. At the time we left Queenstown at the moment of the shock we were about to make from seventy-seven revolutions. For that whole Sunday we had been keeping up the seventy-seven."

ORS FOR BOSTON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 22.—A bill providing medals of honor for Capt. Rostron and the officers and crew of the Cunard liner Carpathia was introduced in the House today by Representative Francis of Ohio. It would appropriate $5000 and instruct the director of the mint to strike off a suitable medal to commemorate their heroism in rescuing the Titanic's survivors.

Senator Hardin of New Jersey introduced a bill today requesting the secretary of the treasury to send several revenue cutters to the spot where the Titanic went down and to keep them there for a month in the hope of finding more bodies. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Representative Fordney introduced a bill authorizing $10,000 apiece for the families of each of the men lost from their lives on the Titanic. It was introduced in the House by Representative Reilly of Connecticut. The three men were Hugh Woody of North Carolina, Frederick and William Gywnn and Thomas Gwynn had exchanged from another vessel in order that the trip might be performed on his wife.

Insurance Figures.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.] LONDON (CX.) April 22.—[By Night Wire.] The Titanic disaster will cost insurance companies more than $1,000,000, according to estimates by officials of the Lloyds. The loss will fall chiefly on three companies which underwrote the ship, while the remainder will be only life policies issued.

TITANIC INQUIRY.

told me, had come by wireless from the steamship Virginian, which had been appealed to by the Titanic for aid."

Mr. Franklin said the White Star docks had no information and he then appealed to the Associated Press and there was read to him a dispatch from Cape Race advising of the accident.

TRIED TO STOP MESSAGE.

"I asked the Associated Press," said Mr. Franklin, "not to send out the dispatch until we had more detailed information in order to avoid causing unnecessary alarm. I was told, however, that the story already had been sent."

"How did you ascertain the location of the Olympic, Baltic and others?" asked Senator Smith.

"We worked that out on our charts. We had no direct communication from any of the ships. Our first endeavor to communicate with our big ships was a message sent April 15, at 3 o'clock a.m. This read:

"'Haddock, Olympic. Make every endeavor to communicate Titanic and advise position and time. Reply within the hour.'

"That was the first message. We followed it with others rapidly.

"Monday morning we were endeavoring to get information from Montreal and Cape Race. At 10:27 a.m., we got word from the Olympic announcing that at 9 a.m. she had been unable to raise the Titanic; was 310 miles south of her but would maintain efforts to get in communication with her. Between 9 and 1 o'clock on the 15th, the following message was received from the Olympic:

"'Parisian reports Carpathia in attendance. Picked up twenty boats with passengers and Baltic returning. Position not given—Haddock, Olympic.'"

The reassuring statements sent out by the line in the early hours of the disaster next were made the subject of inquiry.

"We based the statements on reports and rumors received at Cape Race by individuals and by the newspapers. They were rumors, and we could not place our finger on anything authentic."

Mr. Franklin declared the Olympic was sent this message:

"'Haddock, Olympic: Rumored here Titanic sunk. Cannot confirm here. Expect Virginian alongside. —Franklin.'"

"At 2:40 p.m. we wired Haddock to endeavor to ascertain the whereabouts of Mr. Ismay and to advise us as soon as possible," continued Mr. Franklin.

EFFORTS TO GET NEWS.

"We followed this dispatch with another to Haddock in which we urged:

"'Do your utmost to ascertain condition of Titanic; advise us fully disposition of passengers and where they will be landed.'

"At 6:30 Monday evening," Mr. Franklin continued, "a message was received telling the fateful news that the Carpathia reached the Titanic and found nothing but boats and wreckage; that the Titanic had foundered at 2:20 a.m. in 41.16 North, 50.14 West; that the Carpathia picked up all the boats and had on board about 675 of the Titanic's survivors, passengers and crew. This message was from Haddock, also.

"It was such a terrible shock that it took me several moments to think what to do. Then I telephoned two of our directors, Mr. Steele and J. P. Morgan. Then I went downstairs to the reporters. I began to read the message, holding it high in my hand. I had read only to the second line, which said that the Titanic had sunk, when there was not a reporter left. They were so anxious to get to the telephones.

"After that we got another message from Haddock stating that 'Yamsi,' meaning Ismay, was on the Carpathia."

Mr. Franklin then explained how the company wired the Olympic to get the names of the survivors and to stand by and relay them from the Carpathia.

"I want to say that during the entire day on Monday, after our first messages concerning the Titanic, we considered the Titanic absolutely unsinkable. We never dreamed of such a thing and that here had been loss of life never entered our minds until we got Haddock's awful message at 6:30 o'clock that evening."

Senator Smith then sought to discover who had been "tampering" with the wireless operators. He repeatedly asked the witness whether he had not had a conference Monday with Mr. Marconi or with Mr. Sammis, chief engineer of the Marconi Company.

"No, most emphatically," said the witness. "In no way did I attempt or cause to be attempted any censorship of the wireless."

Senator Smith inquired whether witness was familiar with the workings of the wireless on the ships of the line and if he knew what were the safety precautions on the same ships.

"No," he said. "We really are only agents for the line in America."

Asked about insurance, Mr. Franklin said the company always carried insurance on ships.

"What was the cost of the Titanic?"

"One million, five hundred and some odd pounds," said Franklin. "Its tonnage capacity," he added, "was 46,328 gross, the largest ever built."

ISMAY AGAIN FIGURES.

Senator Smith said he thought the data regarding the stability of the ship in loaded and damaged conditions should be furnished the committee, and Mr. Franklin said he would try to get the figures.

Senator Smith asked the witness what efforts were made to get the names of the third-class passengers.

"We made every effort to get them," said Mr. Franklin.

"Did you receive at any time from any one, a request that the Cedric be held at New York until the arrival of the Carpathia?"

"Yes, sir."

"What time was it received?"

"At 5:19 o'clock," said the witness, who said the telegram asked that the Cedric be held because the sender considered it "most desirable" that the members of the crew be sent back on the Cedric, and declaring his intention of sailing on that ship himself. The sender also asked that clothing and shoes be brought to the dock for him, when the Carpathia got in.

"By whom was that signed?"

"Yamsi."

"Do you know what Yamsi is?"

"Yes, sir, it is cipher for Mr. Ismay's signature. I sent in reply the following: 'Yamsi, Carpathia: Have arranged forward crew Lapland sailing Saturday, calling at Plymouth. We all consider most unwise to delay Cedric, considering circumstances. Franklin.'"

ORDERS FROM ISMAY.

Mr. Franklin read all the messages that passed between himself and Ismay on the Carpathia, April 18. At 5:30 o'clock a.m. of that day Franklin received from Ismay this message:

"Send responsible White Star ship officer and fourteen men in two boats to take charge of thirteen Titanic lifeboats in Quarantine. Yamsi."

The witness said he received a message from Ismay on the Carpathia a little later on the morning of the 18th to join the Carpathia in Quarantine and that several other messages came from him urging that the Cedric be held. After all these had come in Franklin answered:

"Think it most unwise to detain Cedric in New York?"

This was followed by a reply from Ismay, which included "unless you have good and sufficient reason not to hold the Cedric, kindly do so."

Franklin then sent a message expressing his regret that Cedric could not be held and added: "Expect to join you in Quarantine. Regret cannot remove the lifeboats in Quarantine as all arrangements made for Carpathia at dock."

Franklin said he sent several other messages to Ismay which he thought were not delivered. One was "concise Marconigram giving details Titanic most greatly needed for information of public and ourselves."

That was not answered, he said. Later a message was received from Ismay saying he hoped to see Franklin in Quarantine and for Franklin to cable Ismay's wife.

"I answered that I was extremely sorry that the authorities would not permit me to board the Carpathia at Quarantine," Franklin continued, "and I sent him a short message of sympathy over the terrible catastrophe.

"I suppose I am warranted in assuming that the Cedric was not held?" said Senator Smith.

"The ship sailed at noon Thursday."

"And the Carpathia docked—?"

"At 9:30 p.m., Thursday."

In an effort to connect the attempted departure of Mr. Ismay and the Titanic's crew with the Senate's investigation, Senator Smith asked the witness when he had learned the Senate had decided to investigate the disaster.

"I think about 2 o'clock Thursday."

"Did you communicate the information to your company?"

"I did that night by cable, I think."

"When did you advise Mr. Ismay?"

"I told him of it when I got aboard the Carpathia," said the witness.

SAFETY EQUIPMENT.

Senator Perkins then questioned Mr. Franklin as to the safety equipment of the Titanic.

"The Titanic's equipment was in excess of the law," said the witness. "It carried its clearance in the shape of a certificate from the British Board of Trade. I might say that no vessel can leave a British port without a certificate that it is equipped to care for human lives aboard in case of accident."

Senator Bourne took up the questioning.

"Has anything been done with the equipment of other ships as a result of the disaster?" he asked.

"Most emphatically," answered Mr. Franklin. "On last Friday, Mr. Ismay authorized that all our vessels be equipped with boats and rafts sufficient to take off every passenger and every member of the crew in case of accident."

"Were there any searchlights on the Titanic?" Senator Smith asked.

"Not that I know of. I never have heard of searchlights on a transatlantic liner," said Franklin.

Mr. Franklin volunteered a statement regarding criticisms of the White Star company for attempting to return the crew of the Titanic to Europe immediately.

"I think there has been an awful mistake made about that matter," said Franklin. "I would like to clear it up. The criticisms have been made that we were trying to keep those men from testifying. That is not so. That was not the reason at all.

"As far as the crew was concerned, it was our duty to return them to their homes. If they were permitted to roam around here, men would besiege them for news, give them presents, take them away and many of them would get lost.

"We assured you that we would hold any officers or men that you wanted for this committee. We made that promise to you, Senator Smith, as soon as the boat docked. There was no attempt on our part to spirit away any member of the crew, to the best of my knowledge and belief.

"What possible harm could those men do us in an investigation?

"They could not tell any more than the passengers, many of them probably not so much. The worst they could say wouldn't help matters."

WATER-TIGHT COMPARTMENTS.

"There were fifteen water-tight compartments on the Titanic," said Senator Burton. "How many of these were opened by the collision?"

"No estimate is possible," replied the witness. "My best belief is that from five to six were opened, but that is largely guess work."

Senator Fletcher questioned the witness about the International Mercantile Marine Company. Vice-President Franklin said it was a New Jersey corporation, and that his was the highest position in the company in the country.

"Mr. Ismay is absolutely the head of the corporation," Mr. Franklin said.

"SYRUP OF FIGS" FOR INDIGESTION, BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION.

Better Than Castor Oil, Calomel or Cathartics To Cleanse Your Stomach, Liver and 30 Feet of Bowels. Harmless Laxative for Men, Women and Children.

Primitive folks did not need laxatives. They lived outdoors, ate plenty of fruit, and all of their food was coarse. We modern people are different. We exercise too little, eat little fruit, and our food is too fine—too rich.

We simply can't have our ten yards of bowels clogged up, liver choked with sour bile and stomach full of foul effete matter and feel well. It means that the food and waste retained in the stomach and thirty feet of bowels ferments—decays. The decay creates poisons, gases and acids, and those poisons are sucked into the blood through the very ducts intended to suck in the nutriment. Then we have sick headache, become dull, bilious, tongue coated, nervous, meals don't digest, and we feel miserable all over. So we must make our choice. We must live like primitive folks, else we must take artificial means to move the excess bile and waste matter on and out of the system.

The safest, most harmless and effective stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator for men, women and children—is delicious Syrup of Figs, which doesn't irritate, gripe or weaken. Its effect is the effect of fruits. It is composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics. Don't think you are drugging yourself. Syrup of Figs can be constantly used without harm.

Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and see on the label that it is prepared by The California Fig Syrup Company. This is the only genuine—the old reliable. Refuse, with contempt, the so-called Fig Syrup imitations sometimes offered to deceive you.

THE LAND OF MILK AND HONEY NOW HAS

A Rival in the land of Water and Money

The San Jacinto Board of Trade people are making bids for settlers, feeling confident that they are offering the best and cheapest high-class ranch and fruit lands to be had in any section, barring none in the whole State. These lands have not been advanced since the Great Water Discovery. Therefore a moment should not best lost. The wise will make their selection before the price is trebled, or even quadrupled. Home, back Home, was never like a Home in the Beautiful SAN JACINTO VALLEY, for either ranch or business purposes. No desert in this Valley, every foot under a high state of cultivation. Its products excel those raised in any other district. The soil is easy to work, just like one big, mellow garden. Its climatic condition is perfect.

The New Water Discovery made recently places this Valley in the most envied and sought after location in the whole State.

A Committee with autos has been appointed to show everybody around free, and we extend a hearty invitation to all of our good neighbors to see this beautiful little Valley of ours in all its glory. Come over on the Santa Fe in the morning, back in the evening. The San Jacinto Board of Trade, San Jacinto, Cal.

FEARFUL WORK OF THE STOKERS.

Extraordinary Efforts Made to Speed the Titanic.

Witness Says Full Limit of Steam Was Carried.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There was further testimony today from the crew of the Titanic to the effect that the officers had urged every man to work to his utmost to get speed out of the vessel. That was the statement made by John Thompson, stoker, and William McIntyre, a coal passer, in St. Vincent's Hospital.

"The work was so terrific," said Thompson, "that a number of us talked together and agreed not to go back on the Titanic. We simply could not stand the rush. Second Engineer Furgeson was constantly calling to us and telling us to do more. We did not have time to get a drink of water, or to light a cigarette. It is customary to give us little breathing spells on those big liners, but there were no rest periods on the Titanic.

"Sunday they put in additional boilers. That doubled our work. They carried 215 pounds of steam all the time. The boilers could not stand any more."

"The things which Thompson says about the hard work were true," added McIntyre. "We were constantly getting orders to do more work.

"No, we didn't see Mr. Ismay, he didn't have anything to do with those of our class and I don't know that the orders for speed came from him. All we ever heard from him was on the Carpathia. He said that we were not to worry, that we were to go back to England on the first available ship and that our pay would go on until we reached Liverpool.

"When the ship docked the ambulance surgeon came with us to St. Vincent's Hospital, but the ship's doctor on the Carpathia, an Englishman, tried to stop him from taking us off. He said we were going to go on the same boat. I thought they would not take us for a while, but as soon as I said we were from the Titanic, they overruled the ship doctor and took us anyway."

Irony.

REAL ROWERS BARRED BUT STEWARDS GOT IN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 22. — [Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Emil Taussig, who was saved with her 13-year-old daughter, Ruth, while her husband stood on the deck of the Titanic, told a story last night of half-empty boats and incompetent stewards who were unable to man an oar.

"When we came on deck," said Mrs. Taussig, "Capt. Smith was preparing the eighth boat to be let down. There was only one seaman in sight, but a number of stewards had rushed up between the crowding men and women. The captain turned on the stewards and asked them if they knew how to row. They answered yes, hastily, and four of them were allowed to jump in. Only twenty women were anywhere near the boat and these were put in. My daughter Ruth was among the first, but I said that I would not go if my husband did not accompany me. There was room for fourteen more after the last woman had found her place, and they pleaded to let the men take empty seats.

"But the captain said that he would not allow it. I was frantic. There was that boat ready to be lowered into the water and only half full. And then the orders came to lower. The men were pleading for permission to step in and one came forward to take a place next to his wife. I heard a shot and I am sure it was he that went down.

"And then the boat swung out from the deck. I was still with my husband and Ruth had already disappeared below the deck. Then I gave a great cry. I remember perfectly well calling out the name of my daughter, and two men tore me from my husband's side, lifted me, one by the head and one by the feet and dropped me over the side of the deck into the lowering boat. I struck on the back of my head, but I had furs on and that fact probably saved me from greater injury.

"The horrible thing was that we had so much room left for the poor men who were snatched from our sides.

"When we got to the water, the four stewards, who had told the captain they could row, could not row at all. There was only one seaman to man the boat and an English woman whose name I cannot now remember took an ore and rowed until we were half a mile from the Titanic. My daughter also had furs on. The sailor took them from her.

"'You'll not need them' he said and we never saw them again.

"Yes, we saw the boat go down. She was all alight and gradually as she sank the lights in front would disappear. In that way we could see how slowly she sank. It was very slow."

Mrs. Taussing who is living with her father, Hermann Mandelbaum, at No. 1229 Park avenue complained that there was no alarm whatever to awake the passengers. She says the lack of sailors to man the life boats and the disorder in filling them, was due to the fact that most of them were still below when the necessity of lowering them became urgent.

She said her husband, who was abandoned while the half filled boat was lowered, was an expert oarsman and volunteered his services to the captain.

"But he was ordered back" she said, "while the four stewards who could not row at all were permitted to jump in."

Alternating Gleams.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "The pitiful sadness of our rowing, rowing toward the lights of a ship that disappeared. We, in boat No. 8, saw some tramp steamer's masthead lights and then we saw the glow of red as she swung toward us for a few minutes, then darkness and despair."

"There were two stewards in boat No. 8 with us and thirty-one women. One of the stewards' name was Crawford. We were lowered quietly to the water and when we had pushed off from the Titanic's side I asked the seaman if he would care to have me take the tiller, as I know something about boats. He said 'Certainly, lady.' I climbed aft into the stern sheets and asked my cousin to help me.

"The first impression I had as we left the ship was that above all things we mustn't lose our self-possession. We had no officer to take command of our boat and the little seaman had to assume all responsibility. He did it nobly, alternately cheering us with words of encouragement, then rowing doggedly. Then Signora de Satode Penasco began to screams for her husband. It was too horrible.

"The most awful part of the whole thing was seeing the rows of portholes vanishing one by one.

"A Miss Smith did yeoman service. She rowed for five hours without taking rest. Really she was magnificent, not only in her attitude but in the whole-souled way in which she worked.

"Mrs. Pearson also rowed and my maid, Roberta Maconi, rowed the last half of the night."

MILLIONAIRE LIFEBOAT.

Able Seaman Says Sailors Were Paid to Row Away Before the Craft Was Full.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Robert Hopkins, able seaman of the crew of the Titanic, today confirmed the story that a millionaire passenger made it worth the while of sailors to get lifeboat No. 2 away from the sinking vessel before it was more than half filled.

"I know that it's true," said Hopkins, at the City Hall, where he had gone to obtain relief, "because I saw an order that one of the men in boat No. 2 received. It was made out on Coutts Bank in London for five pounds.

"There were eleven men and two or three women in the boat. One of the women was Lady Cosmo Duff Gordon. It's pretty significant that there were only thirteen passengers in No. 2 boat when in the one in which I helped to man were sixty-five.

Hopkins said he believed that the light which those on the Titanic saw as the lifeboats were being launched was the stern light of the North German Lloyd ship Frankfurt.

Life-saving Equipment Rules.

TITANIC WRECK VICTIMS FOUND; SOME IDENTIFIED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 22.—The first list of names of bodies recovered from the Titanic disaster by the cable ship Mackay-Bennett was received here tonight through wireless messages to the White Star Line offices. The list of twenty-seven names contains none of several of the most prominent men who perished, unless it be that "George W. Widen" as sent by wireless refers to George D. Widener of Philadelphia.

The original passenger list of the Titanic did not mention "Widen," which apparently establishes the identity of the body as that of Mr. Widener, son of P. A. B. Widener of Philadelphia, one of the directors of the White Star Line, who, together with his son Harry, was lost.

L. M. Hoffman.
Mrs. Alexander Robins.
William H. Harbeck.
Malcolm Johnson.
A. J. Halverson.
H. W. Asho.
Leslie Williams.
A. H. Hayter.
Jerry Monrose.
Frederick Sutton.
J. S. Gill.
Ernest B. Tomlin.
George Rosenshire.
N. Marriott.
John H. Chapman.
W. Colbine.
H. Greenburg.
Simon Sother.
N. Colas Rasher.
Shes.
George H. Widen.
Roman Artagaveyla.
Steward No. 96.
Yositè Drasenoul.
R. B. Att.
Leslie Gilinski.

The wireless message after listing the names concluded:

"All preserved," presumably referring to the condition of the bodies.

A number of the twenty-seven names in the list do not check up with the Titanic's passenger list, which leads to the belief that a number of the bodies recovered are members of the crew.

Greenland.

NAVAL OFFICERS' VIEW OF CAUSE OF ICEBERGS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 22. — [Exclusive Dispatch.] Navy Department experts believe that the iceberg which sank the Titanic, together with the other bergs now constituting a menace to navigation, originated in Western Greenland.

The huge ice sheet covering Greenland constitutes an enormous glacier which slowly pushes down in the sea through the deep fords of the west Coast. As the ends of the glaciers are forced out into the water they break off and become icebergs.

These bergs are not as large as those of the southern hemisphere, but there are more of them. They may vary up to several hundred feet in height above the waterline and up to half a mile or more in length, although most of them after they have been drifted toward the steamship lines have been reduced in size to only a few hundred feet in length. The part above water weighs about one-seventh of the part immersed. This does not mean that a berg 100 feet high is therefore 700 feet deep below the water line, because it is usually the more peaked portion that projects above the water and the more solid parts remain below. Thus a berg having a thin spire about 100 feet high was seen to go aground in the Strait of Belle Isle in only ninety-six feet of water.

Catholic Memorial Service.

LONDON, April 22.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] In all the Catholic churches in the United Kingdom services were held today in memory of the victims of the Titanic disaster. Westminster Cathedral was thronged. A catafalque draped with purple had been erected before the high altar. Cardinal Bourne officiated and gave absolution.

Insurance Men Blame Company.

BERLIN, April 22.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] A proposal is now being discussed in circles in Germany interested in the reinsurance of the Titanic jointly to refuse payment on the ground that the White Star line was responsible for the accident.

TITANTIC INQUIRY.

"The Titanic was not built for speed," said Mr. Franklin.

"Did you have rules governing running ships in fog, or when ice was in a ship's vicinity?"

"We have very stringent rules. These rules govern the captains of vessels whenever they regard conditions as hazardous."

Mr. Franklin read Rule No. 101 of the White Star Line, which instructed captains to disregard speed and distance in guarding against danger, and to remember always that the safety of the lives and property instrusted to their care was paramount.

"The captain of the Carpathia," said the witness in answer to a question by Senator Bourne, "testified that when the Titanic struck the ice she was just exactly in the position she should have been, according to the charts."

Asked what the speed of the Titanic was at the time of the collision, Mr. Franklin responded:

"I don't know."

"Wasn't it twenty-one knots an hour?"

"I have absolutely no means of knowing."

Senator Smith then returned to the subject of the messages exchanged on the day of the disaster.

"Did you send any by cable?" he asked.

"I did. They did not refer, however, to any one aboard the Carpathia."

BOXHALL IS QUESTIONED.

Senator Smith ordered the cablegrams placed in the record. They were not read.

Mr. Franklin then was excused.

J. B. Boxhall then was questioned as to his duties.

He said, as fifth, sixth, then third and eventually fourth officer, his duties always consisted of assisting the senior officer in charge.

"Were there any drills, or any inspection before the Titanic sailed?" asked Senator Smith.

"Both," said the witness. "The men were mustered and the lifeboats lowered in the presence of the inspectors of the Board of Trade."

"How many boats were lowered?"

"Just two."

"One on each side of the ship?"

"No, sir; they were both on the same side. We were lying in dock."

"How far would lifeboats on the boat deck swing from the vessel?"

"Not very far."

"Are they supposed to be loaded from the boat deck?"

"That's a matter of opinion, but the boats are always lowered to the level of the deck," said Boxhall.

"But under ordinary circumstances the boat deck is really the loading deck of a lifeboat?"

"Yes."

"Were there any lifeboats on the Titanic not sufficiently fastened and in a position to be lowered?"

"All of them were—fourteen lifeboats, two seaboats and four collapsible boats," said Boxhall.

EQUIPMENT OF LIFEBOATS.

Boxhall said that under the weather conditions experienced at the time of the collision, the lifeboats were each supposed to carry sixty-five persons. Under the regulations of the British Board of Trade, in addition to the oars, there were in the water breakers, water dippers, bread, ballers, mast and sail and lights, and a supply of oil. All of these supplies, said Boxhall, were in the boats when the Titanic left Belfast. He could not say whether they were in when the vessel left Southampton.

"Were you on watch Sunday night from 8 o'clock till midnight?"

"Yes."

"Spend all that time at your post?"

"Yes."

"Were you on the bridge all that time?"

"No, but most of it."

"Do you know whether the officers were at their customary posts at the forward end during that watch?"

"Yes, Lightoller was on the bridge when I came on at 8 o'clock. He was relieved at 10 o'clock by Mr. Murdock, who remained until the accident happened."

"Who else was on deck?"

"Moody, the sixth officer."

"Fleland Leigh."

"Who else was on the lookout?"

"The bridge officer, Mr. Murdock."

"Was the ordinary complement of officers at their posts?"

"Yes, sir."

Senator Smith asked if there had been anyone on lookout on the eve of the ship.

"I don't know," said the witness.

"Where is the eye?"

"As far forward as one can get on the ship without climbing the taffrail."

DIDN'T KNOW OF ICEBERGS.

"Did you know of the proximity of icebergs?" asked Senator Smith.

"No, sir."

Under questioning, however, Boxhall said Capt. Smith told him of the position of certain conditions, which he marked on the chart. Senator Smith then asked the witness:

"Do you know whether the temperature of the water taken from the sea was tested?"

"Yes, sir; I saw the quartermaster doing it. He reported to the junior officer, Mr. Moody.

"Any other officer?"

"No, but we always made references for them to see. The log contained the temperature."

"Were there any additional officers or members of the crew stationed in the bow or on the deck after you went on deck Sunday night?"

"I don't know that there were any additional officers or men on the forward deck. Just the regular force."

"Did you see the captain frequently Sunday night?" asked Senator Smith.

"Yes, sir; sometimes on the upper deck, sometimes in the chartroom, sometimes on the bridge and sometimes in the wheelhouse."

"Was the captain on the bridge or at any of the other places when you went on watch at 8 o'clock?"

"No, sir; I first saw the captain about 9 o'clock."

"Did you see Mr. Ismay with the captain on the bridge or in the wheelhouse?"

"No, sir; not until after the accident."

"Did you know when he dined that night, where he dined or with whom?"

"No, sir."

Boxhall said he did not believe the captain had been away from the vicinity of the bridge at any time during the watch.

"When did you see the captain last?" asked Senator Smith.

"When he ordered me to go away in the boat."

AT TIME OF COLLISION.

"Where were you at the time of the collision?"

"Just approaching the bridge."

"Did you see what occurred?"

"No, I could not see."

"Did you hear?"

"Yes, the senior officer said 'we have struck an iceberg.'"

"Was there any ice on the deck?"

"Just a little on the lower deck. I heard the sharp report of the crash."

"Did you see the iceberg?"

"No, sir."

"Did it strike the bow or shave it?"

"It seemed to me to have struck the bluff of the starboard bow?"

"Then it was not a square blow on the bow of the ship?"

"No, a glancing blow."

"Was it a hard impact?"

"No, it was so slight that I did not think it was serious."

Boxhall then went to the bridge, where he found the first officer, Mr. Murdock; the sixth officer, Mr. Moody, and Capt. Smith.

Boxhall said the captain asked what was the trouble and the first officer replied they had struck an iceberg and added that he had borne to starboard and reversed his engines full speed after ordering the closing of water-tight doors.

"Did you see the iceberg?"

"Yes, sir. I could see it dimly. It lay low in the water and was about as high as the lower rail of the ship or about thirty feet out of the water."

He had great difficulty in seeing the berg, which he said was a dark gray color.

Boxhall said he went down to the steerage, inspected all the decks in the vicinity of where the ship had struck, found no traces of any damage, and went directly to the bridge and so reported.

"The captain ordered me to send a carpenter to sound the ship, but I found a carpenter coming up with the announcement that the ship was taking water. In the mailroom I found mail sacks floating about while the clerks were at work. I went to the bridge and reported and the captain ordered the lifeboats to be made ready."

Boxhall testified that at Capt. Smith's orders he took word of the ship's position to the wireless operators.

"What position was that?"

"Forty-one forty-six north, 50.14 west."

"Was that the last position taken?"

"Yes, the Titanic stood not far from there when she sank."

SHIP NEAR AT HAND.

After that Boxhall went back to the lifeboats where there were many men and women. He said they had lifebelts.

"After that I was on the bridge most of the time sending out distress signals trying to attract the attention of boats ahead," he said. "I sent up distress rockets until I left the ship, to try to attract the attention of a ship directly ahead. I had seen her lights. She seemed to be nearing us and was not far away.

"She got close enough so she seemed to me to read our electric Morse signals. I told the captain. He stood with me much of the time, trying to signal her. He told me to tell her in Morse rocket signals: 'Come at once—we are sinking.'"

"Did any answer come?" asked the Senator.

"I did not see them, but two men say they saw signals from that ship.

"How far away do you think the ship was?"

"Approximately five miles."

Boxhall said he did not know what ship it was.

"Have you learned anything about that ship since?"

"No, some people say she was to our rockets and our signals but did not see it."

"By 'some people' whom do you mean?"

"Not passengers, but stewards on the captain all declared they saw them."

"What did you see on the ship?"

"First we saw her mast-head lights and a few minutes later her red side lights. She was standing close."

"Suppose you had had a powerful searchlight on the Titanic, could you not have thrown a beam on the vessel and have compelled her attention?"

"We might."

TRIED TO SAVE THREE.

Boxhall said he had rowed in a sea boat three-quarters of a mile from the Titanic went down. Before he had rowed around the ship's stern to see if he could get room for three more persons for whom there was room. He abandoned that attempt, however, because he had with him only one man who knew how to handle an oar and he feared an accident. His boat, he said, was finally picked up by the Carpathia. This was about 4:10 in the morning.

"Did you have any conversation with Mr. Ismay that night?"

"Yes, before I left the ship on the bridge just before the captain ordered me below to take charge of a boat."

"When you boarded the Carpathia did you see any lights or any other lifeboats?"

"No. It was nearly daylight. It was daylight by the time I went over the side. I was daylight by the time I went over the side. I was among the passengers aboard the Carpathia."

"Could you say any other lifeboats had lights besides yours?"

"I saw several with lights. I would not say all the boats had lights."

Boxhall said he knew none of the American passengers personally, but he knew the identity of Col. John Jacob Astor.

The witness said he had seen the Grand Bank many times before but never had seen field ice like that.

"Did you see Ismay when you put into the lifeboat?"

"No."

"I saw him in a collapsible boat in the water afterward."

"Who else was on it?"

"Mr. Carter."

"Any other men?"

"Yes, I saw some men that looked like Filipinos. Three or four of them."

MANY WOMEN IN BOAT.

"Any women in it?"

"Yes, it was full of them—not exactly full, but there were many women, most of them foreigners."

"How long after you reached the Carpathia did Ismay's boat come?"

"I cannot say exactly, but it was before daylight."

The Carpathia, he said, was sighted by the green lights on the Titanic's boat. He said he saw other lights.

"Our green lights were the only lights that I told one of the men how to put in. I lighted them after the boats were lowered. The lights were not brilliant and attracted the Carpathia."

"Do you know what prompted the Carpathia's captain to turn when he found himself among the ice?"

"No sir."

"Well," said Senator Smith, "answering his own question, doubled his lookouts."

"Did you see any bodies?"

"Yes, I saw one body, the body of a man lying on his side in a lifebelt on."

"There must have been hundreds of bodies about the vessel."

"But I saw no more."

"Did you hear of any person refusing to enter the lifeboats?"

"I heard persons say some people refused."

"Did you see anyone refuse to enter the lifeboats?"

"No, sir."

"Did you see any man, woman or child prevented from entering a lifeboat?"

"No sir."

"Did you see any dead?"

"No, sir."

"Did you see any who got into the water or see any in the water?"

"No, sir," said Boxhall. "If I had seen any in the water I should have taken them in the boat."

SEA WAS CALM.

Boxhall said the sea was calm, and in his opinion each of the lifeboats could have taken its full complement. How many he had in his own boat he never knew.

Senator Newlands returned to the subject of the icebergs.

"You say you could not see the great icebergs when in the sea boat, but you could hear the ice lapping against them."

"Yes, sir. It was as the ship and we could see nothing in the sea boats."

With Boxhall on the stand the hearing adjourned at 4:30 o'clock until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

"SOMETHING DOING EVERY MINUTE."

CHOICE BUSINESS LOTS, $500.

CHOICE RESIDENCE LOTS, $300.

Mr. Business Man! Mr. Investor! Do not overlook this opportunity. Owensmouth is being built just where it is needed. Business demanded a town. HERE as a shipping and trading point for the hundreds of inhabitants in this locality and the THOUSANDS more SOON TO COME.

Last year thousands of dollars of grain were shipped from this point. Surrounding is a great body of the richest land subdivided and partially sold in small tracts. Fruit, produce and vegetables will pour into the new town for shipment. Hundreds of men will be employed on the immense acreage planted to sugar beets. Here's business prosperity for the new town.

GREAT CHANCE FOR PROFITS.

The extension of the $500,000 boulevard and the new electric road to Owensmouth are fast nearing completion. Many buildings are planned. Some already under construction. This work means rapidly increasing values. Resales will be made at enormous profits. NOW is the time to buy. Get in ahead of the improvements. Town lots have made fortunes for many.

Do not hesitate—the terms are easy. Come in and get details. Visit Owensmouth.

HOW TO GO—Autos leave office at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. for Owensmouth, or take Van Nuys-Lankershim car at P. E. Hill st. depot to Eighth st. and Sherman Way. Owensmouth auto stage meets every car.

FOR SALE— Acreage for Subdivision.

FOR SALE—266 ACRES OF THE CHOICEST land in the Inglewood-Hawthorne district. Price $300 per acre. This land immediately adjoins property that is being sold at retail for over $1,000 per acre, and values are going up every day. By the time this property would be in readiness to offer at retail, we could be able to sell the property acre for $1,000, and get as high as $1,200 and $1,500 for the best. There is no place in Los Angeles county where activity in acreage is more pronounced than in Inglewood and Hawthorne district, and this particular property is unusually fine, due to the character of soil. Water can be obtained from the Inglewood Water Company, which pays for the expense of drilling wells and installing the complete equipment. We are only able to offer this property at this price for a few days.

Lot Subdivision Syndicate Profits Earn a Most Valuable Home Place for You.

Here in Los Angeles where the population is increasing continuously there is constantly added value to bare lands, and the transforming of them into beautiful bungalow districts is always highly profitable when the right locations are made.

Subdivision syndicates are usually handled on a private basis, but a public syndicate in which actual home makers and investors both mutually participate has long since been proven by us as the most satisfactory to all concerned.

You ought to make money, and you can do so.

But you must begin right.

There are all kinds of depots on the road to success; just use a little horse sense and get your ticket for the right destination.

Are you going to go along, hoping some day you will have a little foothill spot of an acre or half-acre; and as each day goes by and thousands of land buyers arrive here, your hope grows more faint, because each arrival helps to increase price of land.

Read our booklet, anyhow. It is so different.

Of course you want that acre in the foothills.

Of course you want it in the protected foothills—up above the fog and the damp night chill—where the spring, summer and autumn evenings can be spent on the front porch. Ah, there is not much angel food like that left hereabouts and you know it.

We have a four-hundred-acre townsite within 11 miles of the Chamber of Commerce Bldg. Over 1200 feet above the sea. Looks out through a pass in the hills, across Glendale and Los Angeles to Catalina Islands. Better than Altadena, equaling or surpassing Redlands, and you haven't probably ever seen it.

We can show you how your profits in this, our tenth public syndicate, will earn you an acre, a half-acre or a 66-foot villa plot, and just where your start lies for profits.

FOR SALE—

BETTER THAN A BANK DEPOSIT.

You ask what can possibly be better than a bank deposit? Our answer is LAND—good, rich, fertile land, well located and with plenty of water. Banks sometimes fail—land never. Begin right now and make your first deposit in a first payment on one of our little irrigated farms in FAIRMEAD COLONY on our yearly payment plan.

FAIRMEAD COLONY

Is a part of the famous Sharon ranch, well known on account of its fertility. It is located on the Southern Pacific R.R. in Madera county and in the very heart of the GREAT SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY.

The FAIRMEAD soil is a deep rich sandy loam, unexcelled for ALFALFA, FRUIT, GRAPES AND VEGETABLES. It is in a district famous for dairying and hog raising. We have more irrigation water than can possibly be used. 1200 acres have already been sold. A new town, FAIRMEAD, is building on the land.

EXCURSION.

Join our excursion to FAIRMEAD and see for yourself. The more thorough your examination the better we will be pleased.

VAN NUYS-LANKERSHIM LANDS.

CHOICE

5, 10, 20 AND 40-ACRE

TRACTS.

Do not delay. Over 800 shrewd business men, professional men and ranchers have already bought. Make your decision on their judgment and foresight. Only a limited amount of good, close-in land remains. Soon it will be all gone. Now is the time to act. Set out your land to fruit or vegetables. This splendid sub-irrigated soil means fortune. On adjoining lands peaches and apricots are netting $250 per acre annually. Here's your chance for profits—Here's your chance to own a money-making home right at the gates of the city. Some choice subdivisions have just been opened for sale—$225 an acre and up, on easy terms. You must act quick. Come out and see for yourself.

Our machines make several trips daily.

$450 AND UP PER ACRE

A PART OF THE "LUCKY"
BALDWIN LANDS.

It is worth your while to thoroughly investigate the many advantages which our land presents. We know the soil is absolutely the best in the country. We know there is no hardpan within 50 feet. We know the water supply is abundant and ample for all time.

Permit us to demonstrate these facts to you.

Grow oranges, lemons or walnuts. Raise alfalfa, potatoes and all vegetables. Chickens thrive wonderfully well in this valley, owing to the dryness of the climate.

The only 5 acres near the big city which will have gas and electricity, and the proposed new electric car line will pass the Rancho.

Both the Salt Lake and Southern Pacific now serving the land.

20-minute ride, 3c fare, by hook.

Details of His Correspondence With Mr. Taft.

Friends of President Want Him to Publish It All.

BY SUMNER CURTIS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Gradually the details of correspondence between President Taft and former President Roosevelt, which friends of the Executive are urging him to make public in answer to the attacks by the latter, are coming to light.

That many persons have seen letters in which Col. Roosevelt advised his successor to work in harmony with "Uncle Joe," inasmuch as the latter's re-election as Speaker was practically assured, has become common knowledge around Washington. It is because of their knowledge of such letters that the friends of the President have shown indignation over the recent Roosevelt charges that the President supported Cannon and his crowd when he might have thrown his influence to the progressives and defeated the "Old Guard."

For the same, or substantially the same reason the President's friends are indignant over the linking of the names of Taft and Lorimer by the former President. There is autograph correspondence showing that Col. Roosevelt was fully posted as to the influence the President was exerting to have Lorimer unseated.

The uppermost question of the hour is whether or not President Taft will follow the insistent advice of his friends and political managers and give full publicity to the correspondence that passed between him and his predecessor in the days of their friendship.

Among other Taft-Roosevelt correspondence in which the politicians are much interested at this stage is some bearing on Canadian reciprocity, and some relating to the composition of the Taft Cabinet.

In his campaign for the Presidential nomination this year, Col. Roosevelt had opposed the reciprocity policy that the Taft administration sought to carry out. He had declared that originally he favored reciprocity, but that study convinced him that it was the wrong policy. Taft folk have charged that his change of front was due to the fact that he found reciprocity was not popular with the farmers, and in this connection they point out that in letters to the President, written before he had any idea of being a candidate, Col. Roosevelt declared that he knew the policy might be unpopular, but that the brave thing was to do what was right, regardless of consequences.

MASSACHUSETTS SITUATION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON, April 22.—The political situation in Massachusetts is becoming animated and interest in the Presidential primaries on April 30 is growing daily. Two Republican Presidential aspirants are coming to the State this week and representatives of two of the Democratic candidates are at work.

The entire Massachusetts Congressional delegation, Republican and Democratic, except Senator Lodge, has come to take a hand in the contest.

President Taft will make three speeches Thursday and Col. Roosevelt will be here Saturday. La Follette supporters are active.

Congressman Henry of Texas, chairman of the Committee on Rules, with Senators Williams of Mississippi and Gore of Oklahoma, will speak here for Woodrow Wilson, while Congressman Curley, in charge of Speaker Clark's campaign, expects to have several national orators in the State before the end of the week.

No Harmon or Underwood headquarters have been opened, but Congressman Peters has identified himself with the latter movement.

STEEL IN RAILWAYS.

A MAJORITY CONTROL.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, through stock ownership and places on the directorates of the great railroad systems of the United States, have a controlling voice in nearly 55 per cent. of the railroads of the country, according to the statistical study prepared for the Stanley Steel Trust Investigating Committee of the House. The aggregate value of the railroads is fixed at approximately $18,000,000,000, and of that steel corporation affiliations are said to control more than $10,000,000,000. The twenty-three directors of the steel corporation sit on boards of directors of banks, insurance companies, express companies and various other industrial corporations with an aggregate captalization of $7,388,416.

THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

M'LAUGHLIN PRAISES IT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, April 22.—The semi-annual report of State Labor Commissioner J. P. McLaughlin to Gov. Johnson, today, speaks favorably on the operation of the new eight-hour law for women and the new child labor laws. In prosecuting cases of violation of the law, McLaughlin says the great difficulty was to get women employees to testify. This difficulty, he says, was overcome when watchers were used. In the laundries, where many of these violation cases occurred, it has been found that after the women had been placed under the eight-hour system they turned out more and better work then previously.

"I AM A DEMOCRAT"—T. R.

FIGHTS WHEN HE FIGHTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GREENSBORO (N. C.) April 22.—If Col. Roosevelt gains the nomination for President, he will come to the South, he said today, in an effort to win it over. "I have the right to the support of every heir to the Jacksonian democracy," he said in his speech here. "I am fighting for the principles in which the great bulk of the people of the South believe and they are kept away from me only by a name. I am going to see to it that they are not kept away by a mere name. I shall fight so that they will vote the way they feel and when I fight, I fight." The colonel arrived at Asheville, N. C., early today in the rain, which continued most of the way to Greensboro. Despite the storm, he was met at a number of stations and made several brief speeches from his train. The rain had ceased when he reached Greensboro, and he delivered his speech from the veranda of an old southern mansion near the center of the city. After his speech Roosevelt was taken to the State Normal College, an institution for young women. His audience consisted of 700 girls and one man.

BOURNE DEFEATED.

Oregon Senator Loses to a Portland Merchant by Six Thousand—Other Primary Results.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) April 22.—Delayed returns from the direct primary election of last Friday do not alter the standing of candidates. Roosevelt was chosen as the Presidential nominee of Oregon Republicans by a majority of approximately 7000, while Woodrow Wilson received the Democratic indorsement by a margin of 1000 votes over Champ Clark. Many precincts in the mountains are still to be heard from, and a complete count probably will not be obtained for several days.

The vote on the Republican candidates for President, so far as reported, is:

The returns on the Democratic ticket are very incomplete, with Wilson far in the lead.

Ben Selling, a Portland merchant, defeated Senator Jonathan Bourne by 4000 votes, and Dr. Harry Lane is the undisputed Democratic nominee for that office, with a plurality of nearly 3000 over the other aspirants.

For Congress, First District, W. C. Hawley is the Republican nominee. The Democratic nominee has not been named.

In the Second District N. J. Sinnott defeated W. R. Ellis for the Republican nomination, while James H. Graham defeated Claud C. Covey, his Democratic opponent.

In the Third District A. W. Lafferty, incumbent, defeated U. G. Gantenbein, while M. G. Munly, the Democratic candidate, has no opposition.

WHAT LA FOLLETTE SEES.

He Finds That Wherever Roosevelt Wins He Carries a Lot of Reactionaries With Him.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—Senator La Follette commented today in part as follows on the Roosevelt vote in some of the western States:

"It is significant that in practically every State where Col. Roosevelt was the choice for Presidential candidate, reactionary candidates for other offices were victorious with him over their known progressive opponents."

In support of this fact the Senator instances the defeat of Senator Jonathan Bourne by Ben Selling in Oregon, the defeat in Nebraska of George W. Norris, insurgent leader of the national house, by Senator Norris Brown; the defeat in Illinois of Walter Clyde Jones by Gov. Deneen and of Hugh McGill by Lawrence Y. Sherman.

"Another significant fact," continues La Follette, "is that the Illinois State convention controlled by Roosevelt supporters, subsequently refused to adopt the initiative and referendum and suffrage planks, and indorsed the administration of President Taft while cheering Roosevelt.

"I am campaigning California because I feel that the people here are truly progressive, and that they will not support any candidate for President not fully committed to the principles of a progressive cause."

VAGRANT THRONG.

SAN DIEGO, April 22.—The police learned tonight that the body of Industrial Workers who were at San Juan Capistrano yesterday have advanced into this county and are now near Oceanside, about forty miles from this city. There has been no obstacle offered to their advance up to a late hour tonight. The guard of deputy constables was withdrawn from the county line recently, and if there is any effort to turn the Industrial Workers back it will be made by private citizens. There are rumors that a body of the latter is going to Oceanside tonight. The Industrial Workers are now said to be 150 strong

Land and Water.

LARGE ACREAGE ASKS AQUEDUCT SURPLUS.

APPROXIMATELY 35,000 acres of land in the San Fernando Valley was represented by a committee from that community who appeared before the Water Supply Committee of the City Council last night with a proposition in regard to securing a supply of water from the aqueduct surplus.

A communication representing the substance of the agreement reached by San Fernando people was presented. This stated that "We feel that we are highly favored in being allowed to participate in the gratifying results and that we should be and are willing to bear our part of the expense both of bringing in the water and of laying the mains and distributing system." The communication also expressed the willingness of the San Fernando territory to be taken into the city and to pay its just proportion of the bond indebtedness for the aqueduct, but that the people do not feel that they should be called upon to pay a bonus for water, but should pay for what water is used at a rate fixed by the board.

This communication was signed by John Burr as chairman and B. F. Wolff, F. M. Wright, B. H. Hille, E. L. DeRemer, F. A. Powell and H. C. Hubbard, as a committee representing the San Fernando people.

The discussion lasted until 10 o'clock, and brought out many interesting points in regard to the general project. Powell stated that the president of the Board of Trustees of San Fernando has said that it is his belief, and he thinks that of the citizens generally, that San Fernando should disincorporate and come into Los Angeles.

Chief Engineer Mulholland showed the disadvantages of dealing with the smaller municipal corporations existing within the valley and the advantages of all that territory coming into the city, so far as the water situation is concerned.

It was shown that the city's high-est water level will be 1463 feet and that the higher lands of the valley would have to pay a higher proportion for receiving the water than the low lands.

"We have definitely promised the United States government that we will not sell the aqueduct water at a profit," said Mulholland. "We can rightfully charge a rate that will pay the expenses of operation and maintenance and create a fund for the retirement of the bonds." He stated that the cost of installing the distributing system in the San Fernando Valley would be approximately $55 per acre, which would include a system of laterals for both domestic use and irrigation.

This would be chargeable to the land owners, and beside this it is estimated that a charge of about $10 per acre per year would be made for water service. One inch to seven and one-half is the average use of water within this district.

Several of the valley men urged that a fixed minimum rate be made and that a charge be made for all water used over a certain quantity. It was shown that owing to the sandy character of some of the lands some would require fully double the amount of irrigation used on other lands in the valley.

Craig stated that on his lands last year the cost of irrigation was more than $25 an acre, the water being raised 249 feet. On the Porter ranch a rate of 9 cents per inch per hour was paid.

Chief Engineer Mulholland stated that after investigating the cost of irrigation in seventy-four local districts the average was found to be $10.34 an acre per annum.

At the conclusion of the discussion the valley representatives were invited to be present at the meeting of the committee tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Meetings will be held at frequent intervals hereafter to discuss with the various localities the proposition of serving them with surplus water from the aqueduct.

SHORT HUENEME LINE ALLEGED OBJECT OF NEGOTIATIONS.

Road Constructed by Millionaire Rindge Several Years Ago Has Been Subject of Endless Speculation and a Report Now Current that It Is to Be Sold.

SANTA MONICA, April 22.—It was reported at the beach today that Mrs. May K. Rindge was in San Francisco today for the purpose of signing the papers, which transfer to the Western Pacific the rights of way and constructed railway known as the Hueneme, Malibu and Port Los Angeles.

This is the coast road, which extends along the beach from Coal, or Carbon Canyon, six miles above Santa Monica, for a distance of fifteen miles The road was built at the rate of five miles a year for three years, and then work stopped, except for surveys that carried it on to the Ventura county line.

Aside from surveying, nothing has been done in a construction way for three years. This road was started mysteriously by Mrs. Rindge soon after the death of her husband, Frederick Rindge, millionaire owner of the Malibu rancho. It has always been more or less of mystery, although never operated as a real railway. The equipment consists of a car improvised from an automobile, and the only use to which the line has ever been put was hauling the produce of the Malibu ranch from the storehouse to the Malibu wharf, and in carrying supplies from the wharf to the ranchhouse. During the six years since work was started on the road, rumors of many kinds have attacked it. Several of these were to the effect that it had been acquired by the Southern Pacific. Others were that Mrs. Rindge intended to build to Ventura via hueneme. Sometimes it has been a steam road, at others an electric line, and upon occasion it has been converted into a gasoline motor line.

Winter floods have washed away the bridges and the high tides have upon occasions, washed away sections of the road, where it hugged the beach. But in all cases nothing has been done beyond repairing the track and placing it again in the same condition as it was before storms and floods did damage. Recently it has been the unconfirmed belief that the Pacific Electric was to take it over and operate the road as a link in the all-coast trolley line from Santa Monica to Santa Barbara. When work was first started, the Southern Pacific brought operations to a stop by injunction proceedings which moved the workers from a point just above Port Los Angeles to the coast line owned by Mrs. Rindge, and known as the Malibu possessions.

BURIED AT SEA.

The fact that William F. Hoyt, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Hoyt of Third street, lost his life in the disaster that wrecked the Titanic was established beyond doubt today. They received a telegram from another son who had gone from Cleveland, O., to meet the Carpathia and the survivors. This telegram conveyed the information that William Hoyt had been picked up by a small boat that had been lowered from the Titanic. He died before the arrival of the Carpathia and his body was given burial at sea from the small boat. He had clung to a life raft or some floating object and when lifted into the boat was so thoroughly chilled by having spent so much time in the icy waters that he died in the presence of his rescuers. Mr. Hoyt was a guest at the Alexandria a few weeks ago.

IN CONDITION.

Although the road race course is being rapidly whipped into condition for the automobile races May 4, the course will not be open for practice until April 26. Several of the drivers who were trying the course today bumped into the strong arm of the law, but were permitted to go their way with nothing more serious than a reprimand. Speeding will not be permitted until April 26, and then only during the hours of early morning.

Life's Seamy Side.

TRIAL OF ALLENS IS ON TODAY.

To Be Called in Blood-stained Courtroom.

Difficulties in Empaneling the Jury Expected.

Men Want Hearing Where They Are All Known.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HILLSVILLE (Va.) April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The trial of the Allens for murdering Judge Massie and his court officers here, has been set to open tomorrow.

The work of impaneling a jury will take place in the courtroom in which the tragedy was enacted. No effort has been made to hide the marks of the bullets in the walls and the furniture. The plastering is still broken and there are traces of blood on the floor and on the bench on which Judge Massie sat the day he sentenced Floyd Allen to the penitentiary for a year, immediately preceding the shooting.

In deciding that the trial should be held on the scene of the crime, Judge Walter R. Staples was actuated more by the effect that the trials will have on the people of this section than any desire to favor the lawyers. The fact, too, that some of the members of the clan have expressed a desire to be tried where they are known, appealed to Judge Staples.

No one here believes for a moment that it will be possible to get a jury in the county where the Allens have been known and feared more than a century.

The clan dates back to Revolutionary days, when what is now Carroll was Montgomery. One of the members of the Montgomery county militia, who left his plow to march across the Blue Ridge to take part in the battle of Guilford Courthouse, N. C., was William Allen. As William Allen marched to battle he observed that the rolling land on the far side of the Gap was attractive. When the war was over he and one of his fellow soldiers settled there and so the Allens became established in the quarter which they have ruled with the arrogance of feudal barons.

Tradition says William Allen was a good soldier. He was destined to be the progenitor of many good soldiers.

Riverside.

COMMISSION FIGHT ENDED.

CORONA MAN VICTOR IN LITIGATION AT RIVERSIDE.

Wins Amount Asked and Defendant Is Also Compelled to Pay Costs—Man Who Planted First Arlington Orange Grove Dies at Ripe Old Age—News Briefs.

RIVERSIDE, April 22.—Senger E. French, a Corona real estate agent, was today successful in a suit brought to collect a $400 commission from E. C. Stratton. French negotiated the exchange of a 150-acre alfalfa ranch at Venaurt. Each property was vlued at $60,000. Stratton, the Ventura party to the deal, refused to pay his part of the commission and the suit followed. French won his costs as well as the commission. He was represented by W. S. Clayson and the defense by Lucius M. Fall.

PASSING OF PIONEER.

Clark Puffer, who planted the first orange grove in the Arlington Heights district, died yesterday at his home on Victoria avenue at the age of 78 years. He is succeeded by a widow and two sons. Funeral services will be held at the family residence at 10 a.m. tomorrow.

MILITIAMAN RESIGNS.

First Lieutenant H. O. Higgins, for many years a member of Co. M, Seventh Regiment, N.G.C., has tendered his resignation to Col. Schreiber. Higgins has long been known as the crack shot of Co. M, and has won many trophies for his company. A few weeks ago, while assisting the police in making an arrest at an Italian camp, his gun hand was temporarily paralyzed by a shot fromthe gun of an Italian who made his escape. The injury did not prove serious.

MAN OF PARTS STRICKEN.

Word has been received here of the death at Kingsburg, near Fresno, of Dr. Nazareth Alexandrian, who came to Riverside ten years ago from England, to make his home. He is survived by the widow, three sons, Vahram and arah Alexandrian, who are seniors in the Boys' High School, and Samuel Alexandrian of the University of Wisconsin, and a daughter, Mrs. C. P. Stone, of this city.

Dr. Alexandrian was a man of scholarly attainments as well as a physician of standing. He spoke fluently English, Armenian, Turkish and Greek, and was also a Latin scholar. He was born in Aintab, Turkey, and educated in Constantinople and London.

His death was due to heart failure, and was a great shock to his family and friends here.

UNDERGRADE CROSSING.

Work has finally been commenced on the last obstacle to the opening up of the Riverside-Rialto boulevard. Main street north of First, which is to be the outlet for this end of the highway, has been impassible because of the Southern Pacific Colton-Riverside line, which parallels First street. Temporary piling has been placed to support the track while a subway is constructed. The estimated cost of the improvement is about $8000, most of which was raised through assessment on the district plan.

STOCKTON MAN INDICTED.

NEWBURYPORT (Mass.) April 22.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] William E. Dorr of Stockton, Cal., was indicted today for the murder of George E. Marsh, a wealthy soap manufacturer of Lynn. Dorr is under arrest in California. Marsh's body, containing five bullet wounds, was found beside the highway in Lynn two weeks ago. The authorities learned that a man said to be Dorr had been seen in the vicinity of the Marsh residence prior to the tragedy.

NEW SCHOOLS ARE NEEDED.

Watts Becoming so Popular as a Residence Place That Present Facilities Are Wholly Inadequate.

WATTS, April 22.—Already the necessity for additional schoolroom is becoming apparent. The new school building, completed the past summer, and in which the first term of school is now being held, is already crowded The principal in charge of the school reports that there will be two additional teachers needed for the coming term, and the question of where they shall hold school is one that needs to be determined.

There is one room in the new building available, but the fact that two rooms will be needed is not so easily met. At the rate of increase in population it will be but a short time until another schoolhouse will have to be provided.

A hurried survey shows that in Watts at the present time there are at least twenty-five residences under process of construction. The class of houses being built indicate that a better class of houses are in demand in Watts, and it also shows that a class of people with means are looking toward Watts as a desirable suburban residence city. The fact that one can get from here to the center of Los Angeles in fifteen minutes is an attractive feature with those seeking to make their homes where a desirable car service is an object.

WOMAN'S BODY SENT EAST.

Remains of Woman Who Committed Suicide Will be Conveyed to St. Louis for Interment.

VENICE, April 22.—The body of Mrs. Mary E. Speuhler of No. 32 Florence avenue, who was drowned Saturday morning, will be sent to her old home in St. Louis, Mo., for burial.

Mrs. Speuhler's body was found on the sand under the pier at the foot of Lorelei avenue at 6 o'clock Saturday morning, being discovered by Samuel Monroe as he was going to his work, and he immediately notified Special Officer Frank Watson, who had it removed to the Kirkelie Pariors. The body was wrapped in a cape, the only covering on it, and evidently had not been in the water more than two hours. As there were no marks of any kind on the body, it is believed that the woman walked into the water while mentally unbalanced, for had she jumped from the pier, the officers' declare, there would have been bruises or cuts.

Identification of the body was made by Miss Evaline Speuhler, a daughter. She telephoned to the Venice police about 9 o'clock in the morning and asked if a woman wearing a long cape had been seen in Venice.

When informed about the discovery of the body, she went to the Kirkelie parlors and identified it as being that of her mother. She said that she missed her mother about 4 o'clock that morning and that she had been searching for her, believing that she had wandered off and would be back within a short time, and for this reason she did not notify the police of her absence. Miss Speuhler said that her mother had not been well for some time and had been grieving over the recent death of her husband. Since the wreck of the Titanic, she had read every paper giving an account of the horrors, and this, the daughter believed, had unbalanced her mind.

Mrs. Speuhler and daughter came to Venice recently from St. Louis, Mo. They were people of wealth and education and were prominent socially in their home city.

Bremen Has no Bodies.

NEW YORK, April 22.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] The steamer Bremen, in a wireless message to the Associated Press tonight repeated the information sent Sunday that she had passed wreckage and a great number of bodies in 42. north latitude and 49.2 west longitude. The message said the Bremen had no bodies on board.

CHEATS THE LAW FOR HER LOVER.

MAIDEN SAYS SHE'S A WOMAN SO THAT SHE MAY WED.

Parents Wrathy, but Have Not Decided to Prosecute, and Luncheroom Proprietor May Yet Receive Blessing—He's Understood to Own Arizona Mining Property.

Risking the displeasure of both the law and the bride's parents, Frank E. Ivy, 20 years old, and Miss Clara Connolly, aged 16 years, of No. 1214 East First street, eloped to Santa Ana in an automobile, yesterday. Without getting out of the machine they were married by Rev. C. H. Seccombe of the First Congregational Church.

In the marriage license the bride's age is given as 18 years. Wrathy over the marriage, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Connolly were undecided last night as to whether they would prosecute Ivy for falsely attesting to the girl's age.

Ivy, who is proprietor of the Salt Lake Lunchroom, at No. 1023 East First street, came from Tucson, Ariz., two months ago, just after being injured in a railroad accident on the Mexican Central Railroad, in which his left leg was severed below the knee. He purchased the lunchroom. It is understood that he has several valuable mining proper

Life-and-Death Paradox.

Chester Smith, attorney, committed suicide; Chester Smith, attorney, still lives, and is glad of it. There were "two of him." Chester Guy Smith, with offices at No. 129 West Second street, walked into a morgue to save post-mortem traveling expenses last Saturday night and shot himself. Chester Smith—no middle name—with offices at 316-317 International Bank building, walked to the telephone all day yesterday to assure his friends that he did not commit suicide, and walked to The Times office last night to ask that further assurance be given. In the city directory's list of nearly 3000 Los Angeles Smiths are five more named Chester.

URGES US T OEAT RAISINS.

Fresno Ready to Toss City a Ton Free Next Tuesday and Wants Five More Consumed Here.

Representatives of the Fresno Chamber of Commerce came to the city yesterday asking Los Angeles people to eat five tons of raisins a week from today. That will be raisin day.

The last raisin crop was the biggest ever produced in the San Joaquin Valley. There is a large residue of the 1911 crop and to boost the industry and start the growers with a clean slate, the fourth raisin day, which will be observed in every State in the Union, is expected to deplete the reserve stocks.

This year, raisin day will feature an "automobile raisin shower," here if S. Levy and E. A. Berg, the representatives of the Fresno chamber, complete their plans for a large parade. The occupants of the autos are to toss 2000 bags of raisins to the populace. Levy and Berg will interview the civic organizations today in an effort to get their co-operation. The Fresno chamber will donate the raisins—a ton of them—but expects the local organizations to donate the automobiles and the people furnish the enthusiasm.

Many of the large provision and grocery stores have agreed to boost raisin day by placing in their windows displays especially low priced. Recipes for the conversion of the ordinary dried grapes into toothsome delicacies will also be provided by the big stores.

"Over one hundred railroads throughout the country have promised to boost raisin day for featuring raisin dishes in the dining-car menus," said Berg. In all the large cities of the country the big provision dealers will urge the observance of the day."

MAY DISSOLVE "TRUST."

The result of an investigation conducted by Dist.-Atty. McCormack in relation to the operations of what is known as the "bean trust," is being prepared to be forwarded to Washington. If, in the opinion of the Attorney-General the organization is violating the anti-trust- laws, it is understood there will be a reorganization of the bean growers.

NEW POSTAL STATION.

Bids are being received by Postmaster W. H. Harrison, for the renting of quarters suitable for a substation at the corner of Third street and Western avenue. What is known as a contract station has been in operation there for some months, but the growth of the business has been such that a larger place must be secured. Originally three carriers disposed of the mail at that point. It is now necessary to have six.

GOES TO WILDS AFTER PLANTS.

Naturalist Muir Back from Tropical Jungles.

Many Thousand Miles Alone, Finds What Seeks.

Los Angeles Will Be His Home Hereafter.

John Muir, California's world-famous naturalist, explorer and author, arrived in this city yesterday from New York after a year's successful trip of investigation in the jungles and forests of South America and Africa in the interest of science and natural history.

The noted traveler was welcomed at La Grande station by his daughter, Mrs. B. A. Funk of No. 233 Formosa avenue, Hollywood, where he will make his home in the future.

John Muir.

Noted naturalist and author, just returned from a year's trip to South America and Africa. He will make Los Angeles his home. He made a thirteen-hundred-mile trip in South Africa to look up one plant.

He celebrated his seventy-fourth birthday anniversary Sunday evening with a party arranged in his honor by Mr. and Mrs. Funk.

The year's journey through foreign lands was made by Muir for the specific purpose of studying and familiarizing himself with three rare species of tree and plant life in South America and Africa. He traveled 25,000 miles, alone a greater part of the time, through wild and desolate regions inhabited by uncivilized tribes, and infested by fierce animals and deadly reptiles.

He left New York a year ago and went by steamer to the mouth of the Amazon. He sailed up the great river to the town of Manaos, 1000 miles inland, and in the heart of one of the greatest wild forests on earth. After a stay of three weeks, in which time he studied several rare kinds of trees and plants and became acquainted with the topography of the country, he sailed down the Amazon to Para, from which port he boarded a steamer for Rio Janeiro. After a short stay in Santos, one of the largest coffee-shipping ports in the world, he traveled by rail 400 miles inland in search of the Araucaria brasiliensis, a tree which grows and thrives in the forests of Brazil. He discovered hundreds of peculiar-shaped specimens in the mountains, and passed several weeks in studying and sketching them.

IN A QUEER FOREST.

The Araucaria brasiliensis came into the forest millions of years ago and is one of the oldest trees known to naturalists.

Muir journeyed back to the coast and went to Buenos Ayres, from which place he took a train across the Andes to Chile, arriving at Santiago. After a short rest he went inland 500 miles to the west side of the Andes in quest of the tree known as the Araucaria imbricata. He says he found here

ENTHUSIASM FOR TAFT IN A GREAT MEETING.

Opening of Campaign for the President's Renomination Attracts Large Attendance, and the Speakers Are Cheered as Their Telling Points Strike Home—Many Ladies Show Keen Interest in the Good Cause.

CHEERS and enthusiasm marked the opening of the campaign for President Taft's renomination last night in the Auditorium, and, of the large crowd in attendance, all stayed until the end, although, with the long list of speakers, that end did not come until 11 o'clock. Hon. Samuel M. Shortridge, the last speaker, was repeatedly interrupted by cheers for the telling points that his audience keenly appreciated. There were many women in the audience, and they were as deeply interested as were the men.

From the moment that Shortridge declared his principles—"I am a Republican, with no adjective before or after it"—he had that throng of Republican enthusiasts for Taft with him with all their ears, listening to every ward, laughing with him, feeling deeply with him. He was there to see that the Republican party should win a victory in November, he said, and it would triumph when its banner was borne by a big-hearted, true, loyal man, a Republican from principle and not for ambition. "That man," said the speaker, "is William Howard Taft," and the audience cheered him to the echo. In fact, it was cheers all the rest of the speech.

"I am not here to arraign the Democratic party," Shortridge went on; "on the contrary, I love it—love it as Christians are taught to do—love it because we should love our enemies. At present the Democrats are hopeful—hopeful of the flesh-pots of public office. They imagine that they are going to annex the next President." Here he was interrupted by a voice from the depths of a dark gallery. It never feazed him. "As I live, if there isn't an I Won't Work," he said; "I thought they were all in San Diego." When the laughter had subsided he went on to show that the reason the Democrats are hopeful was because they always hope when there was dissension in the Republican ranks.

RUINOUS OLD IDEAS.

He derided the so-called "progressives" who are putting forward the principles that brought ruin to the nations that had adopted them over 2000 years ago, as if they were something new. He ridiculed the idea that a great republic like the United States, with its enormous population, should pattern itself on Athens, which at its greatest never had more than 35,000 population. He spoke of the Constitution that covers this country, as he said, like a canopy, and told how it had grown, how it had brought the nation from weakness to strength, from poverty to wealth, and how it was firmly defended by President Taft.

Referring rapidly to the friendship that Taft had shown for the city of Los Angeles and for Southern California, and drawing a picture of his evidences of friendship for stricken San Francisco when he was Secretary of War, he went on to discuss the tariff, and described how, through the work of Senator Flint, Southern California was given a tariff on oranges and on lemons. "And who was the man in the White House who signed the bill? He was the President of the United States then, now and to be, William H. Taft. [Cheers.]

"I think the man or woman who has no gratitude in his or her heart is lower than the beast of the field," the speaker went on, "and this State will show herself odiously ungrateful if she shows herself unappreciative of the greatest friend we ever had—a man whom I hold myself ready to defend against all the wild-eyed insurgents ever born in this or any other State—William Howard Taft."

THE PRETENDER.

He laid bare the pretensions of Roosevelt, showed that he has been on all sides of every question, had been for everything and against everything, had denounced "malefactors of great wealth," had then accepted financial favors from the same "malefactors," and was now being backed by the head of the steel trust. For seven and a half years, the speaker said, the country had been uneasy and it was not completely calm again until the "meteor" had

NEW ANGLE TO QUEER TANGLE.

Bank Thief Clears Brother, Who'll Help Him.

Third Brother, Who Jailed Both, to Rescue.

Former Employer of Teller Scouts "Exoneration."

An angle no less remarkable than its predecessors presented itself yesterday in the strange tangle of the three Level brothers, one of whom robbed the All Night and Day Bank, of which he was a teller, of $5000, was robbed himself of the boodle by the brother to whom he entrusted it, after which a third brother stepped in and landed them both in jail.

Following their arraignment in Police Judge Williams's court yesterday, Merrill Level, the ex-teller, made a statement in which he exonerated his brother and alleged accomplice, Ellis Level. Almost simultaneously he remarked that the wife of Ellis is shortly to fall heir to $4000, which the younger brother has agreed to use to help Merrill out of the scrape.

"I am not mad at Ellis now, because it was not my money he stole," he said. "Besides, he says he was going to pay me back. I took the money and at the time Ellis did not know it was stolen funds."

W. H. Joyce, vice-president of the bank, declares that Ellis Level, the younger brother, is as guilty as the teller himself.

"The younger brother is as guilty as the man who formerly worked for us," said Joyce when told yesterday of the exoneration by Merrill Level of his brother. "Merrill had his brother come to the bank and he passed him the package of money. Ellis knew it was stolen money and fled with all of it. That is why he stole it from the original thief. It is a strong probability that Merrill wants Ellis to go free so that he can get hold of his wife's legacy and help him out of his present scrape."

The bank official was told that the former teller had declared to the police that his peculations with the bank's funds had extended over a period of a year. At this statement Joyce laughed.

"That would have been impossible," said Joyce. "The teller's cash and accounts are counted and balanced at the end of each week. A penny would have been missed. It is likely that the brothers have a part of the stolen money still hidden, and want to make sure that they can lay their hands on it. Merrill himself says that the bank always checked up on mistakes, and that if there is a loss at the end of the day the teller is responsible. If he could take money freely how could we check up on our customer's mistakes? His story does not hang together well."

In the meantime the other brother, Patrolman John Level, is doing what he can for the brothers that he helped land behind the bars. He went with them when they were arraigned in court and said that now that he had done his duty he would do as much as he could to help them out of their trouble. He expressed sympathy for Merrill, but had little to say in favor of Ellis. It is known that the policeman gave out of his own small supply of money to help Mrs. Merrill Level buy food while her husband was chasing his brother across the continent to recover the money that had been stolen from him after he had robbed the bank.

"I will do what I can for Merrill," said John. "I feel sorry for him. He had always been a good boy until this happened. Besides he has a wife and two children, one of them a baby. I did my duty when I helped arrest them, but now that the law has them and is taking its course I intend to help them in every way I can. Blood is thicker than water, and I do not want to see either one of them go to the penitentiary. I think that both of them are suffering—their wives are suffering, that is sure. I have had little to do with either Merrill or Ellis since we have been in Los Angeles. In fact, I have never been in Merrill's home and never went to see Ellis at all.

Merrill declared yesterday that when Ellis stole the money from him that he believed he really intended to make it good.

The two prisoners were held under $2000 bail. They were unable to furnish it, and were taken back to jail. Their preliminary examinations were set for next Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Three Brothers.

Members of the strange Level family. Merrill Level, a teller of the All Night and Day Bank, stole $5000 of the institution's money; Ellis Level received it and skipped out with Merrill in pursuit; John Level pursued them both and landed them in jail.

City Hall Politics.

MAYOR'S MAN FRIDAY PUBLIC SERVICE HEAD.

THE Mayor yesterday selected Frank Henderson, his private secretary, to be president of the Public Service Commission. If the name goes in to the City Council today—and the Mayor was prepared to send it yesterday evening—Councilmen, although frankly condemning the appointment, admitted that they will vote to confirm it. They like Henderson personally, but objected to passing over the older members of the commission.

"Still, out of respect to the Mayor, I guess there won't be any delay," said one of them.

Some of the inside secrets of the upheaval in the commission are beginning to come to light. For instance, the resignation of Johnson, telegraphed from New York last Saturday just as he was about to sail for Europe on a five-months' leave of absence, was really asked for by the Mayor owing to a slip-up in the commission. The wires had all been laid for the election of Wellborn to the presidency, it appears, although he is a new man on the commission and absolutely unacquainted with the technical facts that a member who is president has to know. It was thought that Davidson, another member, when he found that Johnson, who was supporting Davidson for president, had resigned, would come over to Wellborn, but Davidson jumped the traces and refused to be handled in that manner to further the ends of the so-called Good Government machine. He came out for former Senator Del Valle, the member of the commission in longest service. That left the commission in as much of a deadlock as it was before the resignation of Kays and Johnson.

As the commission could not organize tomorrow, although this was a consummation the Mayor was exceedingly desirous of bringing about, he decided on Henderson's name. Henderson is secretary of the City Club and a figure in the Good Government organization's affairs. He now receives a salary of $2400 a year as Mayor's secretary. The Mayor, by naming him, would give him a place worth $600 a year more and would absolutely control the political fortunes of the aqueduct, with three members of the Good Government machine there to do his bidding.

OWN PYRE BUILT BY BABY HANDS.

Tot Is Cremated Playing at "Indian Campfire."

Pinned Under Big Bookcase Trying to Escape.

Home Destroyed; Family Is Frantic With Grief.

Pinned under a bookcase which he had upset upon himself in his frantic efforts to escape from the room, which was all on fire, Simon Dubnoff, 3 years of age, was burned to death late yesterday afternoon. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dubnoff, No. 4614 Lockwood avenue. Simon's twin brother, Jacob, was saved by Mrs. Henry Wenz, who lives next door. Henry Austin, another neighbor, was painfully, but not seriously burned in his efforts to rescue Simon after Mrs. Wenz had failed.

The boys were playing by themselves in the house when the fire occured. Its cause is not known, but it is thought they started it by playing with matches. They were playing Indians, dressed in new redskin attire recently purchased for them by their father, a wholesale produce merchant. It is thought the boys may have started a camp fire in the middle of the room and that it got beyond their control. Simon, not able to reach the door, attempted to climb out the window, and pulled the bookcase over upon himself.

His screams attracted the attention of Mrs. Wenz. Rushing into the house, she seized Jacob and hurried him out into the yard. Then she tried to enter the blazing room. One door was locked and when she reached another, Simon's cries had ceased. When the door was opened, a cloud of smoke and flame drove her back. Austin came to her assistance and opened a door leading into the bedroom. A wall of flame struck him in the face, blistering the flesh and burning off his eyebrows, eyelashes and mustache.

When the fire department arrived the house, which was a one-story structure, was enveloped in flames. Hose had to be laid for more than 1500 feet before water could be played upon the spot where it was thought the baby's remains lay. They were finally found in what had been a corner of the room, lying under the charred and overturned bookcase. A pile of books and magazines helped to protect the tiny body from the flames, but it was still terribly burned. Death was evidently mercifully quick.

Dubnoff was a near-by blacksmith shop, having one of his horses shod when the fire broke out. His wife was downtown shopping. The father had left the boys playing in Mrs. Wenz's yard. When he returned he was so terribly affected that a physician had to be summoned to quiet him. When the mother returned, she became hysterical. Her cries aroused the husband who had been sleeping, and for an hour it was impossible to quiet either. Jacob, the remaining twin, was no less grief-stricken. Neighbors took care of the family last night.

CHINESE ACCEPT OUR INVITATION.

FIFTY ORIENTAL MERCHANTS TO VISIT UNITED STATES.

Coming to Cement Trade Relations Between New Republic and America and Hope to Secure Governmental Recognition — Two Years to Organize Properly.

Fifty of the leading merchants of the new Chinese republic will visit America in response to an invitation of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the Pacific Coast, delivered to the consolidated Chambers of Commerce of China by Capt. Robert Dollar, head of the Dollar Steamship Company, just returned from a six-months' visit in the Orient.

In September of 1910 a body of Los Angeles business men made the trip to China to advance trade relations with that country, and the idea of inviting the Chinese to make a similar visit to this country was evolved.

After the abdication of the Emperor, Capt. Dollar gave a banquet at the Palace Hotel, Shanghai, and there he formally presented the invitation of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the Pacific Coast. This invitation was accepted formally the following day, the date to be decided on later. Capt. Dollar came to Los Angeles Saturday and yesterday told of the success of his mission.

When Capt. Dollar departed from Shanghai he received the surprise of his life, he says, for the streets were filled with people and a regiment of soldiers was lined up with the members of the Chamber of Commerce and many of the principal merchants of that city to honor the bearer of the invitation.

At Tientsin a large hall was filled by representative business men to hear Capt. Dollar speak and as a mark of respect the entire audience remained standing during the address. Similar experiences were met at Hankow, Hongkong and Canton.

Capt. Dollar said that he considers the republic to be firmly established and that the very best man have been selected for the heads of the departments and for places of importance in the establishment of the new order.

The recognition of the new republic at the earliest diplomatic moment is urged by the Chinese organizations, and they ask that the Coast Chambers of Commerce recommend this action to the government.

Public Service: City Hall, Courts.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

City Attorney Shenk has been notified that the Home Telephone Company will ask the United States Supreme Court to advance the rate case hearing on the calendar.

Oil questions in conpection with disused derricks and tanks and the application for a permit for a pipeline pumping station are likely to make trouble in the City Council.

F. W. Connon charges the Civil Service Commission with unfair methods of marking for experience.

One of the last claims against the estate of the late E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin was compromised for $1500 yesterday and the hopes of a woman of getting the $50,000 promised her by the turfman were shattered.

TO ASK FEDERAL COURT TO HURRY.

HOME TELEPHONE COMPANY IS AFTER EARLY DECISION.

City Attorney Gets Notice that Supreme United States Tribunal Will Be Requested to Advance Rate Case on Calendar at Washington Hearing Next Month.

City Attorney Shenk yesterday received notice that the Home Telephone Company would, in Washington next month, move that the cause of the Home Telephone Company against the city be advanced on the calendar of the Supreme Court of the United States. Its ground for the motion will be simply that the question involved is one of the jurisdiction of the court.

"I do not know whether it will be necessary for any representative of the city to be present," said the City Attorney, "but I regard this case as one of the most important that has been brought so far."

In this case the Home company sued to prevent the Board of Public Utilities from fixing its rates. In the lower Federal Court Judge Wellborn sustained the contention of City Attorney Shenk that the United States courts had no jurisdiction, that it was a matter for State tribunals. Judge Wellborn dismissed the action. It is from this order that the telephone company appealed to the United States Supreme Court.

"The action is one of great interest all over the United States, as the decision on this point will be of great importance and will govern decisions by the lower Federal courts all over the country," Shenk explained.

OIL STIRS TROUBLE.

PIPE LINE OPPOSED.

Oil questions are likely to cause some turmoil in the City Council during the next few weeks, as a strong protest was filed yesterday against the proposed establishment of a station and tankage on the San Fernando road by the General Pipe Line Company, and another petition asks that unused derricks and tanks in the oil districts in the city be removed. The people who protest against the pipe line station say they have just been annexed to Los Angeles and voted for annexation to protect themselves against industrial plants in a residential section.

CITY PAYS TAXES.

INYO COUNTY'S PREDICAMENT.

That the city shall pay $5089 for second installment of taxes now due in Inyo county on the 30,000 acres of land the city owns there was agreed to by a majority of the Finance Committee yesterday afternoon to report today to the City Council. These taxes are paid under protest, as it is held that they are unconstitutional. At the same time, City Attorney Shenk and Special Counsel Matthews pointed out, the city gets police protection from Inyo county and owns about a fifth of the available land there, so if it does not pay taxes, the county will be in a bad way. Chairman Whitten, however, thinks that there should be a test case.

SAYS NO SQUARE DEAL.

CIVIL SERVICE CHARGES.

F. W. Connon asks the City Council, in a petition filed yesterday, to have the methods of the Civil Service Commission as to ratings on "experience" investigated, and encloses a check for $25 to pay the expenses of the re-examination. He was first appointed an emergency inspector in May, 1911, in the street department. Three times since then he has been examined and each time passed well except in the rating for experience, where he was never given the 75 per cent. required, although he received letters from his superior officers commending his work. On a re-examination, the Civil Service Commission changed his rating, but this came too late, and several candidates had been placed ahead of him on the eligible list. He thinks he has not been given a square deal.

TO SELL CITY HALL.

ORDINANCE IS PREPARED.

City Attorney Shenk has prepared the resolution of intention to sell the present City Hall property and inviting bids and it will be submitted to the City Council this morning. Those opposed to it are expected to make their last stand in an effort to sidetrack it, as Councilman Andrews will be absent, owing to the bereavement in his family. He has been one of the most earnest advocates of the sale.

The ordinance ordering the submission of the special questions to the people at an election on May 21 is also expected to come up. It has been prepared.

Councilman Is Bereaved.

Resolutions of condolence with Councilman Andrews will be adopted by the City Council today. His daughter, Miss Jesselyn Andrews, died on Sunday evening.

MISS GOULD'S VISIT.

WILL REMEMBER HARBOR.

"I shall always have a personal interest in your harbor now," was the last thing Miss Helen Gould told the secretary of the Harbor Commission after her visit of inspection to the harbor yesterday morning. She saw the proposed site for the quarantine station, the Huntington concession, the inner harbor and the breakwater and was impressed with it all.

Miss Gould was the guest of Harbor Commissioners Richards and Maloy, and committees of the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. Upon arrival at San Pedro she was met by a local reception committee composed of Mmes. A. K. Maloy, R. G. Dupuy, M. L. Campbell and C. I. Adair, and taken on board the launch Peer. Officials of the Y.M.C.A. pointed out the necessity of a large branch of that association at the harbor for work among the thousands of sailors and immigrants that will arrive with the development of commerce through the port.

"She seized all the points with the eye of a keen business woman," the secretary said on his return to his office yesterday afternoon. He declared that it was a great advertisement for the harbor to have such a noted woman look over it and he thought the results would be of manifold benefit to Los Angeles.

Another Attorney, Maybe.

To relieve Special Counsel Hewitt of the Board of Public Utilities work, or not to relieve him—that is the question that confronts the Finance Committee of the Council. The question came up yesterday afternoon on the recommendation of the Board of Public Works that he give all his attention to the harbor development work. The committee thought an assistant might have to be appointed for the Utilities Board, so it referred the whole question to the Budget Committee—which is the Finance Committee.

Third-street Tunnel.

The recommendation of the Board of Public Works that $8200 be appropriated for a new pavement for the Third-street tunnel was referred by the Finance Committee yesterday to itself as a Budget Committee for further consideration, but Councilman Betkouski said he thought there was no need of it. "What do they want?" he asked. "Do they want to have a billiard table there? It seems to me the pavement is good enough as it is."

City Hall Brevities.

Without any aid from the budget, the Playgrounds Commission believes that, with the $7500 it still has on hand, it can go ahead and prepare the public playgrounds proposed for Exposition Park. It has found that the Park Commission can do most of the work and that this will save 25 per cent. of the estimated cost.

Chain-gangs are degrading, the Alembic (Socialist) Club declares in a communication to the City Council, so it wants to have the Police Commission ordered to do away with the chain-gang at once.

The Charter Revision Committee was allowed $600 to begin its work. In a statement to the Council its asks for $4000 more, as it says it will have spent $1000 by May 25, when the people are to elect freeholders to do the committee's work.

The Mayor, in a message to the Council, favors appropriating $12,500 for the making of maps of the wires and conduits in the streets belonging to the present electrical companies.

NO PROVISION FOR PROTEGE.

HOPES OF ONE-TIME PRODIGY GO A-GLIMMERING.

When She Was Ten, a Footlight Favorite, He Took Her from Stage, Promising Her Parents He Would Provide for Her—Didn't Keep His Promise, She Says.

The $50,000 fortune of Mrs. Zelda Sanders Aedo went glimmering yesterday when her claim against the estate of E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin was compromised in Judge Bordwell's court for $1500. This is the end of a romance which had its inception in 1894, when Zelda Sanders, a child of 10 years, was a footlight favorite.

Baldwin saw the child actress, became interested in her and laid before her parents a glittering proposition. He agreed to take the girl, provide her with fine clothing, educate her and when she reached the age of 21 give her $50,000. The condition was that she should leave the stage. The parents consented, and Zelda went to the home of Baldwin at Santa Anita and later to the Palace Hotel, San Francisco.

After the hotel was destroyed by fire Baldwin told Zelda he was unable to give her the $50,000, but stated he would provide for her in his will. Baldwin died in March, 1909, and it was found he had made no provision for the legacy to Zelda in his will. Her written claim for the amount was rejected by Executor Unruh, and suit was filed. It was dismissed yesterday after the compromise. A telegram was received from Col. I. Kowalsky objecting to the dismissal of the suit, and asking that the case be continued ten days, but as he is not an attorney of record the request was not complied with by the court.

Mrs. Aedo's claim is one of the last against the Baldwin estate, which is practically ready for distribution. After one or two cases involving property have been disposed of, the distribution will take place, the exact amount being estimated at more than $15,000,000.

CAUSE IS ROUNDABOUT.

EXPLOSION'S QUEER ORIGIN.

Holding that the electric current which leaked from the rails of the Los Angeles Railway Corporation and the Los Angeles Pacific Company, rusting the main of the Economic Gas Company, causing the gas to leak and permeate the earth, and when the earth was disturbed by the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, accumulating in the store of Tokumatsu Shinohara, resulting in an explosion when Shinohara lighted a cigarette, was not a result that should have been apprehended as probable, Judge Finlayson yesterday sustained the demurrers of the railway companies to the complaint of Shinohara in the suit which the latter brought against the four corporations for $10,850 damages.

Shinohara's store was at Bellevue avenue and New High street. The tracks of the companies are on the avenue, where also the Economic has a pipe and the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation a service pipe. It was set up that the fault originally which led to the explosion lay with the railway companies, which were negligent in permitting the electric current to leak. The latter contends that they could not have foreseen the result, and demurred to the complaint on the ground that it did not state a cause of action.

TRUST IS TERMINATED.

DAUGHTER GETS SECURITIES.

The trust provision in the will of George M. Vail of No. 1521 Magnolia avenue, who died last August, leaving an estate of $200,000, was terminated by Judge Rives yesterday when $15,000 in securities was turned over to his daughter, Mrs. Nellie Monroe Noble, on the petition of Attorney Young, who represented the estate.

Vail provided in his will that this sum should be held in trust by Mrs. Vail, the daughter to receive the income, but giving Mrs. Vail the power to turn the principal over to her daughter at any time she saw fit.

Vail was head of the Vail & Crane Company of Detroit, manufacturers of crackers, the company later going into the cracker trust. He came to Los Angeles and invested his money in real estate, realizing $50,000.

Mrs. Noble is president of the National Parent-Teacher Association and is prominent in the work here. At the death of her mother, Mrs. Juliette E. Vail, the estate, the income of which she has during life, will be divided between Mrs. Noble and her brother, John H. Vail.

FIGHTING FOR HOME.

HOLD PREMISES ON PROMISE.

Thomas and Mary Walt, who, according to their allegation, were given a $3500 home in Ellerslie Park tract, Pasadena, after years of faithful service in the home of Annie Brown and her daughter, Bettina Brown, brought suit against Howard Potter and S. J. Parsons, executors under the will of Bettina Brown to quiet title to the property. The case was tried before Judge Raker yesterday and continued.

The Walts, it seems, had worked for Annie Brown and some time before she died she promised that if they would stay with her she would give them a home. Mrs. Brown neglected to carry out the promise, but when her daughter, Bettina, agreed to see that they got the home if they worked for her, the Walts consented. Shortly before she died Bettina took the Walts to the place and placed them in possession, telling them that it was their home. As there was no written agreement, the executors sought to oust the old couple from the premises.

MUST STAND TRIAL.

WRIT DENIED HOTEL MAN.

The trial of Carl Stanley, of the Hotel Virginia, for selling liquor contrary to a Long Beach ordinance, will be held before Police Judge Hart on Thursday. The writ of prohibition asked for was argued yesterday and denied by Judge Conrey, who held that the constable who summoned the venire was within the jurisdiction of the city of Long Beach.

Stanley was arrested September 17 last, and when brought to trial the jury disagreed. A new trial was set, but a writ of prohibition was granted by Judge Conrey on the showing made that the venire had been summoned by the police. Police Judge Hart then gave the summons to a constable, and Stanley raised the point that the constable was not in the jurisdiction of the city.

ATTORNEY DEFENDANT.

SUIT INVOLVES BIG RANCH.

The suit of Abraham Thompson, an incompetent, by his guardian, against Attorney LeCompte Davis, to recover from him a 320-acre ranch in Tulare county, which he alleges Davis obtained by inducing Mrs. Thompson to turn the deed over to him on the representation that he would manage the place, was begun before Judge Hutton in Extra Sessions Ten yesterday.

This land, according to Thompson, is worth $20,000, and is now held by Davis under the deed. Davis says its value is about $10,000, and that he accepted the deed at Mrs. Thompson's desire and straightened out the affairs of the ranch, spending a large sum of money. When he took hold of the ranch, he says, it was losing for Mrs. Thompson nearly $1800 a year.

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM.

ROMANCE SHATTERED.

The elopement of John F. Baker and Miss Helen H. Welch to Santa Ana on the 15th inst. and their marriage there has turned out disastrously. The secret was discovered upon the return of Mr. and Mrs. Baker to this city and the couple were separated. A complaint was filed yesterday by J. A. Baker, the father, asking that the marriage be annulled.

The father charges in the complaint, that his son was only 18 at the time of the marriage, but falsely represented himself to be 21. He had no knowledge of the matrimonial step and on account of his son's youth, would not have given his consent.

TO TAKE CASE HIGHER.

COURT RULES ON DELL SUIT.

The city's demurrer to the $50,000 suit of Sidney Dell for services rendered in the Miner fill lease, was sustained by Judge Conrey yesterday. Dell will appeal to the Supreme Court.

Dell contended it was an implied contract and that his services had been rendered and accepted by the city. The latter argued that the city charter specifies how and in what manner it may make contracts for services and that implied contracts are not included.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

EXCHANGE BENCHES. Judge Conrey will exchange benches with Judge Bledsoe of San Bernardino today. The former is disqualified from sitting in a case. Judge Raker and Judge Zook are now the only outside judges presiding in Extra Sessions.

MAY PROCEED CRIMINALLY. In view of the evidence produced in the divorce suit of Mary E. Elliott before Judge Monroe, yesterday, Charles H. Elliott may be prosecuted criminally. The case was heard in chambers behind closed doors, Mrs. Elliott being granted the decree. Elliott was not present. The main evidence was given by Elliott's daughter.

IN THE INFERIOR COURTS.

Man Is Fined Ten Dollars for Trying to Pick Fight With Window. He Shattered the Pane With Fist.

A man may be excused for trying to pick a fight with everyone in sight if he is so drunk he's quarrelsome, but when he takes his peeve out on an innocent, unoffending window he is going a step too far.

Mike Mollon took that one-too-far step at First and Main streets, and Lieut. Spellman marshalled him before Police Judge Chambers.

"He tried to quarrel with everybody," declared Spellman. "When he couldn't find anyone he considered in his class he took a sideswipe at a window at No. 108 East First street. Still cracked—the window."

"No, sir, me fighting days is over," declared Mollon.

"Ten dollars or ten days," said the court. "Next."

She's Colored Amazon.

As a white hope Clark Adams made no hit with Rosa L. Young, a colored girl. Adams was arraigned before Judge Chambers yesterday, charged with having made advances.

Rosa responded to Adams' gallantry by hitting him in the head with a rock. Then she struck him with her fist, and knocked him down. She held him down until a patrolman arrived.

The court sentenced the youth to a fine of $20 or an equal number of days in the City Jail.

Works Board Is Blamed.

The Board of Public Works haled F. W. Ley before Judge Rose yesterday for having erected a shed costing $28 without having secured a permit from the Building Superintendent.

Ley asserted he called at the Building Superintendent's office, and was told he would need no permit.

Mark Cohn of that office confirmed this statement. He said that whereas the building ordinance requires that a permit be secured for a building costing $20 or over the Board of Public Works has made it a practice to waive permits for anything costing less than $30.

F. W. Gow is the complainant. Ley was dismissed.

SICKNESS JONAH OF THIS TRIAL.

DOCTOR COMES ON STRETCHER, LAWYER NOT AT ALL.

Victim of Alleged Illegal Operation Is in Serious Condition, While the Author of Her Condition Is Serving Ten-year Sentence in Penitentiary—Judge Vexed.

Apparently more dead than alive, Dr. C. P. V. Watson was take into Judge McCormick's department of the Superior Court on a stretcher yesterday for trial on a felony charge. On the affidavit of Le Compte Davis that Jud Rush, Watson's attorney, is seriously sick, the case was continued until May 6.

Judge McCormick announced that this is the last continuance of the case, which has been a source of annoyance to the court. Watson is charged with having performed a criminal operation upon Nina Menear, September 9, last.

On the day first set for trial, he was taken to the Hall of Justice in a wheel chair. He was apparently unable to go upstairs and the court held a brief session in the Sheriff's office.

On another occasion the court went to Watson's home at No. 1229 Fedora street, more for the purpose of learning his physical condition than anything else. Again it was necessary to issue a bench warrant for his appearance. It was certified to by a physician yesterday that Watson is too sick to undergo a court trial. An ambulance was dispatched for him, and with great difficulty six husky deputy sheriffs carried him into the courtroom. The court ordered that a physician examine Watson and report his exact condition.

The case seems replete with unfortunate seizures. Jud Rush was suddenly stricken at his home in South Pasadena early Sunday morning, suffering, according to the testimony of Dr. William M. Lewis, from a nervous breakdown. Nearly two years ago he had a similar collapse and it was nearly a month before he was able to appear in court.

Deputy District Attorney Veitch stated to the court yesterday that further delaying the case might deprive the State of the presence of Miss Menear, the alleged victim. Her health is uncertain, he declared.

Still another angle of this case is that Harry Atkinson, the man responsible for Miss Menear's visit to Dr. Watson, was convicted of another crime and sentenced to ten years in Folsom. The penalty in Watson's case, if he is convicted, is five years' imprisonment.

Watson, formerly practiced in Arizona. He has been in Los Angeles about fifteen years. He is a tall, heavy-set man. As he lay on the stretcher in the courtroom yesterday, the only part of him visible was his long white whiskers, cloths covering him with that exception from head to foot.

MAKE PLANS FOR PARAFFIN TEST

Hope to Encounter Standard's Prolific Sands.

Fullerton Company Prepares for Big Gusher.

Plans for drilling a deep test well in the West Side field at Coalinga, in the hope of reaching the prolific paraffin sand, first discovered in the Standard's No. 30 well, have begun to take definite shape and the backers of the enterprise are said to have expressed themselves as practically certain their efforts will result profitably.

At a recent meeting at Coalinga a number of companies operating on the west side agreed to lend their assistance, about twenty prominent oil men being present.

It was agreed that each of the west-side property holders would be assessed $4 an acre, with the understanding that if the test well proved successful the profits would be distributed according to the extent of the several assessments.

The project as outlined is not a general oil company, but will be made up of west side operators only. A block of land twenty acres in size has been contributed to the company for experimental purposes by A. P. May. It is located in section 14, 20-14, and believed by the oil men as the best location for the test well. About 15,-000 acres are included in the territory believed to contain a paraffin base. It is the opinion of the promoters that the prolific sand found below the green shale stratum in the east side field can also be reached in the west side field provided sufficient depth is obtained.

The deepest wells in the West Side field at present are about 2000 feet and the operators there believe oil in a paraffin base can be reached at about 3300 feet.

EXPECT GREAT RESULTS.

IN LIGHT OIL ZONE.

Development in the Fullerton oil field is steadily approaching the stage where some far reaching results may be expected. The Orange No. 3 is going through the sand and preparations have been made for handling a well of large production of light oil. Work has been started on the 1500 barrel tank and the gas trap has been installed ready for a gusher.

The Fullerton company has a crew of men at work on the brow of the hill where it will drill a line of wells in the near future. The company has not yet decided to confine its operations to the Fullerton field where the sand below the 400 level holds greater possibilities. The company is now preparing to deepen No. 4 and will follow the same policy in other holes.

The Petroleum company which is operating on the Gilman lease has had phenomenal success, striking very little hard formation. Its first well is down something like 2500 feet and it is expected that the sand will be encountered at about 2900 feet. The log indicates that oil may be found at a less depth as development proceeds south from the Almagamatel. Work was started on the Petroleum well on February 7 with a rotary. The 10-inch casing will be set in about another 100 feet.

This company has under control a lease about 2300 acres in the Fullerton field and if all its land proves productive it will rank among the big companies in the field. The holdings of the Petroleum extend from Santa Fe springs on the west to Placentia on the east. Much of its land will be leased up by developments of the Standard, Union and Industrial. H. M. Sefton of Los Angeles is the president of this company.

The company has 160 acres in section 24 and 445 acres in sections 3, 10 and 35. It has eighty acres near the Amalgamated and 320 acres north of the Standard's Sterns lease in the city of Fullerton. South of the Standard's Emory ranch, it has 320 acres and one lease of eighty acres.

The Standard is still trying to shut off the water in its Yriarte well with apparent success. The Sterns well is down over 3000 feet and will likely be brought into the sand shortly. The Emory is unloading machinery at the Emory ranch and will spud in a well in about ten days.

The Fisher well is down about 2500 feet and is making steady headway. Indications are said to be good. The Petroleum Company has passed through a bowlder formation which will mean progress for several months. The well is about 1450 feet deep.

The Amalgamated has again cemented No. 6 in hopes of shutting off water. No. 12 has spudded in. The company is now delivering its oil to the Anaheim Union Water Company's pipe line.

News Notes and Personals.

W. A. Gulberson, Jr., is in San Francisco in the interest of a number of oil properties under his supervision at present.

C. M. Pomeroy of Pasadena has been in Coalinga on business in connection with properties in which Pasadena people are interested.

The Sunset Railroad, operating from Bakersfield to the West Side oil fields, it is said, favors the plan for extending the name of the Monarch system to that of Maricopa. Maricopa interests are back of the plan in order to avoid confusion occasioned by the several name of the station.

Reports made by the Northern Pacific Company are that the work on the line near Maricopa shows a decided increase, water consumption having increased to a very large degree in the past few weeks.

On the West Side properties, according to Bakersfield advices, dynamiting has been successfully used in more than 100 holes since the first of the present year. By the scientific application of the powder the loss of oil wells has been greatly reduced in work of this character.

Improvements are being made to install a packer in the big gas well struck by the Standard Oil Company on section 16, 32-24, Sunset field. The property was recently leased to the Standard by Ben Sill of Bakersfield.

ANIMALS STICK IN OIL.

Prospector's Testimony Strongly Favors the Federal Government Against Railroad Company.

Charles Briscoe, an oil prospector, gave strong evidence for the government yesterday in the hearing before Special Commissioner Longley, involving the question of the validity of patents to 6000 acres of supposed agricultural land, in Kern county, held by the Southern Pacific Railroad Company.

The witness testified that in 1901 he had seen evidences of oil in hundreds of places, in the hills between McKittrick and Sunset, and that he had noticed similar evidences of oil in the Elk Hills about that time. He made a trip with Prof. J. Owen, a mineralogist in the employ of the Southern Pacific in 1902 ,and they found many indications of the presence of both oil and gas. He said the oil was so thick on the tar flats that in the summer time it was impossible for animals to cross the area without sticking.

S. P. Wible of Bakersfield had seen oil seepage in the Elk Hills, but he had never attempted to develop any of the land for either oil or gas, although he had prospected in that vicinity for some years, and in his opinion the territory is mineral in character. On cross-examination he could not tell whether the parties engaged in prospecting there were in the employ of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, or the Southern Pacific Company.

It is asserted by the defendants that the Southern Pacific Railroad Company is the corporation to which the land grants were made, but that the Southern Pacific Company is the operating company and attempted to develop oil for the use of the engines on the road.

Purity and Freshness Combined in Cottolene

Some cooking fats when first made may be pure but they don't stay fresh; being packed in tubs or loose-covered pails, they are exposed to air, dust and odors, and soon deteriorate. Other cooking fats make strong claims for freshness, but their purity is doubtful.

Cottolene is made from the purest vegetable-oil, amid cleanly surroundings, and is packed in a special air-tight pail which keeps it pure and fresh indefinitely. Air, dust, dirt or odors cannot come in contact with Cottolene and take away its purity and freshness.

Beautify Woodwork and Furniture
While You Are House Cleaning

"NUKOTE" The Modern Finish for Floors, Doors and Furniture

Have you cleaned house? Are you cleaning house now? Or are you just going to?
In any case, don't be satisfied with the job until you have restored to the woodwork its original brand-new appearance with this brilliant, durable finish, NUKOTE.

You probably don't realize how dulled the woodwork of your pretty home has become.
Nor how easy it is to restore its beauty.
With the right material the work of revarnishing becomes a positive pleasure.
But be sure it's the right material.
—That's NUKOTE.
And the right brush.
—That's the RUBBERSET.
NUKOTE stains and varnishes old or new woodwork at the same time.
Or their brilliance can be renewed with a coat of clear NUKOTE, leaving the original color.
That reed rocker is a pretty pattern, but it's getting dingy. Clean it up and give it a coat of NUKOTE, any color or clear varnish.
Makes furniture look brilliant and NEW.
Dries hard as a rock.
WON'T STICK TO YOUR CLOTHES.
Nukote is heel-proof, mar-proof, water-proof.
It requires no skill to apply NUKOTE.
Which makes it different from the cheap substitutes used by many wood finishers. THEY can use the ordinary varnishes that require skill.
YOU can get as good results if you use NUKOTE.
—But a good brush is absolutely necessary.
A cheap brush won't answer.
Now comes your opportunity.

S.S.S. CURES SKIN DISEASES

The cause of all skin diseases can be traced to some humor or acid in the blood; the cuticle is always healthy where the circulation is free from impurities. When the blood is infected with acrid or unhealthy matter it cannot perform its natural work of nourishing the skin, regulating its temperature and preserving its normal softness, pliability and healthfulness. Instead it irritates and inflames the delicate fibres and tissues around the pores and glands and produces some of the many forms of skin disease. The itching and stinging so often accompanying skin affections are produced by the deposit from the blood of the acrid humors with which it is filled, into the sensitive membranous flesh lying just beneath the outer covering, and surrounding the countless nerves, pores and glands. This explains why scratching the outer skin affords no relief from the itching and burning. S. S. S. cures Skin Diseases of every character by purifying the blood. It goes down into the circulation and removes the humors or acids which are causing the trouble, builds up the weak, acrid blood, and permanently cures every variety of skin affection. Local applications can only soothe; they never cure because they do not reach the blood. S. S. S. goes right into the circulation, reaches the trouble and cures it by removing the cause. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice free to all who write.

HANDICAPPED.

The trial of the Aliens is now on in Virginia. They will have a hard time recalling the present judge from their corner in the prisoners' gallery. Their predicament suggests that those who want to recall judges sometimes have strong personal motives back of the wish.

ENTER THE TURTLE.

Grilled turtle steak is finding its way on the menu cards of restaurants in Los Angeles these sunny days. The deep sea turtle is being shipped here plentifully at this time. It is cheaper than veal and, except for a slight difference in flavor, the turtle steak and the breaded veal cutlet are strikingly alike.

SAFE INSTRUCTION.

The Latin branch of the public library is vastly better for the Plaza people as a point of instruction than the harangues on I.W.W. and other anarchistic discussions reputed to take place in the Plaza. This branch of the library also serves to illustrate the fact that Los Angeles is daily becoming more cosmopolitan, and that it is rising to the duties which its complex population imposes.

SOUND CRITICISM.

A Pasadena hotel proprietor suggests the need of more amusements for the Crown City. His criticism is timely. Of course the people over there can come to Los Angeles for their entertainment, and this they do. They are cordially welcome, and it is comfortable to reflect that they will probably keep on coming. Nevertheless, much more might be done for their amusement at home.

THE GREATER QUESTION.

Director Ismay denies that he took a seat in a lifeboat for which many women were clamoring. Ismay's salvation of his precious self and the circumstances surrounding it are not the real issues. The great question is whether or not he forced the captain of the Titanic into a fatal race with the icebergs. Certain it is that Ismay rests under a cloud of suspicion which will submerge him to a depth greater than if all the waters of the Atlantic were rolling above him.

MAKING TROUBLE.

The Socialist women of the city are reported to have registered as Republicans in order to support La Follette at the primaries as a rebuke to Roosevelt. It is a fact that many Democratic women have registered as Republicans for the same purpose. The treachery of the local bosses in deserting La Follette was consummated without consulting the women progressives and the latter will do everything in their power to punish the dictators for their bad faith. This attitude of the women is likely to play the dickens with the Roosevelt programme in California next month.

THE BEACH SEASON.

The beaches of Southern California keep open-house the whole year around, but the outing business naturally booms more in the spring and summertime. The first of the big beach picnics for this year will take place at Long Beach Friday when the Odd Fellows celebrate the ninety-third anniversary of their organization. The second rush to the sea will come on May Day, when the automobile owners of the city will join The Times in giving a grand excursion to all children in the city who might otherwise miss a glimpse of the ocean. Many of the tots who were taken for this happy ride last May Day have neither been in an automobile nor to the beach since that time.

GREEK THEATERS.

Los Angeles is certain of a Greek theater and it may have two of them. The president of the Gamut Club, which will build a small Greek theater at its new country place at the end of Griffith Park, is also president of the Municipal Theater Committee, which proposes to secure a great municipal art center for the old Normal site at the head of Fifth street, and it is announced by members of this committee that a large Greek theater which will seat 25,000 persons is a part of their programme. The idea is admirable and should be carried out. The advantage of a Greek theater is that every person present thinks he has the best seat for seeing and hearing all that is taking place on the stage.

MORMON FARMERS.

A man may be a Mormon and be a polygamist or a monogamist. He may be a Mormon and be a missionary or a layman, and perhaps something of a tartar as well. But a man cannot be a Mormon in the country and not be a farmer, and a mighty good farmer at that. The country around Mesa, Ariz., is very largely settled by Mormons. A news dispatch to The Times from Phoenix states that the Mesa farmers now have 2000 acres in growing cantaloupes which will be ready for the market in July when the Imperial Valley melons have been eliminated as a competitive supply. Their enterprise reminds us of what the late Max Frost said about them. Frost was editor and proprietor of the Santa Fe New Mexican. Somebody came into his office and complained that a Mormon resident in one of the Territories was reputed to have five wives living and fifty-five sons. "Good work," said Frost. "If we had a few more like him in Arizona and New Mexico we would get single Statehood for both in a hurry."

SPOT CASH STATESMANSHIP.

A very large sum of money has been expended in the endeavor to "thrust" the Presidential nomination upon Col. Roosevelt. The Roosevelt League in New York City has filed its report—as by law required—with the Secretary of State, showing an expenditure of $59,125.75 in that city by the colonel's campaign committee. Of this sum $45,000 was donated by George W. Perkins, who is known to fame as a director of the steel trust and an organizer of the harvester trust. Frank A. Munsey, who is the largest individual holder of the common stock of the steel trust, gave $14,000. The 1,500,000 of the "common people," who are beloved by Roosevelt and whose cause he champions, made up among them the munificent sum of $129.75. A report of the expenditures in the State outside of New York City has not been filed, but they are said to aggregate several hundred thousand dollars. Boss Flinn of Philadelphia had more than $200,000 at his disposal, which was expended where it would do the most good. It is estimated that $1,000,000 "and up" has thus far been expended by the adherents of the illustrious "trust buster" in his campaign.

Roosevelt never had any difficulty in obtaining money for his political campaigns. It will be remembered that "my dear Harriman," in response to the personal request of Roosevelt, chipped in $200,000 during the last Presidential campaign in aid of the glass-eyed champion of the people. These points are given to the Rooseveltians of Los Angeles. Let them not neglect the interests of their families and roll in the Roosevelt dirt for nothing when there is such a lot of easy money in sight.

NO EXCEPTIONS.

A few weeks ago a young business man of Los Angeles went to Costa Rico to manage a rubber plantation. The poetry of the southern country struck him favorably, and in writing a Los Angeles friend a glowing impression of his new home he invited this friend to join him down there, saying that the flutter of cocoanut palms to the caress of the sephyrs fell into rhythmic undulations with the oratorio of gorgeously-plumaged birds, and that in that land the senses negate all equations of falsehood and anger. To this the Los Angeles friend replied with all due appreciation, but with somewhat sharp interrogation. "Dear Bob," he said, "I have heard that land is the devil for mosquitoes and malaria. I believe you are also in line for Panama fever. My senses would have a hard time negating either, and as I never saw the climate in which I could negate my appetite, will you please write me how the native daughters down there stack up as cooks and what the prospects are for this season's mushroom crop? I never did see the sense of leaving a fine country with no drawbacks for another country which might be fine if so many things didn't stand in its way." That last sentence hits the nail on the head. Lots of places have their good points, but Southern California is about the only land in the world without any bad ones.

WHAT SHALL IT PROFIT US?

There is a subject before the people of California and, indeed, before those of the whole Southwest, of a purely economic nature, that ought not to at all involve politics. Yet, in spite of what ought to be, this question does hinge upon the political parties of the country. It is, moreover, a matter of very great importance.

We refer to the movement now well along in Congress to remove the duty from sugar imported from outside. To understand the importance of this matter we would refer our reader to an article that appeared in The Times last Sunday, an interview with Mr. A. C. Bird, president of the Southern California Beet Growers' Association, who has just returned from Washington, where he made an effort to prevent the removal of the sugar duty.

The bill has already passed the House of Representatives by a practically solid Democratic vote, supplemented by the votes of twenty-four falsely-called Republicans, generally known as insurgents.

In the first place, the government obtains as a revenue on sugar $52,000,000 a year. In the second place, the removal of this duty will mean disaster to the whole sugar industry of the Southwest, indeed to the beet-sugar industry everywhere in America. The imported sugar all comes from sugar cane which is produced at a fraction of the cost of beet sugar, partly because of the small labor involved, and partly because of the low wages paid in this industry abroad. There is no person who understands intelligently the subject who does not know that our beet-sugar growers in an industry which demands so much labor, and labor which is so highly paid, cannot possibly compete with the cane-sugar growers abroad.

The argument used for the removal of this duty is that it will make sugar cheaper to the general public. History gives an absolute denial to this argument. Never in the history of the country has any product possible of production at home under protected tariff cost the people more for the home product than they have been paying for the imported duty free. The reason is evident. The importers form a monopoly with which there is no competition and, regardless of the cost of the import, put the price where they please. On the contrary, when a protected product is produced at home it furnishes a natural competitor with the imported commodity, and the competition keeps prices at a proper level.

Now these facts are plain to Democrats as well as Republicans, as is manifest, for no Democrat ever sat in Congress and did not contend for the highest duties possible for all products coming from his own district, with very few exceptions.

It seems to us that here is a case in which the intelligent voter should exercise the greatest possible independence of party. In voting to keep the duty on sugar he is voting to continue the prosperity of his friends and neighbors and of the whole community in which he lives. Congressman Kent, whose district lies in the center of California, is one of the falsely-called Republicans to betray the interests of his State and of the whole Southwest in voting for free sugar. He is now seeking the votes of his neighbors to send him to Chicago to nominate the ringleader of all falsely-called Republicans for the Presidency. There is only one way for any citizen who is interested in the continued prosperity of the section to vote, and that is for the regular Republican candidate for the Presidency and for the regular candidate for Congress in his district. This question rises above all politics and all partisanship. As we have said, it is a question of economics and should be decided according to its bearing upon the prosperity of all the people of this section. We are all vitally interested in maintaining the duties on sugar and on all the food products of the section. The continuance of the protective tariff duty outweighs all other questions before us at this time. It should decide the election.

"Don't Monkey With the Saw."

PRESIDENT TAFT.

The campaign against President Taft has been less a campaign of criticism of the measures of his administration than of personal vituperation of the man. His treaty of reciprocity with Canada was rejected by the Dominion, but was approved by his own countrymen. His peace pact with Great Britain and France was hailed with rejoicing by men of all parties, and the Senatorial amendments by which it was denuded of its vitality did not commend the Senate to popular favor. The vigorous prosecution of the trusts which his predecessor promised but failed to perform satisfied the country of his honesty and zeal in executing the laws. The enforcement of the neutrality laws and the determination to protect the lives and property of American citizens residing in Mexico have gained for him the esteem of all men except carping newspaper proprietors who allow their hatred of a business rival who happens to be an owner of Mexican property to overcome their patriotism. His loyalty to the doctrine of protection to American labor—the amount of protection needed to be ascertained by a non-partisan tariff commission, is unassailable. Honest criticism can find no cause of complaint against President Taft. But, nevertheless, he encounters a storm of detraction and illustrates the truth of the poet's words—

"No might nor greatness in mortality
Can censure 'scape; back-wounding calumny
The whitest virtue strikes. What king so strong
Can tie the gall up in the slanderous tongue?"

Yet calumny and misrepresentation, although they undoubtedly wound President Taft, have never provoked him so greatly as to cause him to forget his self-possession or to lower the dignity of his great office by a retort in kind. The public utterances of Presidential candidates have not always been discreet. Henry Clay impaired his popularity, if he did not destroy his Presidential chances, by his Alabama letter. Gen. Scott, by his characterization of inauguration day as "an American saturnalia" and by other indiscreet utterances, slammed the door of the White House in his own face. Horace Greeley completely extirpated his chances for the Presidency by his vigorous, but exceedingly unsagacious, utterances.

But President Taft in the many speeches he has made in all parts of the country has never been betrayed into an unwise or discourteous utterance, although he has never avoided the expression of candid opinions as to public measures.

President Taft has been loyal to the party which elected him. He has not catered to the mawkish sentimentality that has sometimes led demagogues to illustrate their superiority to party by the appointment of political opponents to office. Whether for a place in the Cabinet, a foreign mission, or a revenue collector, there was always to be found a liberal supply of competent and deserving Republicans. Yet, when an appointment was to be made to a position where political partisanship was undesirable—such as the Tariff Commission—he has not hesitated to appoint some Democrats.

President Taft deals with events rather than with phrases, with men rather than with abstract ideas. He sees the essential and controlling point in a controversy and grasps it. He has both "the righteousness that comes of a clear conscience" and "the sagacity that comes of a clear brain." He has served the country well for three years in the White House. It is the hope of all sane and sensible Republicans that he will be chosen to succeed himself.

TWEEDLEDUM AND TWEEDLEDEE.

If it is a conspiracy in restraint of trade under the Sherman act for a dozen coal-mining corporations to combine and arbitrarily raise the price of coal to the consumer, why is it not equally a conspiracy for 150,000 coal miners to combine and arbitrarily raise the price of their wages to the corporations employing them?

If it is a violation of law for half a dozen railroads to combine and arbitrarily increase the cost of freight and passage between Chicago and Los Angeles, why is it not equally a violation of law for the locomotive engineers on those railroads to combine and arbitrarily raise their wages?

That any one owner of a coal mine has a right to store his coal if he cannot get his price for it may be conceded. That any one coal miner has a right to quit work if he cannot obtain higher wages may also be conceded. That a local railroad company not amenable to the interstate commerce law may withdraw from traffic all trains except those necessary to hold its franchise may further be conceded. That a locomotive engineer has a right to quit work if he is not satisfied with his wages is a right which may not be disputed.

In any of these cases the offense is not in the act of the individual; it is in the conspiracy of a number of persons, whether artificial or natural persons, to combine and procure by violence or menace advantages which they could not obtain by individual effort.

Courts have held that an act which would not be an infraction of law if committed by an individual cannot be an infraction of law if committed by a combination of individuals. This reasoning is technical and shallow, especially when applied to the conduct of public utilities. If persisted in and not cured by legislation it must inevitably be followed by government ownership of railroads, coal mines, and staple food supplies, for nobody has a right to compel the public to walk, or freeze, or go hungry.

There is no difference in ethics and there ought to be none in law between the tweedledum of capitalistic combination and the tweedledee of labor combinations.

SENATOR SMITH A PROHIBITIONIST.

Without a blush, without a quiver of his eyelids or a tremor in his voice, Senator Marcus Aurelius Smith of Arizona, fresh from his debate with the colored brother in the elevator of the Willard Hotel, presented in the Senate a petition of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Prescott, Ariz., praying for the enactment of an interstate liquor law to prevent the nullification of State liquor laws by outside dealers.

The moral altitude to which good old Mark has climbed since the Senatorial toga draped his shoulders is greater than any physical altitude achieved by the most daring aviator. Time was when the Senator did not disdain to arise in his nighties at the first very grey streak of dawn and assimilate a Martini cocktail. Time was when, as the lengthening day wheeled into the swarthy night, the Senator cheerfully solaced the anfractuosity of the cephalic extremity of his nervous system and forgot the brangles of the forum as he "kept his spirits up by pouring spirits down."

Now all this is changer. Between the reckless imbibator Mark Smith of Tombstone and the grave representative at Washington of the hardly-ever-take-a-snifter populace of Phoenix there yawns a gulf. The Times awaits with anxious expectancy the Associated Press report of Senator Smith's diatribe against barkeepers.

When Gen. Grant was a candidate for a third term his prospects at this stage of the game looked much brighter than do Roosevelt's now. But he did not win.

The seven long-haired reformers who urged Roosevelt to become a candidate will go down in history as the Seven Sutherland Brothers.

"I REMEMBER."

BY TOM FITCH.

At a banquet given in Arizona to an enterprising citizen who, by investing all his worldly means, had successfully financed a short line of railroad from the new mines to the main line, a speaker said, "Our honored guest deserves a great deal of credit for what he has done," and the honored guest responded gloomily, "I shall need a great deal."

In the midst of a trial a portion of the Courthouse ceiling, which had been moistened by rains, fell with a crash upon the clerk's table. Witnesses, jurors, spectators and counsel learned in the law skidooed for the door.

"Order, gentlemen, order," said the judge. "Fiat justitia, ruat ceiling."

Congressman Blank of Ohio, while visiting New York City, recognized in a car on the elevated road an old farmer whose eyesight was dim, but whose intellect was bright. Approaching him he said: "My dear Jones, I am glad to meet you. How are the folks in Urbana?" The ancient agriculturist, who had been reading the newspapers, shrunk from the offered hand and replied: "Thar, that will do, you damned bunko steerer. I've read about your tricks. Go away or I'll call the police."

"You were not here on time," said the justice of the peace to the dilatory counsel for the plaintiff, "and the defendant filed an affidavit and I continued the case for one month."

"Will Your Honor let me see the affidavit on file," said the lawyer.

"I cannot," replied the justice. "The affidavit was an oral one and the court filed it verbally."

"But an affidavit must be in writing," remonstrated the lawyer.

His Honor adjusted his spectacles and with dignity said: "Show me, sir, that section of the laws of California that requires an affidavit to be in writing."

The justice decided the case against his client, and the lawyer arose with urbanity in his manner, but wrath in his heart. "I had a dream last night," said he. "I dreamed that I was in love with Your Honor and when I awoke I repeated those beautiful lines that Shakespeare in his 'Midsummer Night's Dream' places in the mouth of Titania, 'Methought I was enamored of an ass.'"

"That dream will cost you ten dollars, Mr. Blank," rejoined the judge, "or, at your option, you can enjoy for five days the hospitality of the County Jail."

"Your Honor," said Tom Marshall of Kentucky when the judge decided against him, "the Redeemer of the world was convicted on just such rulings of the judge who tried him."

"Mr. Marshall," said the judge, "you are fined ten dollars for contempt of court."

"Why, Your Honor," said Tom, "I never before heard of a man being fined for abusing Pontius Pilate."

"Make the fine twenty dollars," remarked the court.

"I am short of funds today," said Marshall. "Will Your Honor kindly loan me twenty dollars?"

"Mr. Clerk," said the judge, after a pause, "you may remit that fine. The State of Kentucky is better able to lose twenty dollars than I am."

Patrick Grogan was a little mutton-chop, whiskered Irishman who had been convicted in an Arizona court of housebreaking for crawling through the window of a store and "lifting" two hams and a sack of beans. On the day appointed for his sentence his lawyer was absent. It was necessary for the defendant to be represented by counsel at every stage of the proceedings, and the judge said to a member of the bar: "Mr. Blank, will you please appear for the defendant for the purpose of receiving his sentence." Mr. Blank signified his assent, and the court said: "Patrick Grogan, stand up and receive your sentence."

"Mr. Blank," said Grogan in a little squeaking voice, "I'm not feeling very well this morning. Won't you please stand up and receive my sentence for me." A ripple of laughter followed and Grogan received only a minimum sentence.

"Aftah the wah," young Peyton Randolph Crittenden, recently admitted to the bar, defended an ancient contraband who had been a slave of his father's before the Emancipation Proclamation was issued. The darky was charged with chicken stealing and, notwithstanding the young lawyer's eloquent harangue, he was convicted, and the judge sentenced him to two months imprisonment.

"I thank Your Honor," said the culprit, "I feared, suh, that the evidence, together with Marse Peyton's speech, would have hung me, suh."

UNCLE WALT.

The Poet Philosopher.

I'm truly sorry for the gent who, when the toilsome day is spent, won't by his fireside linger; who can't serenely sit and read "Rebellion," "Money Moon" or "Queed," or t'othermost humdinger. The fireside pleasures he will dodge; he says: "I have to go to lodge as outside guard, dear Sallie; tomorrow night I have to go to act as usher at a show, next night I 'tend a rally." His patient wife just heaves a sigh and wipes the briny from her eye, and, sad and discontented, she murmurs now and then: "I wish that husbands and that kind of fish had never been invented! I used to let my fancies roam, and pictured such a happy home, with evenings long and cheery; alas! my husband's brains turn sour if he must stay here half an hour—it surely makes me weary!" For pleasant evenings by your side perhaps the girl you made your bride is yearning, too, and panting? Disgusted with her Moated Grange it will not seem so passing strange if she goes gallivanting. Methinks that many of the dames who play the frantic suffrage games are there by husbands driven, who, when they toddle home at all, go much like Dobbin to his stall, to eat the grub that's given.

Been hedged about by rules and laws!

For now they say he may not woo
His hand at wayside country shows.

BRILLIANT, FRAGILE PARC
MADE GREAT BY COMPANY.

"Nobody's Widow," Seen for the First Time in Stock at the Belasco Theater, Introduces Alice John and Brings Back Harry Mestayer. Other Announcements.

BY JULIAN JOHNSON.

How big the pretty scene inside an Easter-egg becomes when enlarged and given relief when viewed by the little telescopic pane at the end!

And how large Mr. Hopwood's doll-play, "Nobody's Widow," seems when brought into life by the talents of a company so clever as the one now on the Mason stage!

The substance of "Nobody's Widow" is indeed fragile. I have not yet made up my mind whether it is farce or comedy, though the programme modestly admits that it is farcical.

And this programme is bold in another way, for it sensibly cracks an old playhouse tradition in the head and prints the names of the feminine members of the cast first, instead of last as is invariably the case.

Nonna Clayton, having married the Duke of Moreland in Europe, discovers that this selfsame Duke has a penchant for escapades, and inquires in one no later than a week after his nuptials. So she leaves him, comes to America, and declares herself a widow, the Duke having "died." The Duke, repentant and desperately in love, follows her to her native land, learning that she is due at a house party in Palm Beach.

John Considine,

well-known head of one of the world's greatest amusement corporations, seen enjoying himself in Los Angeles thither—and arrives thither days before his falsely-wedded comes the meeting, she has introduce him, and does so as late husband's best friend, and wooing begins all over again. There is a tiff, he makes a supper engagement, the quondam widow remains at the eleventh hour, after the manner of all womankind, the supper is grudgingly kept, and the comewife walks in on the party, the other woman, with rare coolness and fine panic, turns out the lights and allows herself and Nobody's husband to be discovered in the dark.

This may seem a bit obvious, but listen to assure you that it was necessary, else Mr. Hopwood would have had to ring down at 9:45 Act II, and of necessity there must be a third act. So a quarrel, an ensuing make-up, are just as trivial as the actors themselves. While the play is light in substance, I think it witless.

In fact, in smart observations and repartee, I have not seen it surpassed by American plays of recent years. There is little real situation here, but much brilliant small-talk.

"A widow," observes Roxana to her friend, "is not lost husband, 'can't be careful.'"

"They seldom are," replies the friend of Moreland.

And so it goes, rip-rap, tip-tap, for three acts.

The finale of the second act, in which the scene with less adroit players might become appallingly stupid, finds people of the experience of Blanche Bates and Harry McRae can well skate over ice that is thirty-second of an inch thick. There is positively no suggestion of the obvious. A knife dipped in this ultra-fine sauce, as they do it, wouldn't leave a taste in the butter.

The most charming thing about the performance, to my mind, was the presence of Miss Bates's adaptability to comedy. Miss Bates has heretofore, very true and evident, shown all these years of superb Cod-Darlings, epic and tremendous, and stern, square-jawed "Fighting Hopes," she has now with a gossamer laugh, a flash of white teeth, a quick succession in a walk that by the merest majestic, and an evidenced sense of humor that is delicious because it is real and truly feminine. A humor is deliberate, and so is that of a mannish woman. Miss humor is spontaneous, and, may be premeditated and of craft, it is at least concealed as an unconscious art.

Miss McRae, as the Duke of Moreland, is manly, bluff and helpless in the manner of a stubborn, but affectionate. I liked McRae because he was so confoundedly, simple and real. You'll both Hunter, Adelaide Prince and Campbell contribute to the success of this international matri-episode.

Through the James Forbes comedy, "The Chorus Lady," which is being given at the Belasco Theater this week, does not equal this playwright's former successes, "The Traveling Salesman" and "The Traveling Man," in point of construction, nor is there so much "go" to it and there is a certain phase of American life not so much cleverness and humor as Jesse Lynch Williams's play ran in New York a

The play-going public likes to be amused—and "The Commuters" is a mighty amusing play.

It deals, of course, with the suburbanites—those lovers of quiet who eat and sleep with a time-table clutched in one hand. The characters are the wives and husbands living in one of these delightful places near New York, plus the mother-in-law and the maid to Larry Brice, a part well taken by Robert Ober.

Larry comes home very late on a certain night with one Sammy, a bachelor friend from New York, and as this has happened before, his wife makes up her mind to "get even." She does get even. She stays out till 2:30 a.m. on the following night, and Lonesomehurst becomes the most exciting place on the map.

The Belasco players, of course, give the comedy in rattling style. The only fault I find with the performance is that a few of the actors treat it as a farce. Anyhow, they allow no dull moments to creep in, and if you want to laugh long, loud and often, the Belasco is the place for your money this week.

Last night was a gala occasion, for it ushered in the return of Harry Mestayer and the installation of Miss Alice John as leading woman. Both received continued plaudits from their friends, old and new. Miss John, indeed, wasn't permitted to get beyond her opening sentence for fully five minutes, and it looked as though the blushingly attractive young lady would be forced into a "speech." She remained obdurate, however, and her happy embarrassment spoke for her. Flowers, also, many sumptuous bouquets, graced the stage of the theater after the first act.

The play doesn't offer Miss John many opportunities for great histrionic display, but we learned that she is plump and good-looking, that she has a nice smile and an exceedingly agreeable voice. She made the most of her part, rounding out the character of Hetty Brice with effective but unobtrusive touches. And she conceived "The Commuters" as a comedy from start to finish.

Mestayer was Sammy, the gay, the irrepressible, the one man with a delightful sense of humor among the solemn and the serious. Sammy was blamed for all the accumulated woes of that dreadful night, husbands, wives, maid and mother-in-law all sailing into him right and left. No wonder his last remark was: "Me for Broadway!" Mestayer plays the part with much intelligence and some subtlety. He, too, has the true comedy sense.

But the funniest thing in the play is Bessie Barriscale as Carrie, the maid—a scream from her entrance to her exit. And other good parts fall to Howard Hickman, Emelie Melville, William Wolbert, Jane Aubrey and so on.

Orpheum.

The headliner at the Orpheum this week is Charles Kellogg. Kellogg is a child of nature and a woodsman. He has never carried a gun. His ax and his personality are sufficient. He is in perfect harmony with all creatures of the wood. Likewise he is in harmony with babies, college professors and society women. He vibrates in unison with all things. He wears a flannel shirt and can sing like a bird. His voice is said to contain twelve and a half octaves. His lowest note is higher than Tetrazzini's highest. He was born with rings in his throat. The rings are not visible. He sleeps with spiders. He is a brother to the grizz-

Believes This Will "Cure Lung Troubles"

Consumption is a flattering disease—that is one of its chief dangers. Those who have it are rarely willing to acknowledge the fact. If this trouble is present, it is no time for trifling. Don't waste time in argument. If a so-called "cold" has long persisted; if a cough is present that keeps you anxious or any of the symptoms are present, such as fever or night sweats, weakness and loss of appetite, and perhaps some raising of mucus—do the sensible thing, take Eckman's Alterative, as Mr. Bettersworth did.

Bowling Green, Ky., R. No. 4

"Gentlemen: I wish to say for your Alterative that I believe it to be a medicine of unequaled value for all Bronchial and Lung trouble.

"The Spring of 1908, I had a severe cough for six months. I tried all the medicine that my friends and doctors recommended to me, but no results came for the better. I had night sweats and would cough and spit up every night until I got so weak I could hardly do anything. But at last, James Deering, of Glasgow Junction, insisted that I try your medicine, which I ordered at once and began taking the same. In one week's time there was quite an improvement in my condition, and after I had taken several bottles I felt as well as ever in my life. I never wrote any firm or company a letter recommending their medicine before, as there are so many fakes that a medicine of genuine quality don't get credit, or even tried.

"I desire the world to know that I firmly believe that your Eckman's Alterative will cure any case of lung trouble if taken before the last stage. I will gladly write personally to any party wanting information in regard to your wonderful medicine."

(Signed Affidavit.)

A. C. BETTERSWORTH.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poison, opiates or habit-forming drugs. For sale by The Owl Drug Co.'s stores and other leading druggists. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence.

Metropolitan Gas Corporation

First Mortgage Five Per Cent. Sinking Fund Bonds

(AN UNDERLYING ISSUE OF THE PACIFIC GAS AND ELECTRIC COMPANY)

Dated November 25, 1911. Due December 1, 1941. Interest payable June 1 and December 1. Optional on any interest date at par and interest. Coupon bonds with privilege of registration of principal. Mercantile Trust Company of San Francisco, Trustee.

Denomination of Bonds, $500

TAX EXEMPT IN CALIFORNIA

These bonds, in opinion of counsel, besides having become a direct obligation of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, by its express agreement and covenant to pay both as to principal and interest, are secured by a direct first mortgage on the entire physical property of the Metropolitan Gas Corporation, which, before it was merged into the Pacific Company, owned and operated a gas manufacturing plant in the City of San Francisco, as well as a distributing system in the heart of the city, comprising about 52 miles of mains. This property is now being operated by the Pacific Gas & Electric Company as a part of its extensive system, which operates in twenty-four counties in central California, embracing approximately 33,000 square miles, with a population of 1,350,000.

The duplication value of the physical property of the former Metropolitan Corporation, as estimated by conservative engineers, without allowing for franchises, good will, etc., is in excess of the total issue of these First Mortgage Bonds.

Net earnings of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company applicable for bond interest are more than two and one-half times the annual interest charge on all underlying bonds.

The mortgage provides for a sinking fund which is calculated to produce $750,000, or sufficient to retire over half the issue before maturity. No bonds in addition to the $1,368,000 now outstanding may be issued under this mortgage.

WE RECOMMEND THESE BONDS FOR INVESTMENT.

PRICE ON APPLICATION

SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Houstan Gillespie Cowan,

Who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary yesterday afternoon and evening at the home of their son, W. K. Cowan, in this city.

GOLDEN weddings are always interesting functions, and a reception given yesterday afternoon and evening in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Houstan Gillespie Cowan was no exception.

Guests were received afternoon and evening at the country place in Eagle Rock of W. K. Cowan, the eldest son of the lovable old couple. The elder Cowan served in the Mexican and Civil wars. He was born in Tennessee, March 6, 1828. April 22, 1862, he married Miss Eliza Garrison, grandniece of the late William Lloyd Garrison. Cowan left his young bride and returned to war and served until peace was declared. They later settled in Kansas and twenty-two years ago came to this city.

Miss Leonardt Hostess.

Miss Clara Leonardt of No. 2 Chester Place was hostess yesterday afternoon at a fashionable bridge luncheon of seventy-five covers, given as a courtesy to Mrs. Leland Neiswender, formerly Miss Margaret Woollacott, and also for Miss Charlotte Cox, who will become the bride of James Donohue tomorrow. The hostess was assisted by her mother and sister, Mrs. Carl Leonardt and Mrs. Frank Powell. The tables were dainty with gold baskets tied with yellow tulle and filled with golden iris. Gold monogram cards marked places. Prizes fell to Mrs. Jack Jenkins, Miss Acadia Scott, Mrs. Bernard Tyler, Mrs. Harry Putnum, and the guest prizes (two handsome water-color pictures of brides, in gold frames) to Miss Cox and Mrs. Neiswender. Arend played during the afternoon.

Wright-Hanna.

Justice Summerfield yesterday afternoon united in marriage Miss Ramona Hanna, daughter of Mrs. Chauncy H. Gallagher, and H. B. Wright of this city and Summerland. A short honeymoon will be passed in this city, at the home of Mrs. J. C. Gallagher, No. 726 West Twenty-first street, after which the young couple will leave for their home in Central California.

Sunshine Club.

Mrs. T. L. Russell of Thirty-ninth street had as guests members of the Sunshine Club. Five hundred was played and prizes fell to Mrs. Harry Russell and Mrs. E. B. Raymond.

Engagement Announced.

Prof. and Mrs. J. W. Kerr of No. 1746 East Twenty-first street announce the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Goldyn J. Kerr, to Clyde H. Matthews of No. 325 West Twenty-third street.

Two Months' Trip.

Miss Celesta Burch of No. 1805 Girard street and Miss Edith Young of No. 752 Hartford street are en route to Honolulu, where they will enjoy a two months' trip.

Home Wedding.

A home wedding of interest was that of Miss Aileen Gilday of Hollywood and Del Douglas Ellis of this city, which was read Wednesday at the residence of the bride's parents in Hollywood, Rev. E. P. Ryland officiating. Young Ellis is associated with Robert Marsh & Co.

Guest of Parents.

Mrs. Harry Vernon Wenger of San Diego is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Wright of No. 1144 East Twenty-third street. Mrs. Wenger will remain until after the Shrine convention.

Anniversary Celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Markle celebrated their fourth wedding anniversary one evening last week at their home, No. 3755 Vermont avenue. The rooms were beautifully decorated with roses and calla lilies, large fern baskets filled with the roses having been artistically hung from the ceilings and doorways. Five hundred was played and prizes were captured by Mrs. H. Russell, S. Agnew, Mrs. E. B. Raymond and Bert Raymond. A Dutch supper was served and there were covers for Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. H. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. B. Raymond, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Raymond, Mr. and Mrs. G. Raymond, Miss O'Lane, John Clark, T. Hines, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Eyre, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Russell, Mrs. C. Melloy, Mr. Levendige, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Van Nest, Mrs. R. Broser, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Wolf, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Agnew and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Markle.

Musical Evening.

A pleasant event of the week just closed was the evening of music given by Mrs. Earl Clark at Hotel Burlington, in honor of Delmore Cheney, a noted baritone from the East. Besides the honoree, selections were contributed by Oskar Selling and Mrs. Hennison Robinson.

Wedding Announcement.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett E. Spiker announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Hazel Lucille, to Rutherford Earl Patrick, which will be solemnized Wednesday evening. The young people will be at home to their friends after May 10 at No. 350 Winona avenue, Pasadena.

Dinner Party.

Mrs. W. R. Ross of No. 3787 La Salle avenue was hostess Sunday evening at a dinner party given in honor of the thirty-ninth birthday anniversary of her husband. Mamam Cochet roses were used profusely in carrying out the pink-and-white color scheme. There were covers for Mr. and Mrs. Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. Clotts, Miss Marie Thompson, Mrs. Forsythe, Mrs. Dalton and Mrs. Fisher.

Dinner Party.

Mrs. George Downing Roberts of Hotel Alvarado entertained with a dinner party Friday evening. Fair-maid carnations and lily of the valley and maidenhair ferns decorated the table, where their were plates for eight.

Sorority Affair.

Members of the Kappa, Kappa Kappa Sorority entertained recently with a bridge party at the home of the Misses Irene and Mildred Bulfinch, No. 935 South Vermont avenue. The rooms were gay with yellow flowers, and the menu and score cards were also in this color. The merry party was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Barret, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Berry Mathews, Mr. and Mrs. William Maddocks, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar W. Cave, Miss Mildred Hotchkiss, Miss Bertha Hill, Miss Mildred Harrison, Miss Evelyn Taylor, Miss Edith Neil, Miss Dixie Osborne, Miss Ruth Standifer, Miss Grace Markison, Miss Edna Earle, Miss Grace Best, Miss McKeever, Miss Henrietta Costello, E. Rediker Stancliff, Walter A. Bonynge, Jr., I. E. Solomon, Mr. McNeal, Mr. Rowan, Mrs. F. G. Jacobsen, Will Hartman, B. G. Sage, Dr. A. Cooper, Henry W. Watkins, Mr. Schmeling, Lewis Parker, Fred Parker, Mr. McKever, Morris Jones and Dr. Gowan.

Home Again.

Mrs. Willitts J. Hole and her daughter, Mrs. Samuel Knight Rindge, have returned from a brief outing at Honolulu.

Bridge Party.

Mrs. Denis Burkhalter of Scarff street entertained with a bridge party Saturday afternoon. The place cards were dainty Cupids, dressed as bride and groom, announcing the engagement of Mrs. Burkhalter's younger daughter, Miss Frances, to Roy E. Ward. The marriage will be in June.

GOES TO WILDS.

one of the queerest-looking wild forests he has ever seen in any part of the world. He was alone most of the time there, studying, photographing and sketching interesting specimens.

He found the Imbricata a strange tree. It has very thick leaves and the extreme point of its stem is very often three to four inches in diameter. After removing the bark the stem is less than an eighth of an inch thick. Cones as large as a person's head grow in large numbers, and the Indians use the seeds inside the cones for food. They are nutritious and are delicious when baked. The trees when full grown average from 130 to 140 feet high and have branches at the top which spread out like an umbrella or hawk's nest. The tree's trunk is clean for over 100 feet and the diameter is about three feet. It is a member of the pine and silver fir family. Muir made a trip of 2600 miles in the unbeaten plains and forests of Australia in 1904 to study specimens of the same tree in that country.

AFTER A BAOBAB PLANT.

From the South American west coast he sailed for Africa and after thirty-two days his ship arrived at the Cape of Good Hope. The day after, the intrepid naturalist set out alone on a 1200-mile jaunt inland to Victoria Falls, one of the grandest in the world.

He did not go to see the beautiful tumbling waters, but merely to discover, if possible, in the wild jungles a specimen of the baobab plant.

After several days' search through a country inhabited by savages and man-eating lions he came upon a large number of the precious plants sought.

He found the plant in some cases to be twenty-five to thirty feet in diameter and not very tall, giving a squatty appearance. At certain seasons white buds appear. He found three different kinds, two having white flowers and one red. He made a number of sketches of the plant, and went slowly back to Byra on the coast.

Sailing up the east coast of Africa, he stopped at Zanzibar and other ports en route to the mountains and forests in the vicinity of Lake Victoria Nyanza.

He made several long trips around the lake and on the River Nile. He saw thousands of antelopes, zebras, elk and other animals. After a stay of several weeks he wended his way to Mombasa, from which place he went to Aden, Arabia. He visited many points in Europe.

DELIGHTFUL TRIP.

"I had a delightful trip," said Muir last night at the home of his daughter. "I had a wonderful opportunity to study the three rare trees and plants I went in search of, and also saw many peculiar and strange trees and plants.

"But when it comes right down to beautiful and grand scenery, California still leads the world. I didn't see any trees as mighty and big as our sequoias and other big trees in California. They are in a class by themselves.

"Although I traveled alone a greater part of my journey, I was never molested by either savage or wild beast. I am mighty glad to be back in the Golden State once more and proud and happy to call Los Angeles my home."

Muir is one of the greatest of naturalists and explorers. He discovered the glacier in Alaska that bears his name and has labored many years in the cause of forest preservation and the establishment of national reservations and parks. He has written extensively for the magazines and newspapers and is the author of several well-known books, including "Mountains of California," and "Stickeen, the Story of a Dog." He had recently finished an interesting volume entitled "Yosemite." He is the editor of "Picturesque California" and a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters. He is enjoying the best of health and his long jaunt has not lessened his enthusiasm or affected his charming personality.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Ebell Club.

At the Ebell Club Monday afternoon Dr. Laura B. Bennett of the Polytechnic High School talked to members and to mothers, who were their guests on "Daughters," and their training. She spoke of the course of lectures given by herself in the High School in which girls are instructed as to the functions and the care of their bodies, emphasizing the necessity of this work by quoting examples of the ignorance which she constantly found among her pupils and the results of that ignorance as revealed to her as a physician. But only nineteen-twentieths of the pupils of our schools reach the High School, and many of those who leave the schools in the lower grades come from families wherein there is little hope of their receiving the needed training. Courses similar to that of the High School should be introduced into the grammar grades also. It is the girls who go into business life who most need the preparation and the warnings of wise teaching. While no school instruction can ever replace the care and teaching that should be given by the mother from the cradle up, a large proportion of mothers are not fitted to give proper instruction or are unwilling to do it, therefore the schools must take up this work.

Before the lecture, Mrs. E. C. Bellows, president, called attention to the benefit to be given at the Auditorium for the Titanic sufferers and also to the benefit performance of Jappyland for the benefit of the McKinley Home. She announced that one-half of the proceeds of this affair would be placed in the endowment fund of the institution and that a generous donor would double every dollar so placed up to $100,000. The other half of the proceeds of the performance will go towards building a much-needed cottage to make room for boys who are now being turned away. If the club provides half of the funds needed for this it will be known as Ebell cottage.

Reciprocity Day.

The Tuesday Afternoon Club of Glendale will hold a Reciprocity Day programme today. Women from many of the clubs of Los Angeles and vicinity will meet at the Country Clubhouse at 11 o'clock and after a social hour luncheon will be served. A delightful musical programme, to be given by Kulius Krans, violinist, and Miss Grace M. James, vocalist, has been arranged. Miss Thekla Martens, dramatic reader, will read "Rose of the Wind."

A Valued Gift.

During the past week Mrs. Charles H. Eager, president of the Los Angeles branch of the Dickens Fellowship, became the recipient of three old and valued editions of Dickens literature entitled, "The Household Narrative of Current Events." These interesting and much appreciated editions, which were personally edited by the famous author, were the gift of Mrs. William E. Sharpe of Los Angeles.

It is Mrs. Eager's intention to present these books to the Los Angeles branch of the fellowship as a nucleus for a library of Dickens literature which is hoped and expected will be in possession of the local organization in the near future.

A Happy Festival.

The women of the Sierra Madre Woman's Club are to be congratulated on the success of their second annual floral festival. The flower show held at their clubhouse brought together a really surprising number and variety of choice flowers and plants. The prizes had brought about a friendly rivalry and no doubt many yards are more beautiful because of the inspiration gained from bringing together the choicest results of a little care and preparation. The entertainments at the clubhouse drew many people to the beautiful foothill town, as well as bringing neighbors together. The pretty pageant of the peonies, given by the school children, was well carried out and showed what might be done with the material at hand. Decorations, programme and training were all done at home. Such an affair means much hard work and planning and the club which undertakes it is doing a distinct public service that is particularly in line with the present spirit of club life.

Postponement.

Owing to the sudden bereavement of the president, Mrs. Frank E. Prior, all functions and classes of the Wednesday Morning Club for this week will be postponed. The Shakespeare reciprocity meeting, for which a pleasing programme had been arranged, will take place Wednesday afternoon, May 8.

LITIGATION IS ENDED.

Supervisors and Contractor Come to Agreement on Hall of Records. Signed by Both Parties Yesterday.

The difficulty between Carl Leonardt, contractor for the Hall of Records, and the Board of Supervisors was compromised yesterday, in accordance with the previously-announced plan. Figuring the retouching of the metal interior finish at between $3000 and $4000, and the reduction of the bridge from the third floor of the Hall of Records to the second floor of the Courthouse to a level with the floors of both buildings at $1000, the agreement entered into permits the Supervisors to hold $10,000 of the amount due Leonardt to assure the work done, and the contractor agrees to do it at his own expense. The Supervisors claim, then, $30,000 as due the county for other changes in the specifications, and hold out that sum also from the amount due Leonardt; the contractor contests this claim, but agrees that the money shall be held and the question determined by a friendly suit. The balance, $112,335.59, was paid Leonardt yesterday afternoon, and also an additional amount of $6152.50, for extra work on the seventh floor, the warrants for which had been held up pending a settlement.

Real Speed Fest.

SPEED DEMONS HERE TODAY.

Bruce Brown and De Palma Due This Afternoon.

Manager Young Announces Practice Friday.

Motordrome Meet to Have Full Card of Racers.

BY BERT C. SMITH.

Light practice for the Santa Monica road race will be begun Friday morning at 6 o'clock. No heavy work will be attempted until the following Monday morning. Manager A. M. Young has requested all drivers to cut down the speed of the practice spins until the course has been thoroughly tested.

With his eagle eye on every foot of the course, Manager Young will be on hand to watch the first car get away on the fast work. Before the Benz and the Flats, the Stutz and the Simplex cars are sent whirling away into the atmosphere, Young will be sure that every turn is right, that every curve has been given the necessary attention, and then he will open the course.

Bert Dingley is satisfied. The Simplex is right. This comes as an added piece of news to the race followers, many of whom were disappointed with the early showing of the fast Simplex "ninety." On the Palisades yesterday afternoon Dingley turned a mile at a speed of 105 miles an hour. That settled the argument for Dingley, who is now satisfied that he is in the running for the big purse in the grand prize race.

BIG GUNS.

David Bruce Brown and Ralph de Palma reach here today. These two stars will shine in the big event. There is perhaps no driver on earth who is as great a drawing card as Brown, and his big Benz racer is one of the fastest on earth. He will go out in the free-for-all in a fierce dash for the prize. Brown is after the cup.

This young college boy has all the money he needs. He is not in this race for the cash. His folks are wealthy, but they admire the lad who won the Savannah Grand Prize with the Fiat, and now that he has changed mounts they are anxious to see what he will do with the fast car. Brown is to be the sensation of the speed dash.

De Palma is coming here to get a crack at Barney Oldfield. These old-time rivals have never met on a western course. Barney achieved his triumphs, many of them at least, in Los Angeles. Now De Palma wants to snatch the speed crown from the brow of the former world champion.

With his big Fiat in wonderful racing trim, Barney is waiting for the starter to send him away. He tried the big car out on the Van Nuys stretch and nodded his head after the run, which netted him a speed of 110 miles an hour. That is fast enough to win, and Eddie Maier's "Select Kid" is to be given his head in the big race.

Attorney E. E. Hewlett is satisfied that a Fiat will win the big event. He has given Teddy Tetzlaff instructions as to how he wishes the race to be run. Then Tetzlaff will be sent into the dash with a bid that may put him into first place. His experience of last year should certainly count for much. He has learned a lesson and he may profit by that lesson and pull a victory out of this race.

BRAGG'S FIAT.

Caley Bragg is ready for the starter. His big car is here. He needs no instructions. He will handle the Fiat, from all indications, just as he did in the Savannah Grand Prize race. Bragg is in fine shape. He never was more sanguine of victory, but he is saying practically nothing.

Two Stutz cars are to be sent into the free-for-all. This is a surprise to a great many. It was not thought that these machines would be sent away in the big free-for-all, but the decision was made yesterday and today the money for the entrance fee will be placed with Manager Young for the two cars in the free-for-all. This is the same car that made such a sensational showing in the last race at the Indianapolis Speedway.

On Sunday, May 5, a big card is being arranged for the Los Angeles Motordrome. This is to be a speed-fest in which the cars that shine at Santa Monica will be represented. The big top-notch drivers will all be on the boards and a great race meet is promised.

ELMORE WINS.

The Elmore "Bulldog" won in its class at the Fresno road race Sunday. It also took third place in the free-for-all dash against a large field. The Elmore made only one stop and showed remarkable speed during the 200 miles of hard gruelling. The Elmore racer threw a tire, but the driver escaped serious accident.

In a telegram to the local agency, yesterday, A. J. Smith, Pacific Coast distributor for the Elmore, announces his victory and he is now planning to enter the Santa Monica road race. It is almost certain that the Elmore will be here in time to start in the speed dashes, Saturday, May 4.

BIG LEAGUES' GETAWAY AS SEEN BY FULLERTON.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON.

THEY'RE off to a scattering start. The first week and a half has failed to show that any of the weaker clubs has developed any strength to warrant expectation of a strong showing, and it is an unfortunate getaway for the American League.

It always is hard luck for a league to have the strong clubs, which are certain to make the running later in the race, beat the barrier, and the way the Athletics and Boston jumped when the barrier was flashed a week ago Thursday indicates that the strong clubs will be out in front all the time. The National was luckier, for with New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago trailing along in the final flight and the weaker clubs leading and winning, it looks as if the quarter-horses will set the pace for a short time, anyhow, and add to the interest.

Not one club in either league has yet shown anything near its true form, but thus far it looks as if the two St. Louis clubs, Washington, Cincinnati and the Athletics are better conditioned than the others and readier for the fight. Cincinnati showed unexpectedly strong both against Chicago and Pittsburgh. Indeed the traveling clubs had a hard row to hoe during the two opening series, while the home teams looked good.

BOSTON THE SURPRISE.

If there has been a surprise it has been the performance of the meek and lowly Bostons, who have been batting their way to victory. The surprise, however, has not been in their hitting. Every one expected them to hit, but the pitching they have had has excelled all expectations. Good old Hub Perdue, who once was a Cub, and who went back, learned to pitch a spit ball and came on twice, seems to have control of his spitter, and he set down the Giants in great shape. McGraw's pitchers look off form.

It will be two more weeks at least before the teams begin to show what they are capable of doing and before the pitchers strike their stride. The ill-luck of Washington in having to open against hard clubs and away from home is tough for Griffith, even though after suffering defeat in fierce battles against the champions, he took it out on Wolverton's club, which looks bad at the start.

The really important developments of the opening clashes are with the Chicago Cubs and Detroit. Disaster overtook both right at the start, when they needed strength most. Frank Chance, after a magnificent attempt to stick to the game, was forced to surrender and drop out, and, worse than that, to break in a green and almost unpracticed first baseman.

The collapse of Chance is sad, but not unexpected. Last fall I talked with Chance and he told me he never would try to play again. Experts who had examined him warned him that another blow on the head might kill him, and that if he tried to play ball in the heat the combination of heat and excitement affecting his injured head might prove fatal. The winter's rest made him think that the talk of the doctors was hocus pocus, and he tried, only to realize after a week of blinding, crazing headaches, that they were right.

ZIM MAY PROVE A WONDER.

For some reason unknown to me, Chance does not like Saier as a first baseman, possibly because the youngster is not aggressive enough, and he took Heine Zimmerman and sent him to first. I have thought ever since this big, reckless, careless athlete joined the Cubs that his natural place was at first, and it may be that he will prove to be a great first baseman. He can be a great anything if he settles down and attends to business, and the question is, will he?

But no matter how great a first baseman Zimmerman may be, the loss of Chance on the field is a hard blow to the hopes of the Cubs. Only those on the club or with it constantly understood what an immense factor Chance was in the game. Tinker, especially, always played better ball, and the pitchers worked better. The catchers looked to him for guidance. He watched every ball pitched, he steadied his pitchers, bullied, coaxed and threatened them, and many games he saved by a word of advice or caution, or by a hot roast to a careless man. He made his pitchers field and he kept the whole team on edge and working. He can do it in part from the bench, but not as much.

The team itself looks pretty good and is playing the game, except for pitching. Cole, who looked so good in the spring, exploded twice in two games, and threw them away, being wild and lacking control and everything else. Brown made a weak start.

Coincident with the sudden crash of Chicago's hopes came the breakdown of the Detroit team. Delehanty was damaged again right at the start, and Cobb, sick and upset, got into a row with the hotel management in Chicago and went home to Detroit to try to find a quiet room in which he can convalesce. The loss of Delehanty last year wrecked Detroit's chances, and it looks now as if Del would be out of the game for weeks right at the critical stage.

TWO CLUBS BREAKING UP.

From the first two series it would appear that Detroit and Chicago, which teams fought it out for two world's championships, are breaking up together and will have to be rebuilt before either can claim championship class again. Detroit's case looks worse than Chicago's, but both seem to be breaking down badly in the pitching departments, although Cheney, for Chicago, and Covington, for Detroit, seem to be coming strong, from their opening performances. Pittsburgh, without Clarke, and with the team shifted around, appears to be in the same stage of decline. Three managers will have to do a lot of thinking and patching up to prevent the total wreck of their clubs, and the three owners just now are fortunate to have three managers as capable of rebuilding teams as are Jennings, Clarke and Chance.

It would look as if the Athletics are not only off in the first flight of the American League, but as if they are taking it easily and not working hard. Mack is saving his veteran pitchers, although Plank was ready and went one strong game.

I rather like the looks of Griffith's Washington team, which promises to be a lot stronger than was expected. Grif evidently has selected his men to get just as much hitting strength as possible and with the idea of depending upon his pitchers and hitters, rather than on defensive fielding to win games. The Senators gave the world's champions two fierce battles on the champions' own lot, and lost more through the breaks of the game than anything else. It is evident that Grif has his men working together and the way they took advantage of the weaknesses of Wolverton's hill-toppers was a marvel. They ran the bases, crowded every opening and hustled all the time with results.

HARRY WOLVERTON.

Truth is the new managers are cutting a big swath in these opening days, except Harry Wolverton, who got away poorly, due more to the lack of condition of his club than anything else. The team isn't good, but is better than it has shown itself thus far. Hank O'Day has the Cincinnati team hustling and working well and Callahan is showing a new spirit to the Chicago fans. The Sox are trying too much young blood, but this is rather the result of compelling circumstances than of choice.

Weaver, probably will be replaced at short, but the others seem fixtures. Rath is more than making good during the early games. Peters promises well. On the whole it looks like a great year for the new men all around and the managers are showing less hesitancy about starting their spring wonders than they usually do.

The Browns sprung two new-comers on the Sox and both won. Stovall appears to have imbued the St. Louis club with new hope, at least, for the team is fighting hard no matter what the circumstances, and his team showed favorably against both Chicago and Cleveland.

Bill Burns paid $1500 for himself and sold himself right back to Detroit. If we had had the money we would have bought Bill just to have him around.

With a sigh of relief we learn that Brooklyn has sold Coulson, the fellow

GOLF STARS TIE CONTEST.

Armstrong and Jones Lead Qualifying Round.

Others Do Not Fare So Well at San Gabriel.

Williams Almost Hero, but Misses It.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

E. S. Armstrong and Conde Jones tied for first place in the qualifying round for the San Gabriel invitation tournament yesterday, with 80, R. W. Salisbury and Robert Tatum coming next with 81 and 82, respectively.

Alas, all the bright particular golf stars were not twinkling their brightest and best in yesterday's play, the most that such lofty scintillators as Norman Macbeth and H. N. H. Woodcock could manage being the merest glimmer of 85 and 86 respectively.

There were, of course, extenuating circumstances in the fact that it was the new course that was being played, but it was also the new course upon which Macbeth made the record of 76 on Saturday, with two finished 38's. It is well to recall the past glories of the great in the hour of their eclipse. Wherefore we must add that Woodcock did a 78 on Saturday, too.

As for Edward Tufts, let us draw a kindly veil o'er his sad deeds. There was infinite pathos in the final display at the 18th, where our bewildered brains lost count as his club hit the ball with the regularity of an eight-day pendulum.

For a long time E. R. Williams of Annandale looked like the hero of the day with 82 and we scanned his 4, 5, 5, 3, 6, 3, 4, 7—40; 4, 4, 7, 5, 4, 4, 5, 5, 5—43, with contemplative reflections. But, of course, we awaited the incoming of the regular heros in the full assurance that something in the early seventies would carry the day. Then came Armstrong, our thrice glorious champion, with 4, 5, 4, 6, 3, 5, 3, 4, 6—40; 4, 4, 6, 4, 4, 5, 4, 5, 4—40 and we told ourselves thoughtfully that this time he would be fourth or fifth on the list. Conde Jones kept him company with 4, 4, 4, 4, 3, 7, 3, 4, 6—39; 3, 4, 7, 5, 4, 3, 5, 5, 5—41, and still we waited the blinding glitter of our other stars.

R. W. Salisbury's 81 made up of 4, 6, 4, 4, 3, 7, 4, 4, 6—42; 5, 4, 6, 5, 3, 4, 4, 4, 4—39, proved it to be among the vets and it soon became all too evident that 90—ninety, mind you—would qualify. This puts G. E. Potter of Santa Barbara as bottom man of the first sixteen and one wonders is he wistfully conjecturing whether it were better to be the outer fringe of high society, as it were, or cock of the walk in the second sixteen. He must feel very much like a Patrician younger son, when but two more strokes would have perchance made him a merchant prince.

J. E. Gifford is the merchant prince in this case, taking first place in the second sixteen with 92, and he can look down with patronizing compassion upon such lights as Walter Cosby with 97, Ed Tufts 94, E. P. Gates, Harold Palmer of Redlands with 98.

Fate was really a little unkind to poor Tatum, who had a chance to win at the last hole. It is a Bogey 4, in which figure he has done it scores of times, but yesterday he must needs take 7. His ordinary play would, therefore, have assured him 79, and the cup.

Beyond Mr. Harpham's helmet, there were no sartorial attractions with which we were not already familiar, and, as Mrs. Thornton sadly remarked, all the buttons on Mr. Tufts's sweater were doing their whole duty as usual.

We await anxiously the fate of Jim Parker's clubs today for he was overheard to exclaim with much emotion that if he again made the shameful score of 113 he would cast them off for ever and play no more golf for a whole year. A dreadful threat except that we know these bachelor philanderers could fill up their time very nicely in other directions.

J. A. Bell went out in 43, which gave much promise, but he met a cruel and heartless fate at the 17th hole, which, well, entirely spoilt things.

Morris Phillips of Redlands is among the visitors, and Annandale and Los Angeles, and even Santa Barbara, are all well represented, but never a Riversider has shown himself and there is gloom and wonder thereat. Riverside, Riverside, why hast thou forsaken us?

Those to qualify were: First sixteen—E. S. Armstrong, 80; Conde Jones, 80; R. W. Salisbury, 81; R. L. Tatum, 82; E. R. Williams, 83; Morris Phillips, 85; Norman Macbeth, 85; H. N. H. Woodcock, 86; E. F. Atkinson, 86; George Cline, 87; J. B. Elliott, 88; E. N. Wright, 89; A. W. Brand, 89; E. N. Wright, Jr., 90; G. E. Truett, 90; G. E. Potter, 90.

Third flight—J. Wells Smith, 102; G. E. Harpham, 102; L. W. Farmer, 103; C. K. Alley, 104; C. D. Bricker, 104; Edmund Parker, 108; C. A. Perley, 112; Jim Parker, 113; C. W. Lincoln, 114; J. F. Taylor, 122; W. C. Brodie, 131. Mr. Brodie is quite a newcomer to the game and is being congratulated upon his sportiness in entering for the tournament.

The pairings for tomorrow are: First flight—Armstrong to play Woodcock, E. R. Williams to play A. W. Brand, G. E. Truett and Norman Macbeth, J. B. Elliott and R. W. Salisbury, R. L. Tatum and E. N. Wright, E. F. Atkinson and G. E. Potter, Morris Phillips and E. N. Wright, Jr., and George Cline and Conde Jones.

Second flight—Gifford to play Campbell, Byington and Purcell, Coon and Bell, Cosby and Gates, Bacon and Palmer, Jefferson and Hughes, Tufts and Bixby, Jergins and Kleinberger.

RIVERS IS EASY BOY TO HANDLE.

JOE LEVY TELLS HOW HE DOES THE DIRECTING.

Freddy Welsh Ready to Come Back—White and Conley Show Signs of Getting Together—Gilmore Claims that He Has a Contract for Attell and Jack White.

"When Joe Rivers goes into the ring with Wolgast," said his manager, Joe Levy, yesterday, "his style will be different from anything he has shown before. Joe never fights twice exactly the same. I always try to adapt his style to the work he has in hand.

"When he was matched with Jack White, for instance, I prepared him to meet heavy swings and come back with straight punches. Against Wolgast, he will have something still different to show.

"You can handle little Joe almost like a projectile because he has a mobile, quick, plastic mind and will do whatever you tell him. It is a delight to be in his corner. He is always as amiable as a May morning while the fight is on.

"When he comes back to his corner, I always ask him, 'Is he hurting you?' and he will usually answer, 'No, Joe; he isn't hurting me at all.'

"When he was fighting Jack White, I told him not to try for a knockout after he had hurt Jack in the second round, because I wanted to teach him to be careful. Every time he came back to the corner, he would ask me anxiously, 'Joe, can't I knock him out this time?'

"I always answered him, 'No, not yet, Joe.'

"At last he did knock him out, anyhow and the first thing he did when he came back to his corner was to say, 'Excuse me, Joe; but I couldn't help it that time.'

"Joe is improving very rapidly. When I first got him, he had a wonderfully instinctive style of hitting, but several bad faults. One of these was his habit of hitting in anger before he got a good chance to hit. He has corrected this now."

"What was the greatest single improvement you have seen in Joe since you took him?" Joe was asked.

"Feinting," answered Joe. "When I first saw him fight, he did not feint at all; now he has learned how to be singularly adroit at it. I think Wolgast will find that Joe is one of the most dangerous feinters in the ring."

FREDDIE WELSH WRITES.

Freddie Welsh writes from Chicago that he has begun training for a series of matches in May and June. Coffroth, he says, has offered to put him on at the end of the month and New York promoters want him to meet the winner of the Mat Wells-Packy McFarland match. A match with Knockout Brown has also been mentioned.

Freddie says that his neck has recovered and he is ready to fight again. He intends going back to Wales this summer in order to bring his mother to America to live. He had booked for passage to Europe on the return voyage of the Titanic.

When he comes back to this country he intends to start his health sanatorium near Los Angeles.

WOLGAST'S PLANS.

Ad Wolgast's plans are somewhat uncertain as to Wheeler Springs. He may start today or may wait until Thursday.

Ad is a fanissimus baseball fan and he grieves to tear himself away the day that Los Angeles opens against Sacramento. He will make the voyage to the mountains in his big Thomas flyer now being tuned up. Mrs. Wolgast will go with the champ.

WHITE AND CONLEY.

The managers of Jack White and Frankie Conley had a long confab yesterday, attempting to get together for a fight during Shriners' week. They are now literally two hours apart. In the beginning, Jack White stood out for 124 ringside and Conley for 122 ringside. At last accounts, White offered, as a compromise to make 123 at noon.

This was refused. They will probably get together in the end, however, as it is none too easy for either one to get matches.

College Baseball.

TROJANS AND TIGERS CLASH THIS AFTERNOON.

Crucial College Ball Game Is to Be Played on Bovard Field, U.S.C. Looking for Revenge, and Battle Today Promises to Be a Bitter One—Oxy Team in Midseason Form.

BY OWEN R. BIRD.

THE Trojans of the University of Southern California and the Tigers of Occidental clash this afternoon in what promises to be one of the most hotly contested college baseball games of the season. For why? Well, it will be remembered that on Saturday afternoon, April 13, the Tigers gave the Trojans a class "A" walloping on the Baer acres, and the defeat is rankling deep in the hearts of the men out in the west end, and they are getting ready to spill some direful things on Bovard Field, this afternoon.

In the last game the U.S.C. aggregation went out for a little canter with Coach Pipal's men, and it looked easy after the showing made by the Trojans in the north, but a terrible snag was awaiting the braves from across the city, and when the final count was taken they had been outhit and outplayed in every department of the game.

The U.S.C. team was in a bad slump in this game, owing to the fact that "Old Man Harmony" had been left at home, and a little poor judgment was shown in placing the players in the field and on the batting list, but the team is steady now, and should make the Tigers hunt hard and long for the heavy end of the score.

"Chunkey" Foss was not in the game last time for the university, and this was one of the biggest factors in the defeat of the team. This trip he will be there with bells, and there will be a nice little fight for "all southern" honors between the Chunk and Duffy Seay at second base, as both men are considered the best ever developed in the south for many a long day. At the present reading of the big book, Seay has a leg on Foss, as in the last game with the Trojans he got four hits out of five times at bat and fielded 1.000.

CRUCIAL GAME.

The two aggregations will face each other this afternoon for the crucial game of the series. If Oxy wins there will be no more games this season with the Trojans, and they will practically be out of the conference race, which seems hardly possible, after the great showing made against the University of California last March. But some strange things can happen in college baseball.

Oxy will have the same line-up in today's game as was offered in the last spasm, but the Trojans will have a different line-up, and that to a marked degree. L. Wright will be at second, and Spencer may be cantering around in the infield somewhere, and it is doubtful if Rives will be holding down the left truck patch, giving place to Don Haskell. Manager Rowatt is not saying much, but has made a big shake-up since the last game, and we can expect to see a pretty battle this afternoon.

A shake-up was needed badly, as last Saturday it took the Trojans ten innings to lower the Whittier college team, and they were lucky to get by.

Hap O'Connor and Drury Wieman were to be the rival catchers, but Hap has left for parts unknown. If Wieman's peg is working in the same smooth order as last time, there will be few stolen bases in the U.S.C. scorebook. Hap had a bad time in the last game, owing to the fact that the U.S.C. infield was all shot to pieces. One of the fielding and batting stars of the day for the Tigers should be Winnie Blount, in center field. This little man has been hitting at a great clip this season, and covering a world of territory, and may land on the "all southern" at the end of the season.

BENSON VERSUS FOSTER.

Benson will start the game for the Trojans, and Foster will be on the hill for the Tigers. This will be the first time out in intercollegiate company in the south for either of them, and the boys will probably pitch their heads off. Haskell is being saved for the game with Pomona, Thursday, but owing to his batting per cent., which reads .400, he is going into the game at left field, where the big club will count for some runs.

As Hap O'Connor has left for parts unknown, stated above, a freshman named Sprotte will work behind the bat. The youngster seems to be there, according to the dope on the Whittier game, but he will have another chance to show this afternoon.

College baseball will take the center of the athletic stage for the rest of the intercollegiate season. Pomona meets U.S.C. at Bovard field Thursday afternoon and will get the first look at the men from the Sage Brush country. On the same day the Whittier Poets and the Tigers will cross bats and after the series this week we will be able to determine to a large extent who will come home with the Southern championship this season.

The teams all seem fairly matched this spring and there should be some hair raising battles toward the end of the season and if all the round robin series go to three games the college ball circles will have more excitement going than in the days of '06, when the Tigers were spilling the beans for every team in the South.

THE TIGERS ARE COMING.

This may be the Oxy year. Last season the Trojans came romping home with the pennant after six straight wins. This year, after handing Berkeley such a surprise package, they got a little cheesty and thought themselves too good, so did not practice, with the result that to win games in the home pasture has been no easy matter. The Tigers, on the other hand, are just coming to the battle pitch and at the present time are playing better ball by a long way than they did against Stanford while in the north. O this will be a busy week for the Rah! Rahs!

The teams will line up as follows:

U.S.C.		Occidental
Benson	pitcher	Foster
Sprotte	catcher	Wieman
Byran	first base	McLain
L. Wright	second base	Seay
Rabinawitz	shortstop	Kirkpatrick
Decker	third base	Warren
Miller	right field	Baer
Milliken	center field	Blount
Haskell	left field	Bishop

LOS FELIZ SCHOOL WINS FROM CAHUENGA SCHOOL.

In the First Dual Meet Between Schools in "Times" Camp Series, Los Feliz School Scored 106 Points and Cahuenga School Scored 102—Paul McWilliams and William Solterjohn Win "Times" Camp Trips.

AN AUDIENCE of over one thousand people witnessed one of the keenest grammar school dual track meets ever witnessed in the south. The struggle was between the Cahuenga and Los Feliz schools, and took place on the Hollywood High School oval.

The Cahuenga school defied their opponents when they arrived on the field 250 strong, in one of William R. Russ's big five-ton Pope-Hartford trucks with banners flying from end to end of the big car, proclaiming the fact that the Cahuenga track team was out to win the Times Camp Track Meet.

The wonderful performances of the boys and girls in the junior division gave Cahuenga a big lead in the early part of the meet, that was only over come by Los Feliz by the great work of Paul McWilliams, who alone won seven firsts in the senior division.

In the 75-yard dash in the small boys' class, Solterjohn, Cox and Wage made a one, two, three procession out of it and rolled up nine points on Cahuenga. H. Bailey, Chenbregh and Harry Bailey of Cahuenga duplicated the performance in the third and fourth grade 50-yard dash.

Elizabeth Hooker and Elizabeth West of Cahuenga won first and second in the first and second grade race. Carroll Barret tof Cahuenga took the girls third and fourth grade fifty with ease, after a beautiful sprint.

GIRLS' DIVISION.

This unique feature of having a girls' division in the Times Camp Track Meets proved to be a very interesting affair.

They were all carefully trained in the various events; they appeared on the field in neat gymnasium suits, and each school had about thirty-five girls entered.

The young juniors from Cahuenga have been in training for about five weeks under the guidance of their playground director, and she certainly deserves a great deal of credit for getting such a picture of health in the faces of all the youngsters.

William Solterjohn, a junior from Cahuenga school, won the eight-day trip to The Times Camp, just beating out his nearest rival, Ralph Bailey, of the senior division by seven points.

Paul McWilliams of Los Feliz won the trip from his school boys, scoring thirty-five points. Paul is a wonderful all-around athlete for a grammar school boy and will surely score in the big June 1 meet. He equaled the Southern California grammar school record of five feet in the high jump.

The girls' relay was one of the most interesting races of the day, twelve girls were on each team and each had practiced until they had the pass perfect. The score of the meet just before the boys' relay stood 102 to 102 in favor of Cahuenga, so the relay race meant victory for either school.

Cahuenga took the lead and maintained it to within ten yards of the finish of the last lap, when the speedy McWilliams of Los Feliz passed Bailey and won the race and the meet.

Intense brotherly rivalry has existed for some time between the two Rheinhart brothers, principals respectively of the two schools, as to which one had the superior track team. The Times Camp meet afforded the opportunity for these clean sport loving principals to settle the track supremacy. Now the slogan at these schools is "Track Meets for Girls."

Following are the summaries:

Clerks Have the Goods.

SPORT SCRIBES SLUGGED TO DEFEAT BY SHOPMEN

THE sporting writers on the local sheets locked their typewriters yesterday afternoon and dribbled out to Washington Park, where, in an ersorly game of baseball they were trimmed by the angels of commerce, who preside over the counters in the sporting goods emporiums.

On paper the score looked perfectly good at the rate of 5 to 2, but the official scorer was a newspaper man and forgot to account for the errors, which were mostly on the pressmen's side of the ledger.

Ad Wolgast and Hen Berry were the directors of destinies and both performed in big league style. Occasionally, the smoke from Hen's "Cremo" interfered with his eyesight and his decisions were "crabbed" in real "Hap" Hogan order.

The champion had "one on" the willow swingers who looked to him for mercy in the first stage of scoring. His seven-karat Kimberly pebble blinded the rooters and players alike, and it was impossible for them to charge Ad with injustice; but it was taken for granted that the umpire was off his nut and many good-natured jibes were shot out from the grand stand.

All the notables were there. "Lord" MacHugh occupied a box at the ringside. Ed Baldridge and Gene Williams cheered the "boob" moves of the key punchers from the bench, and the venerable "Red" Perkins alone occupied the press box and performed the duties of "Slats" Oliver at the chain.

The feathers were out in force also. A choice collection of ostrich plumes swayed in the breeze, and several cute little High School maids applauded the spectacular stops of Pat Higgins.

A corps of Polytechnic huskies played the home guard, the regular fans. These lads had all the latest sayings from the Gibson book and were not at all bashful when it came to an error.

Lou Guernsey started in the box of the dope shooters, but was not up to his old form. Two innings were enough for the "also ran" and he was sent to the murmuring pines.

Owen Bird was the next offering of the scribes, and the tall one, late of Occidental, was all to the good and surprised even his boss, with the line of groovers shot over.

Dill Cornett was the star of the matinee. The sporting goods merchant held the followers of Tim Murnane to four hits and did some high life behind the bumper as well.

Les Henry, was on first with one of Goldsmith's "No. 10" pillows. Two errors were chalked up against Les, but the boy played a good game at that.

Carl Mueller hid behind the largest mask to be found in the city, and wore shin guards which were of the latest bullet-proof design. The booking man was in the running with the club and knocked out an average of "1915."

The trio from A. G. Spalding's shop did some cleevr work for their team. Jim Donahue was a star in the field, Lacy did the scouting around short and Fay Halbriter guarded third.

Ed Tilley of the Tufts-Lyon camp was a feature of the line-up and made some pretty tosses to the plate, in addition to his clever bag covering.

One strange thing about the game was the number of new balls thrown up. Every five minutes a new pill was uncovered and at the close of hostilities, there was not a ball to be found.

The teams lined up as follows:

Umpires—Ad Wolgast and Hen Berry.

GOOD SHOOTING BY RIFLE EXPERTS.

Deer, balloons and dinner plates were slaughtered without compunction in the first of a series of "Good Time" shoots by the Los Angeles Rifle and Revolver Club. A large and enthusiastic crowd shot, and if noise is any criterion, the shoot was a success.

The list of events comprised the the 200-yard pool shoot, won by Sergt. W. E. Smith, of the police force; the 300-yard prize shoot, won by R. J. Fraser; the rapid fire at 200 yards, by Goldsborough; the surprise fire at 300 yards, by T. W. Smith; the deer shoot at 300 yards, won by Crossman, and a deer shoot at 200 yards, won by T. W. Smith.

The balloon match was the most spectacular of the programme, with its twelve riflemen lying prone and volleying at the little bobbing balloons tied to stakes 200 yards away. With the first three volleys nearly all the men of the "Even" team were killed off, their balloons being punctured, and a few more shots settled the fate of the "Ever" team.

The team shoot was repeated in the afternoon, a dozen dinner plates being the targets.

The deer shoots proved a give away on the marksmen who tell of slaying deer at 200 and 300 yards without missing. At 200 yards three hits out of five shots was high score, while at 300 yards, "sitting down" allowed, the best score was four hits on a deer target out of five shots.

COUNTRY CLUB GOSSIP.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

SAN GABRIEL certainly takes first place in all the country club news this week, and all good golfers assembled for the qualifying round of the invitation tournament yesterday. There are large contingents from each of the other clubs and Los Angeles and Annandale are, of course, well represented, and a gay, glorious week of enthusiastic golf has begun.

The Ladies.

Mrs. A. C. Perley, that most promising of all the newcomers, has finally captured the Graft Higgins medal for which the women golfers at San Gabriel have been competing in a series of six matches since last October. The medal goes to the best average score and Mrs. Perley comes out top with 90. She started with a handicap of 32, but dropped to 18 during this play.

In Saturday's match, the last of the series, Mrs. Perley and Miss Marion Clark tied for first place and Miss Clark will undoubtedly, in the play off, prove to be the second best for the whole series with an average of about 91. Mrs. Perley did the home round on Saturday in 52—6-8-6-6-5-6-6-8-4—which is really most excellent for one so new to the game, and not often excelled by some of the established good players. She is a genuine enthusiast to the extent of taking a house in the club grounds and devoting a large part of nearly every day to the game.

The other players taking part were Miss Shirley Burns, who ranks third in the average; Miss Constance Clark, Mrs. and Miss Pierce, Mrs. and Miss Roberts, Mrs. Gabrielle Elliott, Mrs. A. C. Scales, Mrs. Howard and Miss Halsted. Indeed, San Gabriel and Riverside can boast of the greatest number of active women golfers in their clubs.

Miss Constance Clark, the acting captain, is now arranging another series to take the form of a ball sweepstake, each contestant to play at least three matches during the month and hand in a properly endorsed score card, and then to have a monthly match, in which all the women will take part.

The Revels.

Saturday was certainly a very full one for San Gabriel, what with the ladies' match in the morning, the league match in the afternoon and the dinner parties and dance in the evening.

The dining-room was the scene of much merriment prior to the dance, the table at which the stars, in the persons of the incomparable Macbeth, Woodcock, Arthur Braly and Robert Tatum, were sitting naturally attracting much attention.

Dr. and Mrs. Whomes and Mr. and Mrs. Simpkins occupied another table, with Mr. and Mrs. Vanderist and Mr. and Mrs. Billian in close proximity. Messrs. Will and Harry Cole and A. T. Jergens, Jim and Edmund Parker, Jack Tehens and J. M. McCloud were all among the interesting diners, and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hickox were entertaining a party at another table. Mrs. Hickox, by the way, looking very charming in a striking gown. O. L. Wuerker had a party down, and Mr. Tetler, with superb disregard of superstition, had a party of thirteen, which included Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Townsend, two Misses Townsend and a Mr. Townsend, junior. Mr. and Mrs. Buttler and their daughter also entertained some friends, as did Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Scales, with whom were Mr. and Mrs. John Knox.

Mr. and Mrs. Perley, the latter fresh from her triumphs, occupied a table with Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Jefferson, and Mr. L. W. Thompson played host to half a dozen friends.

The dance afterwards, for which many more members arrived, was the usual happy success and San Gabriel's golf week started with a proper swing that insures its happy conclusion. Several small and large entertainments are planned for during the week, needless to say, Mrs. J. W. Wells Smith's party on Thursday, for luncheon and cards, being one of them.

Annandale Country Club.

Beyond private matches there has been no golf news at either Annandale or Los Angeles this week, but the former club is to be the scene of several large social affairs during the next two weeks. Tomorrow week Mrs. G. Sharpe and Mrs. Black are giving their large reception to some 200 guests, to be shortly followed by Mrs. Briggs's dinner dance. Mrs. John D. Reavis is entertaining on a large scale about the 23d, and June 1 sees Miss Gilbert's dinner-dance.

Victoria Club, Riverside.

The postponed mixed foursomes took place on Wednesday and repeated the success of the former event. The losers had to pay for the dinner, so the evening wound up with proper eclat.

All the well-known players took part. R. D. Osburn and the pretty Mrs. Martin Chase defeating H. G. Pattee and Mrs. E. B. Howe, and Mrs. Harry Kearne and Dr. Howe defeating A. W. Childs and Miss Dolly Bettner. Roy Holland and Miss Greta Wyatt won from Martin Redmayne and Miss Babe Wyatt, H. G. Wilson and Mrs. Bain from Mr. Bain and Mrs. Wilson, T. D. Hewitt and Mrs. Joslyn from K. Joslyn and Mrs. Hewitt; Mr. Anderson and Mrs. Darling from C. Henderson and Miss L. Hersey, H. Lett and Miss Newell from F. D. Hudson and Mrs. Crump, P. J. Rimell and Mrs. Bowen from Mr. Crump and Mrs. Gaylord, Mr. McClure and Miss Hunter from O. Crump and Miss Gray.

Many of the non-golfing society people augmented the party for dinner, such as Mrs. R. D. Osburn and her daughter, Miss Virginia, Mrs. H. G. Pattee, who plays rarely enough to come under this heading, and Mrs. Eugene H. Daly, better known in tennis. Then also came Martin Chase, who surely should have been making some fair partner happy, and several other men who had been unable to grace the occasion with their earlier presence.

The New Club.

A sigh of thankfulness has gone up from many sensitive souls that the New Valley Country Club has seen the error of its way in time and changed its name. Whether the new name will meet with entire approval is another matter—the Midwick Country Club—but it at least smacks of greater distinctiveness. Perhaps e'er those far-famed links are ready for play, that quintessential essence of clubhouse luxury has reared its lovely head upon the horizon, another committee will have had still another inspiration. In the meantime the new club has likewise elected another president in place of J. V. Eliot and Mr. Robinson, Harry M. of that ilk, now enjoys all the glories and onerous duties connected with the position.

Midwick, by the way, means "between villages." And some of these potential New Yorks and Chicagos are so sensitive!

Since the rains, one of the Midwick's proud assets—its lake—really wears a most picturesque aspect. There are lilies and bull rushes and cato'nine tails and all sorts of watery floriculture in evidence. The scene is certainly one of great beauty.

CARL MORRIS WON'T QUIT.

Intends to Go Back and Clean Heavyweights.

Thinks He Can Beat Flynn, but, Well——

He Isn't Sure He Could Beat Johnson, Yet.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

FORT SMITH (Ark.) April 20.—After a few weeks of rest from a long siege of training, Carl Morris, the Oklahoma heavyweight, will be ready to fight any white man in the world. "Retire from the ring?" said Morris, "why I am just getting started. I see nothing in my career to cause me to be discouraged. On the other hand I have many reasons to convince me that sooner or later I shall secure the heavyweight title." Morris argues convincingly in his belief that hard work and hard-earned experience will ultimately land him on the top.

Morris intends to cut his vacation short in order to give the ile to the report that he had denounced the game, and was going back to the Prize ongine.

He was in Ft. Smith early in the week to arrange a match to take place here in the early part of May. It will be the first fight following his vacation, and he expects to show a marked reversal of form over his last contest in New York with Jim Flynn. Morris says he was over-trained at the time of that contest and knew it weeks before he entered the ring.

Morris was asked to state his future plans. What would be his line of campaign? Whom he desired to fight next? Whether he intended to return East soon?

"I expect to wade right into the ring of white heavyweights, and dispose of them one by one," he said. "I am ready to fight any of them, and I do not mind which comes first. I will fight Comiskey or Stewart here, then will take on a heavyweight at Chicago, and then go to California. I hope to take on some of the heavyweights over a longer distance than I have ever fought before. If the Johnson-Flynn fight takes place, I shall see it, and if by any possibility the white man should not challenge him for I am confident I can defeat him. I consider that I have not had experience enough to defeat Johnson, if he is in as near his form of two years ago. I am looking for another crack at Jim Stewart. I am ready for the fight at any time for I consider him a worthy opponent than myself although he can hit like a mule. The engineer declared that he had never had a punch as Palmer, but he was being trained to use a snappy punch, and never any of his old time haymakers in the entire body set for the blow. It is said that he had lost reputation, too much had been expected of him at the beginning of his career. If he had fought a few more as a third rater, he said, and been hailed as a "hope" he would gradually climbed up the ladder, and when finally he met one of the public he would be a fighter of experience. As it is said that he had received his attention before he had had experience.

"I am a young man yet," said the boy of 25 years old. I have been ill, and I am good for many years in the ring. I am not afraid of the thing, but to tell the truth I like it now my life work. I have the physical ability and the heart, I have improvement ahead of me. I have a hard road ahead of me, a harder than that which I had to travel before he met me, and I am far superior in physical make-up. I have been stronger at the end of the fight, and yet to receive a blow seriously. I honestly believe that if the Flynn fight had gone 15 rounds I would have ultimately won, although both my eyes were almost closed over the fight that he had defeated fighters of today as Sharkey, Morris, and had Ryan in the ring. He also denied that he had taken a single run on a fight, or that he contemplated to his old profession.

M'CREDIE NOT FOR EXPANSION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "The expansion of the Pacific Coast League to include more than the present six clubs would mean disaster to the Northwestern League and I oppose the view of President Baum and his plan," said Judge McCredie, head of Portland club today, speaking of the proposed scheme of expansion of the Coast League head. "I have little fear, however, that anything will be evolved before the proper time," he concluded. By "proper time," Judge McCredie meant till such time as both leagues were in a position for expansion and the baseball fans demanded it.

LOS ANGELES CLUB EXTENDS TO SOUTH.

After considering the best arrangement of the traps to accommodate the 200 or more trapshooters who are expected to compete in the big shoot of May 10, 11 and 12, next, on its grounds in Venice, the directors of the Los Angeles Gun Club decided yesterday to install another pair of traps to the south of the grounds, across the railroad spur, throwing birds to the north and east as the present traps do. This arrangement will obviate any crowding, and will enable the events to be run off with clock-work regularity.

Pulling off a 200-bird programme, with 200 or more shooters, is no small job, if things are to be kept moving and everybody paid off promptly, without any errors or delays, but the club has plenty of expert talent in it, and men of experience in this line.

The record-breaking sum of $3500, which is to be added to the purses has been assured for over a week, and programmes will be out within the next few days, setting forth the special features. There will be three days of it, with the grounds open for practice probably all the week previous. Ten twenty-bird events will be carded each day, entrance to each, 60 cents; and to each, $100 is added by the club. The usual $2 pool is optional with those who wish to gamble on the side. The money is to be cut "Equitable System." There will be $500 divided among the twenty high-average men. The underlying idea is to give everybody a chance to win something, no matter how poor a shot he may be. The great amount of money added makes this possible, and permits a system of money division to be followed that would be impracticable perhaps in a small tournament, although the shoot held last year under similar rules proved a great success, and pleased all who attended it.

Secretary Charlie Van Valkenburg is receiving letters from all over the West, inquiring for programmes and information regarding the big shoot, from which it is figured a phenomenal attendance of visiting sportsmen will be on hand.

This is the biggest added money that will be offered at any shoot in the country this year. It bids fair to eclipse anything ever held in the West in the opinion of trap-shooting experts.

BERKELEY TRACK STARS GO EAST THIS SPRING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BERKELEY (Cal.) April 22.—The undergraduate body of the University of California is so well pleased with the showing made by its track and field team against Stanford, last Saturday, that it has practically decided to compete in the games of the American intercollegiate association on May 30, at Franklin Field, Philadelphia.

An invitation was received early in the season, and had already been favorably considered by the Executive Committee of the Associated Students previous to Saturday's victory.

ABE ATTELL FIGHTS TONIGHT.

SACRAMENTO (Cal.) April 22—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Abe Attell will meet Jimmie Carroll in a twenty-round bout, tomorrow night, in this city, under the auspices of the Capital City Athletic Club. Attell has been doing his hardest work with Salvator, who recently returned from Wolgast's training quarters, and Carroll's sparring partner is Joe Leahey.

SURRENDER OF "SLEW-FOOT."

Exit of Frank Chance from First Base.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SLEW-FOOT, the stout-hearted, Slew-foot, the undaunted, has passed away.

Know you who is meant by Slew-foot?

Perhaps not. Only his team-mates and most intimate friends know him by that name. It was a name given him in affectionate, loyal derision by those who had fought many battles under his commanding leadership, and who had captured battle flags until the trophies contained dates that made them look like calendars.

Slew-foot is no Indian, as perhaps you may have imagined. Not he. Neither has he departed from this life, and gone to the Happy Hunting Grounds, where all good Indians and their favorite war ponies go when things on this mortal coil have become things of another life.

Gentle reader, if one may be bold enough to call you so, in plain English and letting the "cat out of the bag," Slew-foot is none other than Frank Chance, otherwise known as the Peerless Leader, who has quit the active playing field and has now retired to the little coop where the players get their ice water, and rest between innings.

It was only a few days ago that short dispatches from the eastern battlefields announced that Frank Chance had quit the diamond.

HAD TO QUIT.

It took pain and sickness to drive Chance from the first sack from which position he has led the Cubs to many a hard-fought victory. However, he did not give up until the doctors told him that his wise, scheming brain, wherein many cunning baseball stratagems had been evolved, to be executed brilliantly next day on the baseball field, would not stand the fierce rays of the summer sun beating down on an unshaded ball field. Chance has suffered too many blows in the head by a five-ounce ball hurled with all the tremendous speed of the fastest pitchers in the business, to stand the heat and fierce tenseness of a major league game.

This is no obituary of Frank Chance, as his name as a leader, if possible, is even greater than his name as a ball player and among these latter he has always stood in the front rank. In fact, some of the shrewdest judges in the business have said that Frank Chance is the greatest ball player that America ever produced. That is saying enough, as ball players are produced nowhere else, except in a few isolated places where they grow in small patches like palm trees in the desert.

STARTED EARLY.

When Frank Chance came to the Cub team fourteen years ago, he was a big overgrown kid. He was so big and strong for his years that he was awkward. But awkward was the only criticism that could be written against his name. He was fast. Heaven above, but he was fast. He weighed 190 pounds, and could do a hundred yards in 10 seconds flat, when he had to. And a bear didn't have to be chasing him, either.

Baseball fans in Chicago dearly love to recall the first time that Chance appeared in uniform as a regular player on the Cub team. But it wasn't called the Cub team then.

Adrian C. Anson, old "Pop" Anson, had just retired from the diamond, and the most popular term for the team among the Chicago sporting writers the first year following his departure, was "The Orphans."

Chance was signed by the Chicago management as a catcher. He had absolutely no league experience whatever. He had not even played in a bush league. Most of his experience was gained at a little fresh water college at Irvington, Cal., and with the team from his native town called the Fresno Tigers.

THE GRAND MUFF.

Chance appeared behind the bat in a game, and the first ball pitched the batter fouled high and straight up into the air. It was perhaps the easiest foul that a catcher could have been called upon to grab. There was no wind and the ball sailed straight up without a twist or a curve, and then began to slide gently back to earth. Chance fluttered under that foul like an old hen at the edge of a pond watching her brood of ducks on their first swim. He turned and twisted, ran back to the edge of the grand stand, and then nearly half way back to the plate. The foul fell with a dull sickening thud in the very spot Chance was standing when the batter hit it. People in the stand stood upon their feet and howled. They demanded that Chance be immediately taken out, and boiled on oil, while the more charitable yelled for a more merciful death in the form of hanging.

The young catcher merely gritted his teeth and stood up behind the plate. It would make a nice story to say that he starred from then on, cracked out three-baggers, threw runner after runner out at second, and performed other miracles of the N.P., which is code for National Pastime.

But, sad to relate, he didn't. He did not make any more fouls, but he committed other sins so grievous that to say that he "caught the game" would be rank hypocrisy. He just stood behind the bat, that was all.

But the young backstop showed qualities that afterwards made him famous. He was game. There was not a quitting hair in his head. He just kept trying. Finally he was tried out in right field. One game in particular, it was on the Fourth of July, and the bleachers in right field were filled, will always be remembered by the fan who saw the contest.

The right field bleachers were in a joyous mood, and they had plenty of giant firecrackers. Chance they didn't like, on account of his failure as a catcher. They goaded him and they threw their firecrackers at him. He misjudged two fly balls and let another one drop. But he did make three catches. After the game, Frank Selee, who was manager, said to Frank:

"Well, old boy, the firecrackers had you going."

"Firecrackers had me going?" yelled Frank in astonishment. "Like deuce they did. If it hadn't been for those murderers and porch-climbers trying to kill me I wouldn't have caught the three flies I did. I was determined to show them that I could catch a ball if it took both legs."

History, at least baseball history, says that after that Chance was put on first base. By that time he had his baptism of fire, and he made good from the start. It would be useless to tell the story of his success from then on, as every fan old enough to read knows more about Chance's history than they do about the history of the "Father of His Country." Sufficient to say is that Frank Chance stands out as one of the greatest and most heroic figures in baseball. He has displayed on the field, qualities of bravery that would have made many a general a world-famous hero. Even the astute Connie Mack said of him:

"I take my hat off to Frank Chance. Last year with a team without a dependable pitcher, he was second in the National League, a feat which I think stands out as the most remarkable in his more than remarkable career." Therefore, hats off to Chance.

SUSPENSION PLAN NOT A GOOD ONE.

The wholesale suspensions of ball players the past week by President Baum has stirred the local fans more than anything that has ever happened in the Coast League, and apparently the end is not yet.

Yesterday three players of the Oakland team were put out of the game for violent language and the chances are that they will be suspended today, if President Baum follows the same line of action he pursued in the case of the Vernon players.

When the fans assembled at Vernon yesterday morning they saw that Patterson, Burrell and Stinson were out of the Tiger line-up on telegraphic orders from President Baum that they should stand suspended pending a written report from the umpires in this city. As Patsy O'Rourke of the Sacramento team has been out for some days for a similar offense, no one knows what to expect next.

The average fan will think that President Baum has been far too strict in his action. He has come out against profanity among ball players on the field, and this is to be commended, but suspension seems too severe a sentence. Better throw them out of the game every day they continue it and a few such treatments would cure them. A fine occasionally might be equally impressive.

Profanity is a very hard matter to adjust in a ball game, and always will be. Baseball is far from being a parlor sport, but there is no reason why the spectators should have to hear profanity in every game. Players become excited in ball games and use improper language on many occasions, but a suspension is not the only way to cure them. It works too much of a hardship on a team and for this reason will not meet with the approval of the ordinary fan.

Some means must be taken to curb some of the exuberance of the players, but a suspension is not the way to do it. President Baum is probably following out what he thinks are the wishes of the directors of the league, but it is hardly likely that peace and harmony can be kept up in the baseball family by indefinite suspensions. Better try some other less drastic plan.

Gilmore also signed Billy Weeks to box Jack Herrick four rounds in San Francisco; and then to meet the winner of the Morrow-Kid George fight before the Oakland club.

COAST PLAYERS IN THE BIG LEAGUES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO (Ill.) April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Vitt, a Coast recruit, started things in today's game between Detroit and St. Louis, but his mates couldn't finish it. The Tigers got to Bill Bailey in the seventh round and pounded him out of the box. In that inning, with two men on bases, Vitt rapped out a triple and scored himself a moment later when Loudin cracked out a hit. Manager Wallace of the Browns got back into the game today, and Hallinan was sitting on the bench. Hogan batted in one of St. Louis's runs and crossed the pan himself. He had only three chances in left field, but one of them was a long running catch.

FROM THE MASON TO THE MAJESTIC

By Julian Johnson.

William Hodge, the hero of "The Man from Home," Sundayed with local friends at Catalina.

For yeahs and yeans, Hodge has been hearing of the wonderful fishing at Catalina.

After all he says is: "I don't believe it."

Hodge, by the way, is rapidly earning a place among the millionaires of the American stage. "The Man From Home" has been coining money for the past six seasons. Hodge's cut-in is exactly one-eighth of the gross receipts.

Some neat salary, eh? What?

Richard Barbee, formerly of the Belasco company, has returned to Los Angeles, after a few months spent with Harry Corson Clarke's company in Honolulu.

Barbee expresses himself somewhat eloquently regarding the tour. But as much as The Times is a daily journal, it is out of the question to reduce the Barbee utterances to type.

By the way, the first time you encounter young Mr. Barbee mention the Honolulu trip to him and you will be surprised at the magnificence and extent of his vocabulary.

"Ready Money," the James Montgomery's farce that had its first production at the Belasco last summer, has recently been presented in Chicago.

Bully. It's a hit, and one of those hits that come only every once in a very great while.

Frazee and Lederer are the managers of "Ready Money." They also own "Madame Sherry."

"Ready Money" is accredited with being the biggest success Chicago has known in years. It promises to run throughout the entire summer.

Marjorie Rambeau is due at the Majestic Theater Sunday night with her own company.

Los Angeles has never known a more popular actress than this one-time leading woman of the Burbank and Belasco companies. Her first bill will be "Merely Mary Ann," the latest Zangwill piece, in which she has been seen locally on several previous occasions.

There promises to be some theatrical doings in the vicinity of the Majestic Sunday night, for where Marjorie is, there you may be sure to find a splendid assortment of histrionic shenanigan, temperament, artistic pin-wheels, and other such stuff that helps make up theatrical life in a great city.

"The Rose of the Rancho," the Belasco production in which Ethel Barrymore starred three years ago, and "Cousin Kate," another early Barrymore vehicle, will be included in the Rambeau repertoire.

Miss Rambeau's first engagement at the Majestic will be of a fortnight's duration.

Then she will visit neighboring towns for a week, during which time the Majestic stage will be occupied by Margaret Anglin, in "Green Stockings," and then will come two more weeks of the Rambeau organization, at least.

During the first act of "The Balkan Princess" Sunday night a respectable looking white-whiskered Wheeze ambled on the stage of the Majestic.

Said one, attired in a military make-up to the other stage occupant —a waiter—as he noticed the approach of the Wheeze:

"Have you frog's legs?"

"No, sir," replied the fat waiter, "it's rheumatism that makes me walk this way."

"Great Gawd," shrieked the veteran Wheeze—for it was none other than Joe Miller's favorite Why-Does-a-Chicken-Cross-the-Street—"the first thing I know there won't be any spot on earth where I can find peace and security and happiness! Here they've dragged out my old friend, Mr. Frogs-Legs, and kicked him around like an old hound. Me for the outside!"

It was only too true. The comedians of "The Balkan Princess" had perpetrated that ancient gag of the flailing extremities of the frog—a gag supposed to have been laid away among the camphor balls and the cedar shavings these many, many aeons, although it was resurrected in Henry W. Savage's "Excuse Me" performance.

And h-i-s-s-t: They do say that it was Mr. Savage himself who dragged the old and honorable Frog Leg gag from its resting spot and made it do service for another laugh.

Laurette Taylor, soon to be seen on the Burbank stage, is spending a month or so at Venice.

Hartley Manners also seems to have a hankering for the Venice climate.

"The Mayor and the Manicure," a sketch that has won much popularity with local audiences and which is considered among vaudeville experts as one of the best one-act comedies on the vaudeville stage today, is heading this way over the Sullivan and Considine circuit and will shortly be seen at the Empress.

All of which reminds us that "La Diva," the diving Venus, is each week drawing nearer to the Empress stage, and Deane Worley is eagerly awaiting the time when he can cover the town with posters of this modern mermaid.

Louis Nethersole, celebrated brother of the slightly-known Olga, is expected in Los Angeles tomorrow. Mr. Nethersole is now directing the tour of Miss Anglin.

Two of Ed. Armstrong's chorus girls were reading their favorite morning publication and after looking at all the illustrations one said:

"I see by the paper that Andrew Carnegie is pretty sick."

"Oh, darn it all. I suppose that means another benefit," wearily responded the other merry-merry maiden.

"Madame X," the Alexander Bisson drama which will have its first stock company production at the hands of the Burbank company next Sunday afternoon, was received with much laughter on the occasion of its first production in Paris.

Bisson had earned a fine reputation as a writer of farces and the announcement that another play from his pen was to be staged quite naturally brought forth the conclusion that it, like all of its predecessors, was a farce.

The first audience that saw "Madame X" sat perplexed, quietly passing over the scenes intended by the author to be comedy and laughing uproariously at the big dramatic scenes, which they mistook for satire of the keenest sort.

When William A. Brady saw "Madame X" at the Amsterdam Theater in New York he wept fully as much as when he viewed the Gotham reception accorded to George Broadhurst's "The Dollar Mark."

However, the occasion for the Brady tears at the "Madame X" performance was totally different from the reason for the "Dollar Mark" weeps.

When the Morosco-Blackwood Company presents "The Man from Home," at either the Belasco or the Burbank, it is pretty certain that Harold Russell will be brought to Los Angeles to play his role of the Russian Grand Duke—a portrayal that, considered from every viewpoint, is pretty near flawless.

Jay Barnes is seriously considering contributing several personally autographed photos of himself in a George Washington attitude to the projectors of a Titanic benefit fund, the idea being to dispose of the aforesaid photos in the G. W. pose in the lobby of the theater in which the benefit is to occur.

The Benefit Committee is considering the Barnes proffer.

The belief that there must be a concealed senegambian is all that prevents an immediate acceptance of the generous offer.

BIG JUMP OF HAUERBACH, "MADAME SHERRY'S" PAPA.

BY JOSEPH D. MINSTER.

FROM college professor to playwright isn't quite as wide a leap as from college president to Governor of a State, but it is a jump with as many difficulties and one successfully accomplished by Otto A. Hauerbach, writer of the libretto of "Madame Sherry," "The Three Twins," "Bright Eyes," and a number of other very popular musical comedies of the past five years. He arrived at the Alexandria several days ago, and in a very quiet manner proceeded to gaze upon the wonders of this municipality for the first time, despite the fact that he lived on the Coast for eight years or more.

"Really when I think of it now," he remarked with a laugh, "it is funny that I should have come as far as San Francisco from Walla Walla and then miss coming to Los Angeles, but that is what I did when I started for the East after six years in the place that comes back because of the good taste in saying it over. You know when I said I was from Walla Walla among my first New York acquaintances, they thought I was trying to pass a joke on them. I was the Walla Walla baby with the Walla Walla cry."

While in the pretty Washington town, Hauerbach lived through his endeavors to get plain English into the craniums of the pupils of the Whitman College. "After six years I came to my Sabbatical year of rest and decided to go to New York to get my degree in Philosophy at Columbia," he said reminiscently, "but arriving in that place, I thought of Walla Walla and its Siwashes, and with a sigh, decided to bid good-by to it for all times."

"Tried the newspaper work, and then wrote a serious drama," he answered to the question of his endeavors to survive in New York. "The drama was accepted, but in the stress of the time was not staged. Strange as it may seem, it led to the other successes, bringing an order which evolved 'The Twins,' which really was the starting point. The drama incidentally will be produced for the first time this coming season."

At the same time another of Hauerbach's works will be offered to the New York public. According to the author it was built especially for Mme. Trentini, the tiny singer with the magnificent voice, who for two years has starred in "Naughty Marietta." The new work is very light, and built up from incidents of life on the East Side of New York. Victor Herbert is writing the lyrics.

When asked how the idea of the song craze "Every Little Movement Has a Meaning All Its Own" was brought forth, Hauerbach told of two very eccentric musicians of New York, man and wife, who had remodeled a barn into a studio where the elite took lessons in aesthetic dancing, which was then in its first popularity. "The vagaries of the woman, as well as the strange musical ideas of the man gave me the impetus to work up this song hit which was given a beautiful and catchy melody by Karl Hoschna, who unfortunately died last winter," said Hauerbach.

He paid a glowing tribute to Hoschna, who wrote the score for several of the successes in which he had produced the libretto. "The poor chap died while a very young man," he said "and America lost in him one of the finest composers it has ever had, at least, in the prospect of great future work. While in I discovered a genius in the musical world, who will probably have much fame if he lives long, Hugo Felix, who has written the music to 'The Love Shop,' which will have its first appearance in New York this coming season."

Hauerbach is a very pleasant and rather retiring sort of man, still in the early years of life. His successes have made him more thoughtful of the other fellow, and he was always more pleased to speak of some other playwright and his works than to refer to his own accomplishments in the brief few moments of the interview. He was visiting an old friend, former newspaper editor of Walla Walla, and the tales of those days were scarcely plausible with the accomplishments of the present. It is the librettist's intention to come back next winter for an extended sojourn, possibly to find material for a new work, and at least to write one here, where so many other of the nation's playwrights have produced some of their best plays.

who always looked as if he was going to muff a fly, even when he caught it.

After waching his team lose three straight games President Murphy returned to Chicago and declared the Cubs looked good to him, but they won't get any increases in salary on it.

It took a lot of time, but Frank Chance finally has been converted to the spit ball. E. Walsh helped the conversation last fall, and Cheney completed it.

Looking at which is up and which is down gives the National League much more comfort than it does the American. Pittsburgh, New York and Chicago tagging the race, makes it look like a mixup until July anyhow.

CLEVELAND IMPROVING.

Cleveland at last has shown quick wisdom in gathering in Klawitter and strengthening the pitching staff as suddenly as possible. Klawitter is a good pitcher and a corking good ballplayer, besides. He has been ripe for three years, but New York couldn't see him a year ago and shoved him back. He is a big, good-natured German, who loves to play ball and would help the Giants immensely just now.

Detroit's hard luck still clings. Jim Delehanty, who was out of it most of last year with an infected wound in the leg, has smashed a bone in the arm and is out again.

Half a season with a third-rate road company imbued Ty Cobb with the star's right to claim the best dressing-room. Take away your actors. We used to be satisfied if they let us into a hotel.

If you need further proof of difference in class of leagues, Dare Devil Dave Altizer is again hitting about three a day on the nose in the A.A.

It is all right to die leading your men in battle, if you are not more valuable to them in the headquarters tent. We'll miss Chance from the firing line, but much better that than to contribute for a memorial.

The chief result of the spring training this year appears to have been the discovery of some sixteen bad hotels.

We are reading Christy Mathewson's story with much interest, especially as parts of it are well rewritten and adapted to the Giants.

TUESDAY MORNING

FACTS, FEATURES AND FANCIES FOR WOMEN AND MEN BY OLIVE GRAY

DAILY BEAUTY HINT: T[illegible] hair, was boasting to me recently of returning to her in full measure what had acted like magic in its restoration.

"I always make it a point," said Elizabeth, "to see something beautiful early in the morning if possible and especially on Monday morning, as then I start out with a mind illuminated, and everything seems better and more harmonious during the remainder of the day and during the entire week."

I like that idea, and as we were just starting for a tour down Broadway I had an inspiration.

"Then let us go past the window where there is a display of Royal Doulton!" I said.

"How do you know there is such a display?" asked my companion. "I passed there Saturday and saw no such exhibition."

"You will find it now, though," I replied, with an air of assurance "for a member of that house told me it would be there, and that is a house which harbors no disappointments or misstatements." And sure enough, there was the display, in the very first window. "One of those plates," I said, "is of a set which is valued at $1500 per set." "I wonder which it is?" said my friend, her interest at once aroused. "It might be almost any of those." And surely it might. Every plate shown there is a gem of art—in reality an art treasure, signed by an artist of world renown. "I suppose, it must be the central one of those shown," I said, "but let us go inside—to the Tiffany room, and see the full display."

The Tiffany room of this house is a beautiful room in which to show anything and its history has encircled some handsome exhibitions, but I was ready to agree with Elizabeth that it had never been more resplendent than now, with the wonderful productions from the Doulton factories.

This is, in reality, an exhibition of the different lines made by those great factories, and it is sent around to its patrons for a stay of a few days in each city. Thus are the customers of the store enabled to make a selection quite as well as if they visited the factories in England. Probably they can, in fact make a better selection—for factories do not welcome retail trade. I could imagine nothing prettier than the arrangement of this ware in the local Tiffany room, with just the proper lighting to bring out the values in the vases, and the articles so disposed as to admit of intelligent selection. Elizabeth and I amused ourselves "playing" that we had carte blanche to choose whatever we wished for our (mythical) bungalow. You know everyone has an ideal home which they mean to have when their ship anchors—and it is a pet delusion of ours that we shall build ours together. But, of course, we would never agree upon any part of it—any more than we did about the Royal Doulton. We decided to first pick out a tea set—as that we MUST have. But she wanted the one with the tiny Dresden-like ornamentation in many colors, and I wanted that with turquoise predominating—and, of course, we would be obliged to take both. It was the same about plates and about breakfast-tray sets and bed-side sets and all. When it came to plates it was even more difficult to decide between the many styles—some in most ornate and intricate patterning of gold, and others presenting a scene of rare beauty. Each plate was beautiful enough to frame and place in a position of honor upon a mantel or in a cabinet—and as we listened from a little book presented by our inspection the artists who do the Doulton decorating are men of world-wide reputation, and much of the pottery is made by persons who are following the trade—if anything so artistic could be called a "trade"—as their ancestors, who have worked there for generations. Thus is the craftsmanship skill transmitted from father to son, along with the love of the honored craft.

It is useless to try to describe to you those Doulton masterpieces, but as the exhibition will remain in the Broadway house for two or three days you may have the privilege of going for yourself this beautiful collection.

The Carpeting of Spring.

Never have I seen more dainty carpets than those shown in a high-class Broadway furniture house at present. The soft, cool tints of gray, with delicate lavender flowering in the border; the porcelain blue, with Dresden bouquets; the lavender, with its lovely roses and deeper shading in the soft rosegrays—all speak of a restful harmony in the furnishing of the bedroom, which will make that a place of rest to the senses, as well as to the tired body.

A Treasure of Wampum.

I met the other day, such a strange and interesting treasure which was worn head-wise, in concession to the present fashion.

It was a multiple chain of wampum—wampum-strands and strands of the tiny shells of the aborigine—their measure of value. Flat, circular pieces hewn out of bones and stones and shells, which had as much meaning to the people who instituted them as our dollars, dimes and gold in their softly beautiful tones of gray and white, these bar-

Speaking of Wampum.

The other day, such a strange thing as a multiple chain of wampum, which was the treasure which was in concession to the Indians, was brought to my notice. It consisted of many strands of the tiny shells—their measure was about that of the circular pieces hewn from stones and shells, which were used as much meaning by the Indians to them as gold dimes and gold pieces do to us. The softly beautiful purple and white these barbaric—or rather primal—pieces of currency suggested the skin of snakes—the glistening bark of the silver birch and many other unformulated things of the forest—a sort of composite, in fact, of nature's own stores turned to modern use. There was, in the passive coils of the beads, lying peacefully upon the breast of their wearer, a suggestion of the wisdom of woodland things which by means of so-called instinct, reach directly the objective point—a hint of the power of primordial forces slumbering in the sun but ready to wake instantly to terrific warfare. Not the stylish gown, nor the embroidered bodice, the hat of fashion's latest cry nor the Parisian wrap of a cut which portrayed the couturier's triumph, could fence in my imagination, when I looked upon that strange ornament which might have been selected because its color tones blended harmoniously with those of the ensemble of the costume. Wampum! Why, the very word itself suggests an almost infinite past—a period when time was not ticked away, but was measured rather by the great cycles of nature, and money was even more closely allied than now, with time—when, in fact, time and money slept side by side in the jungle, and each was the plaything of man, rather than a matter of life and death, as now.

Excellent for Luncheon.

Whole tomatoes stuffed with forcemeat of either shrimp and cabbage, or chicken salad, or with chopped peppers and finely-hashed cold ham make an excellent luncheon dish. Serve each tomato upon a crisp lettuce leaf and place over it a generous tablespoonful of mayonnaise dressing. Either salted wafers or the new seven-grain salted biscuit should be served with this dish.

Fashion Approves.

Corsages are swathed in tulle. Sleeves on some of the evening dresses are tiniest puffs of tulle.

Taffeta is truly "the silk of the hour." Plain, changeant, brocaded, flowered and striped—all are in evidence.

THEATER ON NORMAL SITE.

Municipal Art Center Committee Plans for Greek Playhouse, Library, Art Gallery, Etc., on Fifth Street.

If the plans of members of the Municipal Art Center Committee carry, a Greek theater with a seating capacity of at least 25,000 persons will be located at the old Normal site at the head of Fifth street. The committee has organized with Fred Blanchard, president of the Gamut Club, as its chairman. It will hold a meeting Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Woman's Clubhouse, at which its bylaws will be adopted.

Represented on the committee are at least twenty civic, literary and musical organizations, as well as all of the women's clubs of the city. Its formation is the direct outgrowth of the Tetrazzini concert at the Shrine Auditorium Easter Sunday afternoon, secured by Mrs. D. C. McCan, president of the Friday Morning Club, in behalf of the club's Music Committee and its repeated programme plan.

While the committee has evolved no specific plans or recommendations, the general idea of the members is to build a magnificent structure on the Normal site which will provide for a public library, a public art gallery, a municipal theater, and many smaller convention and committee-rooms. They also wish to use a portion of the ground for a large Greek theater and to increase the size of the property for this purpose.

They anticipate some slight objection to the location of the library at that point, as one member of the library board thinks that the hill is too much of a climb for women patrons. The committee will meet this objection by citing the ease with which an elevator may be run from the basement floor, as at the Courthouse.

LIQUOR TRADE AS SIDE LINE.

Messenger Boys Are Charged With Having Sold Whisky and Beer. Quantity Found in Room.

Charles Regarthen and H. H. Lewis, messenger boys arrested by members of the Metropolitan Squad, are thought by the authorities to be the ring-leaders in a retail liquor traffic that has been conducted out of the Western Union branch office at No. 118 West Third street, for several months.

The boys are charged with having violated the liquor ordinance, and in default of bail are held at the Central Police Station pending their appearance in the Police Court today.

For several weeks reports have been received by the police about boys operating out of the telegraph office on Third street, selling beer and whisky, especially on Sunday. A trap was laid for them which resulted in the arrest of Regarthen, who works for the Western Union, and Lewis, employed by the California Messenger Company. The latter pleaded not guilty yesterday and the former took time to plead.

According to an alleged confession, which the police say Regarthen made, Lewis kept a stock of liquors in his room, No. 247 South Los Angeles street. When any of the messengers got an order for beer or whisky on Sunday or after midnight during the week, they got the liquor from Lewis. A quantity of liquor, some of it in iced water, was found in his room.

Regarthen was recently released from jail after serving 100 days for trafficking in drugs

DETECTIVES CHARGE A STRING OF MANY CRIMES.

Cleveland and St. Paul Officers Contend for Custody of Alleged Forger and the Ohio City Wins. Boasts He Will Commit Suicide at the First Opportunity.

John Mowbray, alleged St. Paul check forger, who attempted to commit suicide in the City Jail by refusing to eat, and who feigned an attack of appendicitis that he might be taken to the Receiving Hospital, where he expected to meet Miss Ruth Perreman of No. 1362 Wright street, and hoped a fatal dose of morphine would be smuggled to him, has been forging checks for two years and is wanted in several eastern cities, according to the police.

The young man's true name is unknown to the local police. Mowbray admits that he has not told it and refuses to do so, as he puts it, because he does not want to disgrace his family. He added John King to his aliases yesterday, giving that as his name when the hospital attaches questioned him. Prior to that he was known also as John Kane.

When the St. Paul authorities were informed that the young man was under arrest here they notified Capt. Flammer that an officer would leave at once for him. Through a news service Cleveland officers learned of the young man's capture and they asked Capt. Flammer to hold him for them.

When Cleveland ascertained St. Paul also wanted the young man, the former laid a priority claim on the ground that the Cleveland checks were passed before those in St. Paul. Upon that showing St. Paul waived its right to Mowbray, and wired Capt. Flammer to turn him over to Cleveland officers, who expect to start West some day this week. In the interim Mowbray will be guarded day and night to prevent attempts to commit suicide. He has made the boast that he will kill himself at the first opportunity.

It was also ascertained yesterday that Mowbray has been searched for by the police in various cities for more than two years, but always managed to elude the clutches of the law just as they were about to grasp him. It is said Mowbray's scheme was to visit a city, form acquaintances and then float a number of checks and pass on to another city.

In police parlance Mowbray is known as "a cheap one," as he seldom floated a check for more than $100.

BRILLIANT BALL IS FOR CHARITY.

More Than Three Hundred Couples Dance and Play Cards for Weal of the Poor at Goldberg-Bosley Hall—Patronesses' Efforts Secure Goodly Sum.

Beneath festoons of white and red carnations, flowers in the colors of the chapter, members of Los Angeles Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy and their friends to the number of more than 300 couples danced for charity last evening. Held in the Goldberg-Bosley assembly rooms, the tenth annual charity ball of the women of the south was one of the most brilliant in the long list of notable functions given by them.

For those who did not care to dance, card tables were provided. A generous collation was spread at midnight, the tables being decorated profusely with narcissus and smilax. Prizes for the games were donated by Mrs. Leslie C. Brand, Mrs. E. M. Stephens and Mrs. Erasmus Wilson. The president of the chapter, Mrs. Matthew S. Robertson, was in general charge of the arrangements.

The Card Table Committee was composed of the following: Mrs. Leslie C. Brand, Mrs. Hewitt, Mrs. Harry Purdon and Mrs. B. Long. Mrs. William Irving Hollingsworth and Mrs. James T. Fitzgerald were in charge of the ball.

A good sum was secured, due to the indefatigable efforts of the officers of the chapter and the subcommittees, and it will be used to the best advantage in charity work during the coming year.

The patronesses of the ball were: Mmes. William Irving Hollingsworth, Erasmus Wilson, B. N. Coffman, A. M. Stephens, John Wolfskill, Matthew S. Robertson, J. T. Fitzgerald, L. C. Brand, Walter Perry Story, C. G. Stanton, Allan Ellington, Ralph Williams, Willedd Andrews, Samuel Knight Rindge, David S. Barmore and Raymond Stevens. The name of Mrs. J. Ross Clark had headed the list of patronesses, but owing to the disaster which has bereaved the family, she was unable to be present.

FASCINATING DESERT LECTURE.

Young Pasadena Man Will Tell of His Experiences on Sandy Wastes and Show Rare Views.

Lou Westcott Beck, the young American desert traveler and explorer, will deliver a lecture at the Woman's Club House on next Saturday evening, under the auspices of and for the benefit of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The subject will be the most enticing one of "A Prospector and His Dog on the" illustrated with 150 stereopticon views. Illustrated with 150 stereopticon views Mr. Wescott is a resident of Pasadena, and his lectures have proven fascinating to thousands who have heard them and seen his pictures. He is an apostle of better protection for the prospectors and others who find themselves on the desert, by the erection of more signboards and directions for finding water and how to escape the terrors of the sun-swept wastes.

Here is a message of hope and good cheer from Mrs. C. J. Martin, Boone Mill, Va., who is the mother of eighteen children. Mrs. Martin was cured of stomach trouble and constipation by Chamberlain's Tablets after five years of suffering, and now recommends these tablets to the public. Sold by all dealers.—[Adv.

MUSIC AND THE STAGE.

sly bear. He can pick up rattlesnakes without being bit. There were no rattlesnakes in the Orpheum, so he could not demonstrate. One day while walking on Sixth avenue, New York, he heard a cricket in a bakery. The cricket was vibrating with him. But this was nothing. He can locate all insects without trouble, though he did no locating yesterday afternoon. He can sing like an earthworm. Its song, he says, is silent. He gave some remarkable imitations of bird calls. He did it by trilling his upper lip and using the rings in his throat. He demonstrated vibration with a jug of gas. He got the gas from his dressing-room. It was not very good gas. He had used better. But his experiment was a success. After lighting the gas, he put it out by vibrating. He gave several interesting demonstrations of the principles of wireless telegraphy. He called them harmonic vibrations. He said the reason a dog yelped when a piano played was because the dog was vibrating in tune with the instrument. He did not explain why the same dog vibrated in tune with all instruments. He filled the Orpheum with tuning fork vibrations. He said probably someone would yell; but nobody vibrated with the fork. Anyhow, the tuning fork put out the gas. It was very remarkable.

This was not all Brother Kellogg did. He gave some interesting demonstrations of woodcraft. He and Ishi alone know the secret. He rubbed two sticks together; carbon formed; a spark appeared. Forming his mouth to resemble a doughnut he exhaled upon the spark. It ignited some cotton waste. A boy stood ready with a wet towel to stifle the conflagration. It was quite exciting. Kellogg is well worth seeing and hearing.

The fearless Ce Dora—"the girl in the golden globe"—produced a genuine sensation. Gentlemen bit hard and ladies gasped, but the daredevil in the center of the globe was not touched, nor did Ce Dora fall from her motorcycle as she circled the inside of the globe at the rate of forty miles an hour. She wore beautiful pink tights. The act was esthetic, as well as dangerous. It would have been distressing had she fallen. Ce Dora is very good looking.

The Whittakers from overseas started their act, called "Dick Whittington," with some very depressing cockney burlesque humor. Happily, however, they soon retired behind screens and changed their clothes. When they reappeared the lady was in brown tights, and her male companion wore the fur of a cat. He did some excellent pussy tricks, which proved conclusively that he had made close and observing study of cats. The act, however, was hardly fulfilling.

Orville Stamm, heralded as the greatest-developed boy in the world, turned out to be a husky, well-built youth, who balanced pianos on his stomach and lifted horses. Most of his applause, I noticed, came from the sweet young things. His act was better staged than the majority of strong-man acts, and was not unsatisfying.

Art Bowen cartooned almost as badly as he sang. He was mildly amusing.

The holdovers were all good. Bernard and Butler performed in ragtime as last week. "Everywife," a symbolical morality play, was well worth seeing a second time. The team work of McKay and Cantwell, the breezy fellows from Broadway, again awed and flabbergasted patrons long used to crudities.

The opening number of the orchestra and Pathe's weekly news bulletin (looked upon for some unknown reason as time fillers in vaudeville) were better than some of the acts. On the whole the bill was well received and gratifying.

Empress.

The Empress bill this week is replete with surprises, as those who attended the opening performance yesterday afternoon were quick to discover.

In the first place, two acts which were not widely heralded, went so well that they deserve headline honors, and, secondly, the headliner herself, Eva Ray, billed as "The Mysterious Exponent of Thaumaturgy" and "The High Priestess of Psychic Mystery," and who may be all of these things, proved to be even more. She's an A No. 1 exponent of feminine loveliness.

Honestly, if you are an old-timer and have seen so many acts like Eva Ray's that you don't think you would like this one, don't stay away on that account; it is really worth one's while just to meander down as near to Eddie Michael's ragtime back as it's possible to get, and just feast on her beauty.

Moreover, the act itself is capital. It is laid out on the same old lines, but Miss Ray has a method all her own, and the absence of a shroud during the question-answering period gives this part of the performance an air of mystery which one is at a loss to explain.

Miss Ray makes no claim to supernatural powers. She merely offers her offering for the entertainment that it will bring, and leaves the audience to draw its own conclusions. She is a bewitching and baffling success.

The two acts which came as a gratifying surprise, and stepped way out of their class, were Carl Randall, singer and dancer, and "Senator" Francis Murphy.

Randall's act is very similar to that originated by that piquant English comedian, Laddie Cliff, whom most Los Angeles theater-goers probably saw when he first came to this country.

Randall's songs and dances are his own, of course, and are extremely clever. In fact, the lad is one of the neatest and most graceful dancers who has honored the local vaudeville boards this season. He earns a splendid hand, and will not be soon forgotten.

The "Senator" gives one of those time-honored political harangues in German-silver English which is replete with absurd phraseology and not a few new jokes. It is just the sort of thing that the average audience thoroughly enjoys, and keeps everyone in rollicking humor from start to finish.

The bill opens with Mozetto's juggling act, which is succeeded by Sheridan and Sloane in a skit called "A Tag-Day Episode." It is a pleasing bunch of music and nonsense.

Beatrice McKenzie, Walter Shannon and William Brumwell present a sprightly sketch called "More Ways Than One," which tells how a young singer usurps the studio, the name and even the clothes of an artist, in order to meet an actress, and, by embracing the opportunity to sing to her, pave the way for a managerial introduction, and secure an engagement.

Miss McKenzie, of course, is the actress, and Mr. Shannon, the singer. The story itself is most amusing and gives the couple an opportunity for some singing, that is improved to the utmost, and makes one of the best numbers of the bill.

An unscheduled feature of the programme was a bawling infant which did all in its power, quite without malice, to "queer" the opening acts.

Pantages.

The star of the Pantages variety entertainment is nameless, as far as the bill of fare is concerned. He is an eccentric comedian in Zeb Zarrow's "Isle of Joy" troupe. He does almost everything except to talk or sing, and he works with a rapidity, a variety and a boisterous unction—if there can be such a thing as "boisterous unction"—which are simply immense. Zarrow's contribution to current hilarity is in a beach setting, and consists mainly of absurd bicycle and vehicle stunts—with the aforesaid unnamed joy-maker revoluting at home hundreds of revolutions per minute during the whole time the uproar endures.

Leavitt and Dunsmore have a protean playlet, "The Woman Next Door," which—as protean playlets go—is diverting and clever. Nelson Leavitt is the works, cafe, face and key of the thing, enacting characters as different as a western bad man and an Italian organ grinder. Miss Harriet Dunsmore, pretty and pleasing, is an agreeable foil.

Joe Edmonds and a company of six or seven persons appear in "The Naked Truth," a freak sketch which has been traveling the western vaudeville for many years, and which always seems certain of the regulation amount of laughter. The raison d'etre is a statuette dropped in a well. This statue compels all in proximity to tell the truth on penalty of losing an article of clothing. The plot does not need further diagramming. It telegraphs—and, also, to make a bull, appears by the vanishing process.

Fisher and Green, a pair of Jerusalem commentators, do some racial dialogue and a few songs. Some of the humor is new, some has long and honorable record, some of it is slightly Roquefort.

Starr and Vail, "dainty soubrettes," as the truthful-for-once programme alleges, begin the performance. One—I don't know which—has a good singing voice. Both are pretty.

Calve Tonight.

Mme. Emma Calve arrived in Los Angeles Sunday afternoon and after automobiling around the city, trying to remember some of the beautiful parks she visited several years ago, and becoming astonished at the wonderful growth of the Southern California metropolis, went to Pasadena and is a guest of the Hotel Green.

Last night she sang her "Carmen" programme at Clune's Theater, that city, with every seat filled, and many turned away, and comes to the Auditorium tonight giving the same programme, together with a recital first part, assisted by Galileo Gasparri, dramatic tenor, and Brahm van den Berch, pianist.

"Johnny."

Fischer's company at the Lyceum opened in its revival of "When Johnny Comes Marching Home" last evening. Director James, ill for the past week, resumed his chair and conducted with his old-time vigor.

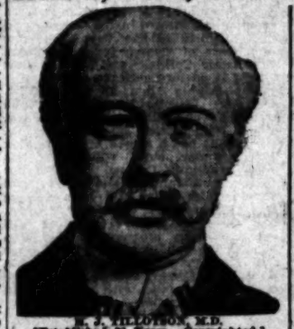
CURED IN FIVE DAYS

Hernia, Piles, Fistula and Varicose Veins



H. J. TILLOTSON, M.D.
[Established 21 Years. Copyrighted.]

I publish my true photograph, correct name and personally conduct my office. I am the longest established, most successful and reliable, as medical credentials and press records prove. Imitation of my copyrighted announcement is an evidence that I am a bona-fide specialist. I make this statement that you will know you consult a Specialist who sees and treats patients personally. I possess skill and experience acquired in such a way that no other can share. Experience is the safe standard by which judgment may be valued and results obtained.

A thorough investigation should be made by every ailing person as to the specialist he consults. Duty and destiny to self and those who depend upon you demand the best medical attention. I have the ability and can give you this service. I have always charged a very reasonable fee, so that my services may be obtained by any man who sincerely desires to be cured. I make no misleading statements or unbusinesslike propositions. Neither do I desire to be particularly independent, and I would like to have you for a patient if you will come to me on a strictly professional basis, and the inducements that I offer, which are my ability and thirty-one years' successful experience. Time-saving treatment and guarantee of cure of certain diseases.

NO MONEY REQUIRED TO COMMENCE TREATMENT. Many patients have no confidence in their doctor because he demands pay before a cure has been effected, and there are many who have been misinformed about their condition, or through unsuccessful treatment have become skeptical and think there is no cure for them. I want an opportunity to treat such cases. It makes an difference about the financial part, as I accept pay for my services as benefits are derived, when I am satisfied the patient is reliable. Health is capital at interest. I will prove my ability to cure you before asking pay for my services.

WRITTEN GUARANTEE.

Dr. Tillotson's written guarantee means a cure or no pay for services. I guarantee to cure certain diseases or refund every dollar you have paid me for my services. My services cost you nothing unless I cure your Varicose Veins, Hernia, Piles, Fissures, Fistula or any disease I guarantee to cure. My terms are reasonable and no more than you are willing and able to pay.

READ MY BOOK—It contains information every young man, husband and father should have regarding himself. Book Sent Free to those who, in my opinion, will be benefited by it. Call or write before treating for disease or disorders.

Many Cases Cured Permanently in FIVE DAYS. Most Time-Saving, Most Natural, Most Safe. No Detention from Occupation, Family or Home. A Radical and Permanent Cure. I Will Give $500 to Any Charity as a Guarantee That Every Statement in This Announcement is True.

I cure rapidly, painlessly and at less expense. Cured patients are my testimonials; however, I do not make patients' names merchandise by publishing them. I will give conclusive evidence of my merit, which is obtained and maintained by ability. I invite you to come to my office and I will explain my treatment for Hernia, Piles, Fistula, Varicose Veins, Pelvic, Nervous, Blood, Kidney, Bladder and Rectal Diseases. I will give you free a physical examination; if necessary a microscopical and chemical analysis of secretions to determine existing pathological and histological conditions. Every person should take advantage of this opportunity to learn their true condition. Certainty of cure is what you want.

VARICOSE VEINS.

In the cure of Varicose Veins, Ruptures and Associate Diseases of the Pelvic Region, I am successful in bringing to bear the curative power of Nature's forces in such a manner as to supplant the old-time, wide-open surgical operation. Often it required several weeks to cure these conditions and the method which I would use in such as to endanger the life of the patient and require a long period of convalescence. Now an absolute cure can be accomplished in a few days and with perfect safety.

TRUSSES SELDOM CURE RUPTURE.

Disregard for existing Hernias has cost many lives. The smallest hernias are the most dangerous to life, because of the increased liability to strangulation. I am aware that a great deal of fraud has been practiced on the public in connection with the alleged cure of rupture, and when I say positively that I cure Rupture, to stay cured, I do not expect any one to accept my statement without investigation of my professional work. My claim to your confidence is based on absolute facts, accomplished results. A personal consultation. I will make a free examination and can explain every detail of your Hernia and demonstrate to you the curative value of the method I have discovered. I invite the careful investigation of any person who sincerely desires to be cured. I cure Rupture, in selected cases, with perfect safety, and entail no suffering, and do not detain you from occupation under written Guarantee. Many cases cured to stay cured by a few treatments.

PILES, FISTULA, RECTAL DISEASES.

These diseases are very common; most frequently found in persons of middle or advanced age; are exceedingly annoying, often very painful, and sometimes very dangerous, and frequently unfit one for pleasure or occupation. My treatment and successes are the result of years of experience: my treatment is kindly applied. I cure Piles without cutting. Some cases are cured by one or more treatments. If I do not cure your Piles, Fistula and other Rectal Diseases, my treatment does not cost you anything. Gentleness in treatment comes from treating many cases, so I guarantee a cure of Piles, Fistula, Ulcers and all curable Rectal Diseases.

KIDNEY AND BLADDER DISEASES.

With these diseases you may have many complications that are presented by any other diseased organs. By my searching illumination of the bladder I determine accurately the diseases and by my microscopical examination and urinalysis make sure of the condition of the kidneys, thus laying foundations for scientific treatment.

I OFFER A FREE CONSULTATION AND EXAMINATION.

RHEUMATISM CANNOT EXIST

In the human body if you will use Trunk's Prescription for Rheumatism and Gout. It is ridiculous, absurd and preposterous; in fact, it is a pity and a shame to talk about Rheumatism and Gout, much less suffer with it, either inflammatory, muscular, sciatic or any other form of Rheumatism.

Trunk's Prescription for Rheumatism and Gout sells for $1.50, or six for $7.50. This Prescription does not ruin the stomach, it does not depress the heart. Eat all the meat and good food you wish while taking Trunk's Prescription. It does not contain any Mercury, Salicylate of Soda, Oil of Wintergreen or narcotics of any kind, but it absolutely and positively overcomes any kind of Rheumatism or Gout on earth. What more do you want? There is nothing just as good and it is impossible to get something better. It is also an excellent Liver Medicine.

NEWS REPORTS FROM CORRESPONDENTS OF THE TIMES.

Pasadena.

ROSE SHOW IS NOW PLANNED.

Pasadena Bank Advised that Money Is Replaced.

School Children Elect Marian Banbury Their Queen.

(Office of The Times, 12 S. Fair Oaks avenue.)

PASADENA, April 23.—A rose show will be the next attraction in Pasadena. The recent rains have brought out the roses in the city so that there are more, and better ones, than there have been for years, and society people of the city have asked the Pasadena Horticultural Society to cooperate with them to arrange an exhibition for May 4, at No. 21 West Colorado street.

No flowers will be permitted in the hall but roses. These, however, will be collected in large quantities and artistically arranged.

The members of the Pasadena Horticultural Society met last night to perfect arrangements. The following committee was appointed to take charge of the affair: Otto Heutschy, Frank Tallow, Roderick MacKenzie and George H. Kennedy.

LOSS IS MADE GOOD.

A. E. Edwards, cashier of the First National Bank, yesterday received a telegram from the Continental Commercial National Bank of Chicago stating that the company which insured the shipment of $25,000, which was lost in the mails before it reached Pasadena, a short time ago, has made good the loss.

WELL-KNOWN WOMAN DIES.

Mrs. Jessie Porter Whitaker, who had been a resident of Pasadena for several years, and was well known, died last Sunday at her home, No. 125 South Grand avenue, at the age of 56. She was the widow of the late W. H. Whitaker of Cleveland, O. Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the Reynolds & Van Nuys chapel.

QUEEN IS ELECTED.

The voting of school children of the city last week for Queen of the May resulted yesterday in the following count:

Marion Banbury, first; Martha Kahl, second; Florence Stone, third; Catherine Hermann, fourth; Dorothy Woodbury, fifth; Leona Heiberg, sixth; Marion Judd and Katherine Sanjager, seventh, and Viola Richert, eighth.

The queen will lead the procession at the May Day celebration, which is to take place at Carmelita Playground, and afterward preside over the entertainment that will follow.

WOULD STOP SMOKING.

Under the direction of Dr. B. M. Lawrence, an anti-cigarette enthusiast, and members of the Board of Education and school officials, a vote is soon to be taken at the different public schools of the city and at Throop Polytechnic Institute to see how many pupils favor legislation prohibiting the manufacture and sale of cigarettes. Lawrence has been in Pasadena for several days and has been in conference with different residents of the city who are interested in the movement.

BENCHES ARE PROVIDED.

Fifty benches will be taken from the city parks to the corner of Arlington Drive and Fair Oaks avenue today 6 for the comfort of visiting Shriners and their families, who will leave the electric cars there to proceed by automobile to the Busch gardens. A. J. Bertonneau, secretary of the Board of Trade, made the request of the Board of City Commissioners yesterday and it was readily acceded to.

All the musicians who comprise the Municipal Band have entered into a contract to play in Los Angeles that day, there can be no music here, unless one of the bands from that city accompanies the visitors on their trip.

CITY BRIEFS.

Recently-enacted county ordinances make it illegal for Pasadena to continue using the City Farm for the disposal of garbage after May 1. The city officials hope that an extension of time will be granted.

George A. Damon, dean of the Throop Polytechnic Institute, left Pasadena last night for Berkeley where he will deliver an address before students of the University of California.

The amateur society production of the "Sho-gun," which will be given next Monday and Tuesday nights at Clune's Theater, as a benefit for the Emergency League, is attracting much attention among society people and all of the boxes have been sold.

Comic opera, "The Sho-Gun," Clune's, next Monday and Tuesday nights. Benefit Home for Aged women.

Ranches, home sites in beautiful La Canada Valley. H. L. Hayman.

WANT NICKEL FARE.

SAWTELLE, April 22.—C. H. Wyant, the newly-elected president of the Board of City Trustees, in entering upon the discharge of his official duties has promised the citizens of Sawtelle that he will do everything within the power for them in the matter of securing a 5-cent car fare on the Pacific Electric within the city limits. He says: "The extra 5 cents charged west of Ninth street to the city limits at Cambridge is unjust and I will make a supreme effort to see that justice is given the people by the railway company." It is the general belief of the public that the trolley line will continue to strenuously oppose this demand, as its granting would make the first break in the schedule of fares which now permits the collection of 25 cents for a ride in either direction between the beach and Los Angeles. Sawtelle has been insisting ever since the day of incorporation that a 5-cent fare should apply throughout the city, and it was in the hope of securing this that a number of votes were encouraged to be cast in favor of the incorporation of the city.

PLANNING NEW ARROYO PARK.

South Pasadena Women's Organization Is Working to Bring About Its Immediate Creation.

SOUTH PASADENA, April 22.—Plans for the early commencement of work on the proposed Arroyo Seco Park are gaining momentum and the prospects are bright for the culmination of the dreams of the various civic bodies of South Pasadena, Pasadena and Los Angeles.

Committees from the Women's Improvements Association of this city are working quietly but effectively to arrange things to be brought to the attention of the city officials at an early date. Just what course will be pursued to acquire the necessary park land within the city limits is not yet definitely settled, but South Pasadena will not be found wanting when the gigantic park plan is brought to a focus.

NEWS BRIEFS.

A pretty home wedding occurred Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, when Miss Florence E. Johnston, daughter of Mrs. Florence B. Johnston, was wed to O. J. Riggs of Los Angeles, Rev. George C. King, pastor of the Methodist Church, officiating, at the home of the bride, No. 1418 Fremont avenue. Roses were used exclusively in decorating for the affair, and a short reception followed the service, after which supper was served, and they left immediately on a wedding trip. They will be at home to their friends after May 1 at No. 807 Fremont avenue.

Prominent citizens of the city are considering the subject of a children's playground, where outside of school hours the boys and girls may have some place of innocent amusement, under a competent instructor, and thereby be kept off the streets. The school trustees have offered the children the use of the playground apparatus at the different school grounds, which privilege is being both taken care of and enjoyed by the children, but outside of school hours no one is present to direct their use of the apparatus, or to guard against accidents. That a children's playground would be appreciated in this community, provided with a competent instructor, and will do much toward solving the boy problem, and through his sports unconsciously lead him into a life of usefulness, is beyond question.

H. J. Christ was elected president of the California Prohibition Workers last evening at a meeting of prohibition advocates at the Christian Church. The other officers are Edwin Cooper, vice-president; Mrs. Rose Thayer, secretary, and Mrs. Dora Cope, treasurer. Rev. Booker Smith and James H. Woertendyke were elected to the Executive Committee and were authorized to select a third member. The object of the league is to study the liquor problem and to advocate the cause of the Prohibition party.

Mrs. G. W. Panefield of Pasadena avenue has as her house guest Mrs. A. A. Esterbrook of Michigan, a woman well known in the literary and college world of the East. She has been dean of women for many years at Adrian College, and before that taught in eastern colleges.

Miss Sophia Allen, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles L. Allen, No. 805 Brent avenue, died at noon today. Death was caused by heart failure, the effects of an attack of pneumonia last summer, since which she has been gradually failing. Besides her father and mother she leaves two sisters, Miss Anise and Miss Elinore and two brothers, Charles Allen, Jr., and George. Funeral services will occur Tuesday morning at the Holy Family Church, corner of El Centro and Fremont avenues, at 10 o'clock, Rev. R. J. Cotter, D.D., pastor of the church, officiating, with interment in Mountain View Cemetery.

REDONDO BEACH.

REDONDO BEACH, April 22.—The sight of Frenchmen running with swords in the business section of the town created considerable excitement yesterday afternoon, though no alarm was felt when it was discovered they were merely members of a moving-picture company. About forty members of the American Biograph Company enacted amusing scenes of a French comedy, "Neighbors," in the street, on the esplanade and in the grounds of Hotel Redondo. At one of the most exciting moments when the entire company was running down the cement steps to the esplanade, at break-neck speed, one of the actors, in his anxiety to carry out the injunctions of the manager "to hurry," ran pellmell into the camera and knocked it down, necessitating an entire repetition of the work. Large crowds of tourists and citizens watched the movements of the actors throughout the afternoon.

The Alumni Association of the Redondo Union High School has arranged with the Art Stock Company to give a benefit performance of the comedy, "Turned Up," to raise proceeds for the association. The comedy will be given in the Art Theater April 27 and 28. Art Phillips, who is now preparing the scenery, has fitted up a miniature stage with complete scenic and lighting effects as a working model for the scenery to be produced.

IS DOING SPLENDID WORK.

Pomona's Park Superintendent Is Doing Effective Improvement in Ganesha and Other Points in City.

POMONA, April 22.—Park Superintendent Paige has been doing splendid work this spring at Lincoln, West Second street, City Hall and Ganesha parks in the way of planting hundreds of shrubs, bulbs, plants and trees and laying out walks and driveways.

At Ganesha Park, which is at this season a most attractive rendezvous for tourists and residents alike, over $700 has been expended in plant and tree work. A new lawn has also been made at the head of Huntington boulevard, in the Ganesha Park tract.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The new Pomona Choral Union, under direction of Prof. F. A. Bacon of Pomona college, will present the oratorio, "Creation," tomorrow night at the Fraternal Aid Theater. There will be a chorus of eighty and an orchestra of twenty-five pieces. The soloists will be Mrs. Bertha Winslow Vaughn, soprano; Harry S. Williams, baritone, and G. Haydn Jones, tenor, of Los Angeles.

Dr. Robert D. Williams of Pomona College addressed the Outlook Club at the Unitarian Church last night on the subject, "The Psychology of Ideals."

The Pomona-Upland-Ontario cars of the Pacific Electric Company now start from the corner of Third street and Garey avenue, where the new offices of the company are located, instead of at First street and Garey avenue, near the Salt Lake station. A more frequent time schedule between the towns is being contemplated.

Leaking Gasoline Causes the Car's Destruction.

Pacific Electric Car Strikes an Aged Pedestrian.

LONG BEACH, April 22.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schaffer returned home this morning from Fullerton and Mrs. Schaffer is at her home on Pine avenue, under the care of a physician, suffering from a nervous shock, the result of an experience in the canyon between Fullerton and Walnut.

They were touring in their auto and were making the trip between the two places when darkness came on and Mr. Schaffer alighted to light his lamps. As he reached the ground, the car for some reason started off with a roar and headed for an embankment twenty feet away. He leaped to one side and called to his wife to jump, which she did just as the car reached the edge of the bank. It fell to the bottom of a fifteen-foot gully and was wrecked, bursting the gasoline tank, allowing a leakage which ignited from the lamps and totally destroyed the car. Mr. and Mrs. Schaffer walked to Walnut and after arousing some of the citizens, secured a conveyance by which they were enabled to reach a car line, which brought them home. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Schaffer can account for the sudden starting of the machine.

STRUCK BY CAR.

E. T. Holland, aged 62, attempted to cross the Pacific Electric tracks on American avenue this afternoon on a bicycle and was struck by a northbound car and hurled to one side. The bicycle was wrecked, but Holland escaped with a bad cut on the back of his head and bruises. He had waited for a southbound car to pass and did not notice the approaching car on the other track.

SUBMARINE PLAN.

The three-stage air compressor for the Cage submarine boat buildings at Craig's arrived this afternoon. It bears patents as recent as last August and has a capacity of twenty cubic feet of air per minute to a pressure of 3000 pounds to the square inch.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Mrs. H. N. Lowe, whose husband is a member of the cruising party on the launch Flyer, off the south coast of Mexico, said today that the party when they left did not expect to be within reach of any postal facilities and that she is not worried over failure to hear from her husband. They are due home on Wednesday, but because of reported bad weather in the South, the launch may be a little behind scheduled time.

Dr. Joseph Richert was arrested this morning for an assault on Albany Herndon, a young solicitor. It is alleged that Richert was driving through an alley when Herndon, riding a bicycle from the other end, asked him to move to one side to allow him to pass. Richert became angry for some reason and struck the lad with the automobile crank, inflicting a severe scalp wound.

The Macomber rotary engine company this morning closed a purchase of nine lots in the industrial district on the inner harbor for $17,500 and will at once remove its factory here from Los Angeles and add $15,000 to its machinery equipment. The site purchased contains a building erected for a gas engine company but never occupied. The plant will open up with seventy-five employees. The engine is said to be especially adapted for airships.

Robert H. Martin today purchased of Mrs. Newell and Miss Clark, sisters of J. Ross Clark, the property at Fourth and Pine for $60,000. The site is 150x100 feet and will be improved at once with a brick business block.

Forest Meyers, a young southpaw who played last year with the Central League and the Ohio State League, is home for a rest and visit with relatives. He is suffering from a bad injury to his left elbow but expects to be back in the game before long.

George C. Simons, aged 75, died this morning at his home on West Broadway. The body will be taken to Los Angeles Wednesday for burial.

Mrs. Jennie Montgomery, an old-time resident of Long Beach, died this morning at her home on Linden avenue. She was 64 years of age.

FOUR ASPIRANTS FOR HONOR.

Quartette of Monrovia Queens Who Aspire to be Called the Queen of the May.

MONROVIA, April 2.—The preliminary May Queen voting contest closed last night and balloting for the charming victors will begin Monday and continue until May 6. A heavy vote was polled but as each voter made his nomination at inclination the candidates were many. The five leaders however, run close together and will probably do so in the finals, which promise to be interesting.

The four whom popular choice has selected as typifying Monrovia and especially Monrovia young womanhood, are Misses Loreta Shobe, Zella Vining, Florence Kelley and Helen Davis.

WILL IMPROVE STREET SYSTEM.

Manhattan Beach Is to Spend Many Thousand Dollars Putting Her Boulevards in Order.

MANHATTAN BEACH, April 22.—About $125,000 will be expended on street work here which will be commenced at once. Manhattan avenue, Highland, Fifteenth and First streets will be paved with asphalt, with a thirty-foot wide paving. This will give a paved boulevard from Redondo Beach to the edge of the city limits of Manhattan, as Manhattan avenue connects with Hermosa avenue in Hermosa Beach.

The system will be the same as that carried out in Ocean Park and Venice. All the streets between Second and Twenty-second avenues will eb paved and all the alleys between First and Sixteenth streets will be paved. Center street, which connects with the county boulevard between Rdondo Beach and Los Angeles will have a fifty-six-foot roadway and a twelve-foot sidewalk. Manhattan Beach is in the Seventh road district and the method used for paying for the work will be the district bond act. C. R. Sumner is the engineer in charge of the work.

CLAREMONT.

CLAREMONT, April 22.—The new officers for the ensuing year were elected at the last business meeting of the Rembrandt Club of Pomona College and Claremont. They are Mrs. J. S. Jewell, president; Mrs. H. T. Jenkins, vice-president; Mrs. L. T. Gillette, treasurer, and Miss Wright, secretary.

Prof. Argyll McLachlan, expert in plant breeding and hybridization, who has been working with cotton at Yuma, has transferred his experimental grounds to Claremont. This step was taken as a result of experiments in cotton raising conducted here by Prof. Charles F. Baker of the department of biology of Pomona College. In these private experiments the results were so satisfactory and the plants put forth such a surprising growth that the government officials decided to locate here.

Salt Lake Railroad Sued fo... Thousands of Dollars.

SAN BERNARDINO, April 22.—Miss Myrtle Kobb, James Dougherty, Ross Asbill and Fred Waugh, a quartette from Banning, were taken in tow by a member of the Sheriff's office last night on telephonic communication from Banning, the statement from there being that they had eloped. They got into town late at night in an automobile. Before midnight relatives from Banning were here after the quartette.

For a time the Banning officers kept the wires into this city hot, determined to head off the runaways before they could secure a license. James Dougherty, who lives in Bakersfield, was supposed to be trying to elope with the girl. At the preliminaries before a Banning justice today the three young men were charged with kidnapping and each held to appear for examination under heavy bonds. The trial will be held Wednesday.

Ramon Garcia commenced suit through Attorney F. B. Daley in the Superior Court here to recover $26,000 against the Salt Lake Railroad for injuries sustained at Colton May 27 last, when he was run over by a Salt Lake train. At the time of the accident Garcia was working on the track for the Santa Fe railroad. He says in his complaint that as a result of the accident his left leg was amputated.

Chris Norker, youth of San Diego, arrested first on his aunt's complaint charged with stealing a machine, and afterward rearrested on complaint of J. D. Gentry, a local garage man, for alleged obtaining money under false pretense, has been released and both complaints dismissed. The youth proved to Sheriff Ralphs that his aunt had given him a bill of sale of the auto, which he had sold to Gentry here for $1125, when financially broke on his honeymoon trip.

SIGNAL HONOR PAID POET.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SANTA BARBARA, April 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Santa Barbara this afternoon signally honored the memory of Robert Cameron Rogers when every court and business house in the city closed during the funeral hour. The services were held in Trinity Church, of which Mr. Rogers had been a vestryman. The edifice was far too small to hold the immense crowd that turned out to pay tribute to the departed editor and poet. Such a display of floral tributes was never seen before in this city. Local florists soon exhausted their supplies and were compelled to telegraph orders to Los Angeles and San Francisco for more. One of the beautiful designs was a rosary made of white carnations and violets and was especially apropos as Mr. Rogers was the author of the words to the famous song "My Rosary." The following were the pall bearers: Edwin Sawyer, Alfred Redington, Sherman Stow, Cyril Lamb, F. W. Leadbetter, Francis T. Underhill, H. L. Erwin, Jarret T. Richards, Nat Stewart, Clinton B. Hale, Dr. Harold Gisbotham and Judge R. B. Canfield.

The body tonight was shipped to Los Angeles, where it will be cremated. The family and a few friends accompanied the remains South. Mr. Rogers was a member of the State commission in charge of the Panama-Pacific Exposition and Homer King of San Francisco attended the funeral as a personal representative of Charles C. Moore president of the Exposition.

ANAHEIM MASONS TO BUILD.

New Temple to Cost Fifty Thousand Dollars Is to Be Erected—Consensus Pole Outlook.

ANAHEIM, April 22.—Plans for a splendid Masonic Temple, to cost from $40,000 to $50,000, which will be the home of the various Masonic bodies of this city have been maturing in the minds of local Masons for some time past. They began to take definite form at a meeting of the Anaheim Lodge, held recently, when a committee was appointed to formulate the plans for a building, and the report to their progress will be heard at the next meeting. A subscription is now being raised, which is to go toward the building fund.

In a general way the plans of the Masons contemplate a building three stories in height, and it is to be erected in a central location. The first floor will be used for business rooms, while all of the second and third will be fitted out in lodge rooms.

The Anaheim Lodge has already a substantial building fund on hand, and recently several thousand dollars was offered. This gives assurance that there will be no difficulty in raising the required funds to erect the new building. The Masonic lodge is one of the oldest in Southern California.

CONCRETE POLES.

The American Orr Concrete Pole Company, who have just installed their plant in Anaheim, have the industry in good working order now, and have started their work to the public. The demonstration was for the purpose of showing the stockholders the condition of the company's property and practical work, and of giving to those interested an idea of the possibilities of the industry. The plant produces the capacity of twenty-five poles per day, and this can be increased to any amount as fast as the demand may justify. The company is at present preparing to get out a large order of poles, to be used ... Anaheim.

The Orr pole is made in sections, each nine inches in length, which are

New Temple to Cost Fifty Thousand Dollars Is to Be Erected—Contract Is Let.

MARKHAM, April 22.—Plans for a handsome Masonic Temple, to cost from $40,000 to $50,000, which will be the home of the various Masonic bodies of this city have been maturing in the minds of local Masons for some time past. CONCRETE POLES.

Mr. Addison Orr Concrete Pole Company, who have just installed their pier at Anaheim, have the industry in a rushing order now, and have begun their work to the public. The company was for the purpose of giving the stockholders the benefit of the company's property in the manufacturing work, and of giving to the public an idea of the possibilities of the industry. The plant has a capacity of twenty-five poles per day, and this can be increased to any amount as fast as the demand may justify. The company is now preparing to get out a number of poles, to be used in the Anaheim district. The pole is made in sections, which are then joined together, and are made in various lengths, which are unified and reinforced by means of small steel bars passing through holes in the center of the blocks, left by means of the molds in which the blocks are made. This method of construction has a material advantage over the concrete poles now used in Europe, which are made in one piece, for the reason that it is possible to lengthen or shorten the poles at any time, as may be required. It is frequently the experience of electric companies that pole lines have to be raised or lowered, and this new method exhibits a great advantage over the old method of tearing out the poles and replacing them with others. The company calculates at present that it can make poles at a cost of about $3 each over the cost of wooden poles of similar length. The average life of the wooden pole is not over fifteen years, while the reinforced concrete pole is practically indestructible. A new concrete mixer is to be installed at once at the company's plant here, which will put the company in excellent shape to turn out their work.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Quarterly report made by Manager Blake of the Olive Milling Company to the board of directors of the company, gives a strong line on the splendid growth of the country. It shows that in the first three months of this year as compared with the first three months of last year, the increase was something over $16,000.

Tomato growers of the Anaheim and Fullerton districts are at present approaching what promises to be one of the best seasons in the history for the industry. It states that a record-breaking price will be paid for the coming crop of the scarlet relish. The Anaheim cannery is now getting ready to handle the crops of the coming season, and is making contracts with the growers on a basis of $8 per ton. Last season the cannery paid $7.50 per ton, and in previous year $6. At the figure named there is a handsome profit for the grower. The growers say that there is an excellent outlook for the coming season.

HONORED PIONEER PASSES.

Ventura Man Who Has Played an Important Part in the County's Development Is Dead.

VENTURA, April 22.—J. G. Ricker, a pioneer of this county, died at Los Angeles Saturday morning, aged 86 years. He came to the county in 1869 and has since resided in the same neighborhood in which he first took up his residence, near Santa Paula.

Mr. Ricker has engaged in farming pursuits all his life and during his long residence in the county has had an important part in its history. He leaves five married daughters residing in the county, eleven grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren. His daughters are Mrs. Doar Todd, Mrs. J. B. Alvord, Mrs. Jacob Nidever, Mrs. Dosier Lewis and Miss Etta Ricker. The funeral took place this afternoon.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The funeral of Francisco Menchaca, who died in Santa Barbara Saturday, took place from the old Mission church in this city this afternoon and was largely attended. He was a native of this city and a brother to Mrs. Adolf Camarillo. Mrs. Will Willoughby of Beverley and Mrs. Wyman of Boise, Idaho.

Arrangements are now complete for the May Day races which are to take place in this city at Seaside Park under the auspices of the Seaside Driving Association. There are already a large number of entries and a large number in addition are expected before the close of entries on the 23d. The motorcycle races and the athletic sports, of which there will be many, will be held in the morning of May 1, beginning at 10 o'clock.

A vigorous campaign for President Taft has been inaugurated in this county. At a meeting today of leading Republicans at the office of Orestes Orr it was determined to have a number of good speakers come immediately, among them being Mrs. Clara Shortridge Foltz, to talk to the women voters, besides some of the silver tongues among the men. It was also determined to start men out with petitions right away to sign up members for Taft clubs in every precinct in the State. So far nothing in this direction has been done by the Roosevelt people, and only one Roosevelt speaker has been here, F. J. Heney.

SANTA ANA NOTES.

SANTA ANA, April 22.—Today on her third day in the County Jail on a charge of selling liquor illegally, Mrs. Kate Measor got $1000 bail and went to her home in Delhi. She expects to fight the case.

The local La Follette Club has announced its officers to be J. F. Doyle, president; C. O. Fletcher, vice-president, and G. W. Decker, secretary-treasurer.

Marriage licenses: Roy C. Bradley, 22, of San Bernardino, and Frances E. Parks, 25, of Los Angeles; Frank Epps Ivy, 30, and Clara Connelly, 18, both of Los Angeles; Herbert F. Herbst, 21, and Mildred Eckhard, 18, both of Los Angeles; Archie M. Wilkinson, 32, and Linnie Walton, 31, both of Los Angeles.

LOS ALAMITOS.

LOS ALAMITOS, April 22.—New light on the shooting of Bernard Ruiz by William E. Wheeler on the street here yesterday was secured today when officers from Santa Ana found two boys, Oscar and Emerson Smith, aged 12 and 14, respectively, who stood but a few feet from the men when Wheeler fired the shot. They say that Ruiz followed Wheeler and Harry Gallagher seeking a fight, and shoved the two men, applied an epithet and doubled his fists before Wheeler shot. Ruiz, who may be fatally hurt, gave a dying statement in which he said he held his hands up and was then shot. The boys say he held his hands up afterward and cried: "No more."

BONDS CARRY.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, April 22.—The election held here today to decide whether or not this city shall have a reinforced concrete pier costing $70,000, to be obtained by issuing municipal bonds for that amount resulted in a victory for the bonds over the strong opposition of a minority of votes. The vote was: for the pier, 321; against the pier, 92; total vote cast 413, out of a registration of 492. A great deal of bitter feeling has been aroused during the past three months among the proponents and the opponents of the pier bonds and newspaper articles, dodgers and all manner of publicity methods have been used on both sides. The result shows the overwhelming desire of the people of the city for the pier.

San Diego.

DREDGER BIDS CONSIDERED.

San Diego Council Receives Figures for Machinery.

Taft Club Arranges for Great Mass Meeting.

County Will Be Covered by Republican Orators.

SAN DIEGO, April 22.—Proposals to furnish the city of San Diego with a suction dredger to be used in connection with the harbor improvements, when opened by the Council this morning, were found to be from three local firms, two at Los Angeles, one at Baltimore and one at Philadelphia. Sterne Brothers, a San Diego firm, submitted the lowest bid. All were referred to Harbor Engineer E. M. Capps for consideration, and a report back to the Council. Representatives of the bidders present were informed they could confer with Engineer E. M. Capps at any time.

Sterne Brothers' bid embodies two propositions. To furnish a dredger with a capacity to lift 135 yards or more per hour, which is the smallest limit called for in the engineer's specifications, they ask $32,957; for one of 180 yards capacity they ask $36,682.

The Standard Iron Works of San Diego offer to furnish a machine with gasoline power, according to specifications, for $41,885. Lawrence Jensen, a local boat builder, offered three propositions, a steel-constructed barge and dredger of steam power for $72,500, of distillate power for $72,000 and of gas power for $76,000.

The North American Dredging Company of Los Angeles offered to sell its dredger Wilmington, now at San Pedro, within 30 days after the signing of a contract for $30,000. The Pacific Wharf and Storage Company of Los Angeles offered its dredger Greater Los Angeles, built in 1910, for $45,000. The Russell-Green-Foel Company of Los Angeles offered to build a dredger according to the engineer's specifications for $52,800. The Norbohm Engineering Company of Philadelphia offered to build a dredger complete and deliver it for $80,000. The Ellicott Machine Company of Baltimore offered to deliver a wooden hull barge and dredger according to specifications, to be delivered in 120 days, for $47,000; or a steel-hulled barge for $48,500.

FINAL TOUCHES.

Final touches to the work of dredging the outer bar and the channel of San Diego's harbor are now being made by the Standard-American Dredging Company. A statement that the entire work would be completed and delivered to the government authorities by May 2 or 3 was made this morning by General Manager C. F. Guthridge of San Francisco. According to Manager Guthridge the dredging gives the harbor thirty-three feet of water at the entrance and thirty feet the entire distance of the channel.

The dredging at the bar is conical shape, the mean bottom being thirty-three feet; slanting upwards to a depth of thirty feet, until the walls of 600 feet width are reached. According to Manager Guthridge, this provides for the sliding silt, which has a space of 150 feet on each side in which to settle, and, according to his statement, will give the entrance to the channel 30 feet of water 600 feet wide for many years to come. This will admit the passage of three of the largest ships on the Coast at the same time. In the channel all of the middle ground has been removed to a depth of 30 feet, giving a 600-foot wide channel the entire distance.

The local Taft Club, regarded as the strongest political organization in San Diego county, has arranged for a big mass meeting Wednesday night, when Hon. Samuel Shortridge of San Francisco will address the gathering. Shortridge is regarded as one of the ablest speakers in the State. He was heard here in behalf of Taft when the President was a candidate four years ago.

The Taft Club will arrange for a series of meetings throughout the county. All of the principal towns will be visited by local speakers and several from Los Angeles and other cities. State Senator L. A. Wright, Dr. D. Gochenour, C. E. Sumner, Eugene Daney and other well-known leaders of the Republican party will contribute to the campaign tour. It is expected the tour will be made in automobiles, which was the effective means used in the last State campaign when the county supported the Republican ticket by an overwhelming majority. Local leaders predict a safe majority for the Taft ticket in the primary.

The Roosevelt supporters have the assurance that Gov. Johnson and Gifford Pinchot will visit San Diego at a date to be set. The local organization has mailed to voters copies of Roosevelt's speeches delivered in New York and Columbus. Roosevelt meetings at La Mesa and La Jolla have been arranged.

The next La Follette Club meeting is scheduled for Wednesday night. One rally has already been held. On the Democratic side the Clark Club is awaiting the announcement of the date of a visit by Theodore Bell, late candidate for Governor. The club has also asked William R. Hearst to address a meeting here. The Wilson men are arranging for a big meeting to be addressed by Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma and James D. Phelan of San Francisco. The date has not been settled. Tim Spellacy and Charles Wellborn of Los Angeles will also address meetings here.

TULARE.

TULARE, April 22.—Officer Smith led a raid late last night on a shack in the rear of the Kern and Inyo street corner and arresting Bob Pyle of this city and T. E. Casson of Hanford, confiscated sixty quart bottles of whisky. Both men were lodged in jail in default of bail and they are to be prosecuted, it is said, to the fullest extent of the law. Smith received a tip that the building was being used as a booze distribution station and in company with Constable Virden they secreted themselves about the building, an hour or two after dark. The officers claim to have secured conclusive evidence that Casson has for some times supplied the whisky and beer from Hanford and that Pyle has acted as the distribution agent for the place.

SAGE AND SULPHUR A SCALP TONIC AND COLOR RESTORER

For generations Sage and Sulphur have been used for hair and scalp troubles. Almost every one knows the value of such a combination for keeping the hair a good even color, for curing dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair, and for promoting the growth of the hair. Years ago the only way to get a Hair Tonic of this kind was to make it in the home, which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays, almost any up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready-to-use product, skillfully prepared in perfectly equipped laboratories.

An ideal preparation of this sort is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, in which Sage and Sulphur are combined with other valuable remedies for scalp troubles and thin, weak hair that is losing its color or coming out. After using this remedy for a few days, you will notice the color gradually coming back, your scalp will feel better, the dandruff will soon be gone and in less than a month's time there will be a wonderful difference in your hair.

Don't neglect your hair if it is full of dandruff, losing its color or coming out. Get a fifty-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur from your druggist, and see what a few days' treatment will do for you. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented. Special agent, Sun Drug Co.

TRAMPS SEIZE FREIGHT TRAIN.

Thirty Vagrants Compel Crew to Permit Them to Ride and Evade Police in Waiting.

TULARE, April 22.—About thirty of the stragglers, following the main gang of the I.W.W.'s on the way to San Diego, reached this city yesterday afternoon and without molestation from the officers paraded down Front street. No attempt was made to beg in this city, as the leaders were told that the officers would not stand for it.

According to advices received here late last evening, part of the band took possession of a Southern Pacific freight train at Pixley and compelled the train crew to let them ride. A message conveying the information that the gang were on the train in spite of orders to get off, was sent here by 'phone and telegraphic requests for advice sent to headquarters in Fresno. As a result an order for the crew to sidetrack the train at Bakersfield was sent from the officials.

It was stated later that the I.W.W. crowd evidently were aware of the plans made for their reception in the oil town, as they left the train before reaching the city limits and the band scattered before entering the town afoot.

Careful guard was kept over the comparatively few agitators who managed to get into town and no acts of violence or disorder were attempted. Tulare now breathes a sigh of relief as those who visited here last night stated that they were the last of the crowd on the road.

LIQUOR SUPPLY CONFISCATED.

Officers Raid Blind Pig at Visalia and Secure Large Amount of Contraband Fluid.

VISALIA, April 22.—While the proprietor was absent, the officers allege, on a trip for a supply of liquor, the police raided the home of J. E. Henry, at the corner of Bridge and Acequia streets, late last night, twenty-five cases of beer and twelve demijohns of whisky being confiscated and securely locked in the City Hall.

The officers claim that some of Henry's friends warned him of the arrest by telephone and when he returned from Hanford, a few hours after the arrests, no liquor was found in his possession.

He was placed under arrest immediately upon his arrival in Visalia and was released on bail. His hearing has been set for this week, it being the wish of the officials to have the case completed before the special saloon election, which has been called for the 7th.

This is the second time Henry has been in trouble on the same charge. Two charges were placed against him early in March and he pleaded guilty to both counts, being fined $100 on each allegation.

FOURTEEN ONLY.

Just fourteen appeared in the Good Templar Hall today for the widely-advertised "convention and mass meeting" of the Socialist party of Tulare county, in spite of the efforts of the leaders of the party organization to have this gathering a well-attended one.

Peter Schulp of Orosi was elected as chairman, and a platform committee was appointed. The committee agreed to disagree and reported two widely-variant platforms, although both contained the usual recommendations against "aggregations of capital," the immediate and absolute "abolishment of the Senate," together with a demand for "government ownership" and all the rest of the revolutionary innovations dear to the socialistic heart.

Thomas Stanage of Porterville, C. A. Sayre of Tulare and Bill Rice of Lemon Cove were selected as the candidates of the party for Supervisors, and Peter Schulp of Orosi, the chairman of the meeting, was selected as the candidate for State Assemblyman.

DINUBA.

DINUBA, April 22.—That the newly formed Raisin Exchange is to be a big factor in the markets of the coming fall is the belief of the organizers and members, in view of the report which has just been issued that that exchange now has a membership of 500, including practically every large grower in the Tulare, Kings and Fresno counties raisin districts, and that practically every grower of prominence is prepared to market or warehouse his crop through the organization. As this is the first specific information that has been given out, the growers were beginning to fear that this last effort, like all raisin exchange efforts of the past, was making a failure. Last week between sixty and seventy growers signed up, including the heaviest growers of the Alta district.

ORANGE SHIPMENTS.

REDLANDS, April 22.—The shipment of oranges from Redlands for the past week amounted to 269 cars and forty-eight boxes as compared with 165 cars and four boxes for the same week last year. The lemon shipment for the week amounted to 267 boxes, making the total for the season to date fourteen cars and thirty-six boxes. The f.o.b. price during the week has ranged from $1.75 to $2, not as high as is expected for this time of the year. Some of the packers are beginning to ice, but the Redlands fruit is firm and so far is holding up well.

ON BRINK OF PRECIPICE.

Chicago Boys Essay Mountain Scaling on Catalina Island and Almost Lose Their Lives.

AVALON, April 22.—For nearly two hours Harold Brown and William H. Ingraham of Chicago spent their lung power trying to attract the occupants of a launch at sea to come to their rescue. From a dizzy height of 200 feet to the beach the lads expected to fall. Immediately the predicament was noticed Capt. George Farnsworth and T. Mericich in the launch Mabel F. went to the rescue. Beyond several scratches and a severe scare the boys are no worse for their adventure.

According to Brown the boys left Avalon this morning for a walk to Seal Rocks. There being no regular trail an attempt was made to climb the rugged coast from Pebble Beach. When near the summit of the hill Brown lost his nerve and called to his companion to come to his rescue. It was not until he had reached Brown that Ingraham also felt his nerve give way. Both lads were hanging on to a small clump of bushes hanging from a rocky crevice when rescued by the occupants of the launch. Farnsworth found it necessary to use a long rope. "It was almost a miracle that the scrub did not pull out by the roots," said Mericich. "We had scarcely placed the boys upon a narrow ledge before a stone above gave way and crashed with a loud report on the beach."

As guests of A. L. Watson of Pasadena, owner of the auxiliary yacht Annita D., fifteen of the Pasadena High School boys crossed the channel Saturday and remained over night on the island in camp. The boys reported an excellent trip across, though several of them suffered from seasickness.

TO INVADE OCEAN'S DEPTHS.

Standard Oil Company Building Pier at El Segundo, Which Will Extend Four Thousand Feet.

EL SEGUNDO, April 22.—The new wharf being built by the Standard Oil Company now extends about 900 feet into the ocean, and work on the mammoth wharf is progressing rapidly. When completed the wharf will be 4000 feet long and 100 feet wide. It is of reinforced concrete. About 400 feet of the wharf was washed away by the high tides a few months ago, but since then the wharf has been extended 360 feet and raised five feet from this extension. Water pipes have been laid 800 feet.

By the middle of next week the huge water pipes will be laid the required 1000 feet along the wharf. Through these pipes 5,000,000 gallons of water will be lifted a day, and from the stills of the pumping plant the warm water will be returned to the ocean through a tunnel dug through the sandhills. The outlet of the tunnel will be 250 feet above the ocean, and the returning water will drop on a turbine wheel, which will generate power to lift the cold water back to the refinery.

Huge pipe lines are being laid from the refinery at El Segundo to wharf No. 1 at Redondo Beach to convey the refined product from the refinery for shipment until the wharf at this place is completed.

MISS GOULD IS HONORED.

Philanthropic Woman Greeted With Cheers by Sailors and Officers as She Passes U. S. Gunboats.

AVALON, April 22.—While crossing from San Pedro to the island Miss Helen Miller Gould on board the steamer Cabrillo acknowledged the salute of the U. S. Maryland, two submarine boats and nine torpedo boat destroyers. As the Cabrillo passed down the breakwater and between the naval representation passengers were much impressed with the respect shown to the benefactress. Standing upon the decks of their crafts the men and officers showed their regard for Miss Gould.

Immediately the party reached Avalon Miss Gould and the women of the party proceeded to view the marine gardens and other points of interest around the island. So enthused was Miss Gould while she viewed the marine specimens from the glass-bottomed boat that she repeatedly made exclamations to her friends. "There goes a beautiful gold fish. My, but nature has blessed the Pacific Coast with many rich and wonderful things!" The different kinds of kelp and mosses Miss Gould described with radiant smiles.

Homely, Yet Admired and Envied; Her Secret

The convention crowd in the lobby made a path for her, cast admiring side glances, then with longing eyes followed her to the elevator. It was at the Ponchartrain in Detroit. The incident was recalled when I chanced to sit across the table from the woman. What was it about her that caused al lthat commotion? She wasn't handsome; she was lacking in form and feature. Yet she did seem marvelously fascinating. Her complexion must be the secret. Really, I've never beheld its equal. Venturing to pick up acquaintanceship, I learned the reason.

"I know I'm not built for beauty," she confided, "but I've tried to make the most of my one charm. I've learned that men abhor make-ups and artificiality. I bar cosmetics; there are just two things I ever use and they promote natural lovelliness and youthful appearance.

"When my complexion begins to age, I get an ounce of marcolized wax at the drug store, apply at night like cold cream and wash it off in the morning. This gradually flakes off the outer skin, then I have a brand new complexion, magnetically beautiful, as you see.

"Wrinkles never bother me. At their inception I bathe my face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint of witch hasel. It works like magic."—Mona Morrow in Town Tattler.

FINANCIAL NEWS SUMMARY.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Americans in London quiet, unchanged to ¼ lower. Senate sub-committee investigating Titanic disaster continues at Washington today. Sixty-four identifiable bodies reported found.

Engineers on thirty-two eastern railroads expected to strike today if demands are not met.

Supreme Court meets.

Reported that anthracite miners and operators have practically agreed on basis of strike settlement which provides for 10 per cent wage increase, eight-hour day and partial recognition of union.

The threatened strike on the part of the railroad engineers was the chief influence during today's trading, the new disaster having almost entirely spent its force. The action of the agricultural commodity market was such as to make crop advices less of a factor today than heretofore, but still no attempt was made to minimize the importance of the crop aspect as an indication of what may be expected in the future. More or less talk is heard of the condition in Mexico and foreign advices denote that the Italian Turkish affair is still considered by international bankers as an element of distrust and uncertainty. There is no doubt that should an engineers' strike be called trade and industry as well as the stock market will suffer, so that the tendency of late has been to trend judiciously on the buying side of the market. This policy will perhaps be pursued until the demands of labor are less insistent.

There were indications of support during the decline this forenoon in Steel around 70 and in several other prominent issues and in the afternoon, the market strength in Reading was taken as a suggestion that the strike of the anthracite miners would be settled shortly. The fact that the stock market has acted relatively so well in the face of conditions which ordinarily would have precipitated sharp declines has been the subject of favorable comment and from close observation it appears that the line of least resistance is on the upward side, but of course, withdrawals of aggressive support would almost entirely change the aspect.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

A general shake-up in prices marked the beginning of the week in produce. Eggs dropped another half cent, and there was a general reduction in potatoes from 25 to 50 cents a hundredweight.

Sweet potatoes advanced 50 cents and onions declined 50 cents. Celery, which is on the season end, advanced to $4.00 and $4.50 a crate. Peas, owing to storms and other retarding weather conditions, advanced to 7 and 10 cents a pound.

The decided drop in potatoes is in keeping with a gradual increase in receipts, in proportion to the demand and favorable crop reports.

Owing to increased receipts of new strawberry rhubarb, both that variety and the winter crimson declined 25 cents a crate.

Strawberries advanced 2 cents a basket on the top price, the new quotations being 5 and 10 cents. The change was due to the arrival of a better quality of berries, along with an inferior quality that cannot be marketed for less than 5 cents. The market for lettuce was weak, owing to a large holdover from last week, with the usual receipts for Monday. Another reason for the weakness is that the quality just now is not first grade, but an improvement is anticipated by dealers, at which time they say the market will become more steady.

Asparagus was steady. It was believed there would be a break in prices yesterday, but on account of an increase in the demand a big supply was worked off at quotations.

Cucumbers were steady, there being a good demand at $2 for the best, grading down to 50 cents for the inferior qualities.

Receipts were normal, there being 827 cases of eggs, 23,904 pounds of butter, 2,218 pounds of cheese, 4797 sacks of potatoes, 1440 sacks of onions, and 240 sacks of beans.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE.

Union Oil Stock Returns to Par. Mexican Issues Advance—Bank Securities Are Active.

Union Oil returned to par yesterday after remaining below several days on account of ex-dividend. Mexican Petroleum common advanced a fraction, closing $64.87½, there being little of the stock offered, sales amounting to only thirty shares.

Mexican Petroleum preferred was the most active stock, it advancing to $89.75 in the afternoon from $89 in the morning. The stock sold in small lots in the morning up to $89.37½ and in the afternoon, figures would indicate, was bought back in one large sale at $89.75.

Five shares of German American Savings sold at $340 and ten shares at $395. This was the first time in several days that the bank stocks were active.

The remainder of the day's business was confined to small sales in oil stocks. Jumbo Extension and Consolidated Mines were the active mining stocks.

Los Angeles Times

INFORMATION

For Newcomers, Inquirers, Subscribers and Advertisers, Agents and the General Public.

SCOPE AND AIMS:

THE TIMES PUBLISHES REGULARLY more pages of news and other reading matter and a larger volume of advertising than any other paper extant.

DISTINGUISHING FEATURES: Independent, uncompromised, unshackled, unpurchasable, unafraid and unincumbered. THE LOS ANGELES TIMES is devoted to the great principles of Liberty under Law, Equal Rights in all fields of lawful human endeavor, Industrial Freedom, and to the upbuilding of Los Angeles, the State of California and the great Southwest.

AS TO LABOR: The Times is the undeviating friend of all honest toilers—of all unshackled law-abiding workers everywhere; and while never denying the right of workmen to organize lawfully, it is the unyielding foe of lawless, proscriptive, monopolistic and exclusive labor organizations, because they are the selfish enemies of their own class and of the common industrial weal. Our position is unmistakable and will be maintained. The long record of The Times as a just, liberal, reliable paymaster is unassailable. During the period between August 4, 1890, and September 30, 1911, there was paid to our loyal and well-satisfied non-union workmen, in salaries and wages, the tell-ing aggregate cash sum of $4,266,819.17—mainly to skilled labor.

SWORN CIRCULATION: Daily net average—seven days, Sunday included—for 1898, 23,381; for 1897, 19,263; for 1898, 24,154; for 1899, 25,731; for 1900, 28,723; for 1901, 28,463; for 1902, 26,805; for 1903, 26,346; for 1904, 27,782; for 1905, 42,180; for 1906, 50,301 copies; for 1907, 62,211 copies; for 1908, 83,106 copies; for 1909, 84,804 copies. Sunday average for 1910, 85,152 copies. Daily and Sunday average for 1910, 97,358 copies.

AGENTS: Eastern Agents, Williams, Lawrence & Cresmer Co., Brunswick Building, 5th Ave. and 26th St., New York; 324-25 Harris Trust Bldg., 111 West Monroe St., Chicago. Washington Bureau, 46 Post Building (THE TIMES on file.) San Francisco Office, Room 1396 Call Building; R. J. Bidwell, Representative.

THE ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY: Published on Saturdays; 40 pages; distinct and complete in itself. "The Unique Magazine of the Semi-or Southwest." Mailed to subscribers separately from the Daily Times for $2.40 per year, postpaid. Single copies 10 cents, postpaid.

TWO SPECIAL OFFERS: From and after this date, an extra copy of the Los Angeles Times Illustrated Weekly will be MAILED FREE FOR SIX MONTHS upon the order of any person, whether an old subscriber or a new, who contracts to subscribe for the Daily and Sunday Times for one year and pay the price, $9.00, in quarterly installments of $2.25 each, in advance. Or, with a full year's subscription to the Daily and Sunday papers, and $5.00 cash in advance, an extra copy of the Illustrated Weekly will be sent free for 12 months. This is an exceptional opportunity, good for a limited period, to serve a distant friend and at the same time do good missionary work for Los Angeles.

TELEPHONES: Counting-room, Subscription Department, Editorial Rooms, City Editor and Local News Rooms—Sunset, Main 8200; Home 10851.

TERMS: Daily and Sunday, 75 cents a month, or $9.00 a year. Daily without Sunday, $7.50 a year. Sunday alone, $2.50; without the Illustrated Weekly, $2.00. When the Sunday issue is mailed, the Illustrated Weekly is mailed separately, a day in advance.

POSTAGE: On the regular week-day issue (1 or 2 parts) 2 cents; on the Sunday issue (3 parts) 3 cents.

Ends Well.

GRANDFATHER TO BABY'S RESCUE.

COMES FAR TO SEE LITTLE ALMA CARED FOR.

Father of Child-Parents Who Deserted Infant in Railway Station Here from Arkansas to Get Them Out of Trouble—Tot Will Probably Be Given Back.

Traveling 2300 miles to care for his son and daughter-in-law, W. T. Neal, a bronzed ranchman of Prairie Oak, Ark., reached this city yesterday, and at once set in motion machinery to release tiny Alma, now a ward of the Juvenile Court.

"When the news came that Ralph was in trouble, I just packed my grip, said good-by to my wife and came away," said Neal, who is the son of a soldier in the Civil War. "I could have sent money to Ralph, but I didn't like the appearances of things, and knew that the best thing to do was to come myself. Ralph is only a 19-year-old boy, and he has a lot to learn yet. He was without money and in a strange city. He doesn't know how he and his wife came to leave the little baby in the railroad station, except that both were without money and thought to put the little one in somebody's care. Both watched until they saw the child cared for and the minute it was done they were awfully sorry."

The father saw his boy the first thing when he arrived in the city. Ralph is now earning $15 a week in a garage. The girl wife is with Mr. and Mrs. George W. Lyons. The whole-souled constable of Justice Summerfield's court has been a foster father to the Neals, and not only took the little wife to his own home, but got work for the husband, and made a strong plea to the court to dismiss the charge of child abandonment.

When Neal, Sr., reached the Courthouse, Lyons introduced him to various officials and told him how to make application for the custody of the child. As a ward of the Juvenile Court, Alma must be disposed of by Judge Wilbur, and now that the grandfather, a man of means, has come forward to help, it is believed that the court will restore the baby to her mother's arms.

The news of the desertion of the baby and the arrest of the Neals created quite a stir in Prairie Oak, where the young people are well known. Many messages were sent to the young couple, and a warm welcome awaits them in the little Arkansas town if they decide to return. But the elder Neal says he will leave it to his son to decide whether to return or to make a home in Los Angeles. The father stands ready to provide a home and get the two settled before going back East.

BEGGING THE QUESTION.

Counsel for Unionite Cited for Contempt Takes Another Week to Digest Immaterial Change.

Continued delay seems to be the chief end of the defense in the case of H. W. Pohlman, the recalcitrant witness before the Federal grand jury, against whom a presentment was made to the United States District Court for an order to show cause why he should not be adjudged guilty of contempt of court in refusing to answer certain questions put to him by the inquisitorial body, relating to the transportation of dynamite.

Pohlman is the business agent of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers. When the petition was presented to the court some weeks ago, it was further declared that he was business agent and financial secretary of Local No. 71. It was afterward discovered that the number was a mistake; that it should have been No. 86. An amended petition was then filed by Special Counsel Lawler, and an immediate hearing urged in behalf of the government.

It was declared on behalf of Pohlman that his counsel had had no chance to see the amended petition, although it was stated the only change was in the number of the local union in Seattle, with which Pohlman is identified. In deference to the attorneys it was suggested that the matter go over another week. The further delay was at the request of Pohlman's counsel.

In the reply of Pohlman to the petition for an order to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt he denies categorically the most of the charges formulated, but does not deny the allegation that when asked in relation to receiving mail from Seattle he refused to testify.

It's Still April.

JUNKMAN'S FIT MUSSES UP TRAFFIC ALL OVER.

SOLOMON ISAHEL, a junk dealer of No. 4006 Mission road, enjoyed the novel sensation on Sunday of having a special street car set aside for him and having the running schedule of all the other cars on the line disarranged to make way for it. Street car officials declare that never before in the history of the system has a junk dealer been so favored. Schedules have been disarranged before, and special cars have been run for single individuals, but at great expense to the individual. But it didn't cost Isahel a cent.

The car, No. 741, was nearing the First street bridge, when Isahel was seized with a fit. The passengers were thrown into a panic and everybody excepting the motorman and conductor jumped off.

"The man's dying," yelled the conductor. "Switch back to the uptown track and beat it for First and Spring."

While the motorman was doing as ordered, the conductor telephoned to the nearest dispatcher that he had a dying man on his car and was getting ready to break records getting to First and Spring. The dispatcher notified the police and the patrol, fully manned, was raced to the corner.

The motorman banged his gong and started through the heart of the city as fast as the motors could propel the car. When other cars got in his way he pounded on his bell until they ran away from him or took to a switch and gave him the right of way. It was in a cloud of dust that No. 741 tore up the hill to Main and whirled up First to Spring. There the patrol crew awaited the man reported to have been run over and badly mangled. The stretcher was laid out on the sidewalk, and ready hands were waiting to tenderly pick up the supposed dying man and place him in the patrol.

But there was no dead or dying or mangled man. There was only "Sol" as the Receiving Hospital attaches have grown to know him. He had recovered when the car came to a sudden stop and, unassisted he stepped from the car and walked to the wagon.

When he walked into the hospital there was a chorus:

"For goodness sakes, Solomon, are you back here again?"

Livestock Look-in.

BEEF PRICES MAY GO UP MONTH, THEN COME DOWN.

FOR the next thirty days, according to the best local advices, all livestock will be difficult to obtain, and prices will probably advance. The brunt, to a great degree, will be borne by the packers, they state.

These conditions of the market are caused by the closing out of feed cattle and the lapse of time that must ensue before the grass-fed cattle are ready for market.

With respect to the probable advance in prices, the indications are, say the packers themselves, that all or most of the advance will be borne by them.

One packer said yesterday that if it is found necessary for others than themselves to bear part of the advance, the prices will be made as low as possible to the consumer, and at the same time the producer will get a fair price for his commodity.

Feed is in good condition throughout the grazing country, and this in itself forecasts that the season, while late, will be normal when the livestock has been sufficiently fattened.

In a normal year for grass cattle the season would open from April 15 to May 15. But this year, owing to the tardy rains, the season has been thrown ahead from forty to sixty days.

The packers are especially gratified, however, with reports from grazing centers to the effect that at no time in years has any one season looked more promising. It is believed the grass-fed stock this year will be much superior to the average.

Prices are destined to drop away below present quotations after the grass-fed cattle have made their appearance sufficiently felt in the market, the dealers declare.

The same condition does not obtain in hogs. The market at present is steady, although the packers say they seem to be getting a plentiful supply. There is a difference of opinion among the packers as to whether the price of hogs will advance. It was conceded that the price is now steady to the point of a probable advance, but that such an advance will not be made unless something unexpected disturbs the market. As to any prospect of a reduction in the price of hogs in the near or distant future, that is considered entirely out of the question, say packers and others interested in the industry.

This practical assurance that hogs will remain up and steady indefinitely has caused the alfalfa growers to increase their acreage and their stock of hogs. The high prices that have prevailed have caused all who were in condition to raise them successfully to invest in hogs and increase the extent of their alfalfa fields, or other facilities for feeding them.

THE GREEN-EYED MONSTER.

Jealousy Over Favors of Fifteen-year-old Girl Drives Mexican to Kill His Rival in Drunken Rage.

Because of an old grudge over his rival's success in love, Niefro Romero shot and killed Pedro Flores early yesterday morning near Lankershim. A few hours later he and an alleged accomplice, Joe Gonzales, were both in custody. According to Under Sheriff Brain, Romero made a complete confession at the County Jail, declaring that Flores's successful love affair with Refucia Gonzales, led him to shoot the man while both were intoxicated.

The Gonzales girl was sent to the Detention Home. According to the Sheriff, members of the family have been in trouble several times in the last few months. Joe Gonzales will be held as an accessory to the alleged murder.

The shooting took place shortly after midnight. According to the confession of Romero, he and Gonzales were drinking all the evening. Later they decided to go over t Flores's little house. The three drank for a time and Romero and Flores renewed their old-standing quarrel over the favors of 15-year-old Refucia. Romero, the officers say, declared that Flores insulted and reviled him until, in a rage, he ran home, got a shotgun and returned to the tent. Calling out Flores, according to the confession, Romero shot and killed him.

Romero fled but Gonzales went home. At daybreak some one notified the local constable and the Sheriff's office. Deputies Sepulveda and Gates were sent to investigate.

They arrested Gonzales and turned his sister over to the probation officers. They also got track of Romero and later on were able to trace him to his hiding place.

The inquest will be held this afternoon at Lankershim and later it is probable that murder complaints will be filed against the two Mexicans.

JAIL FOR OARSMAN.

In the United States District Court yesterday, one, Kuniumino, a Japanese, indicted for complicity in smuggling, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to thirty days in the County Jail. The prisoner had already been confined for about six months. Kuniumino was hired by Charley Wing and Ma Tin Loy, Chinese, now at liberty under $7000 bond each, to row a boat containing Chinese, from the Comrade to the shore. The whole outfit was captured, and the six Chinese ordered deported.

LAND DISPUTED.

A tract of 320 acres, lying west of Imperial, is involved in an overlapping claim proposition heard by Register Buren in the local Land Office yesterday. The parties in the case are Florence J. and Willis E. Wilsie, and Edward D. Starr.

THEY'RE BACK AGAIN.

Unionite Ex-Mayor of San Francisco and His Henchman, Tveitmoe, Here in Interests of the I.W.W.

P. H. McCarthy, former Mayor of San Francisco and O. A. Tveitmoe, are once more in this city for the alleged purpose of interesting the members of the labor unions in the proposed I.W.W. invasion. Most of the local unionite workmen are said to be lukewarm to the cause and decline to lend their aid. At a meeting held Sunday night at Labor Temple a committee reported adversely to aiding the San Diego malcontents and advised that the members keep "hands off."

But, according to Tveitmoe, the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association of this city is responsible for the determined front presented towards the lawless I.W.W.'s in San Diego, and the organization has aided with advice and otherwise the cause of the business men in the Bay City.

While the I.W.W. leaders threaten to invade Los Angeles, the rank and file fear the drastic measures taken for the safeguarding of the city should they come here and are disheartened because of the lack of support from the labor unions.

MT. WILSON TRAIL OPEN.

Supervisors Serve Ten Days' Notice on Hotel Company to Remove Fence Within Ten Days.

By a unanimous vote of the Board of Supervisors, Supervisor Manning was directed to post forthwith on the fence that is maintained across the Mr. Wilson trail, near the summit, by the Mt. Wilson Hotel Company, a notice to remove it within ten days or be fined $10 a day for each day it is kept there.

The trail has been open from twenty to forty years, and it was stated by one of the complainants yesterday that since January 1 this year the hotel company has collected upward of $1500 from pleasure seekers on the mountain. There were a number of complaints, all protesting against what they declared an outrage against the public, and demanding that, as the trail had been open until it was a public way across the mountains, the Supervisors compel the removal of the obstruction.

The W. R. Staats Company, owner of the property, submitted a long statement in an effort to convince the Supervisors that the hotel company has a right to close the trail, but the board took summary action and will see that the trail is open and free to the public. The board recently forced the removal of obstructions from Millard's Canyon, under the same law, and any effort of persons having claims to mountain property to hold up the public and bleed it for the pleasure it gets out of the magnificent scenery surrounding the city will be officially frowned upon henceforth. The hotel company has the right to maintain a private fence along both sides of the trail if it wishes, but it must be kept open, the Supervisors maintain.

FERRIS GOES FREE.

On motion of Assistant United States District Attorney Robinson, in the United States District Court, yesterday, the indictment against Dick Ferris, charging him with violation of the neutrality laws, was ordered dismissed by Judge Wellborn. This is taken to mean that when the case against the other defendants is called, Gen. C. Rhys Pryce, Dick Ferris, and perhaps, Gen. Mosby, will be government witnesses against Ricardo Flores and Enrique Magon, Liberado Rivera and Anselmo Figueroa.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

After May 1 The Times Business Office, Advertising and Subscription Departments and Information Bureau will be located at 617-619 South Spring street, one block south of the present quarters.

The removal will be accomplished without interruption to business and, we trust, without inconvenience to our patrons.

District Court of Appeal Opens April Term, Hears Some Causes and Postpones Others—May Practice.

The calendar of the April term of the District Court of Appeals was called yesterday. In the wireless case against Edwin T. Earl, appealed by Dist.-Atty. Fredericks from the judgment of Superior Judge Bordwell, the hearing went over until tomorrow on the request of attorneys on both sides.

The case against S. H. Oversacker, found guilty of manslaughter, an appeal from the Superior Court of Orange county, was postponed until the July term of court. The case against Joe Chutuk, convicted of manslaughter in the Los Angeles Superior Court, was submitted. In the matter of the community property of L. C. and Aurora Carlin, involving the question affecting the right of a wife to the common property of the couple, appeal briefs were submitted.

The following attorneys were admitted to practice before the court: J. H. Heinen, William F. Orahood, R. T. Lightfoot, Herbert Morris, Frank L. Rabe, Emmet W. Miller, Frank A. Crowe, Robert E. Heinselman, George S. Aldrich, Arthur J. Abbott and William Miles, Jr., Los Angeles; James Quirk, Cora L. Cudworth, Charles C. Bow, C. T. Byrd and John P. Burt, San Diego; William B. Chaplin, Bakersfield; Frank G. Carnahan, Coronado Beach; Blake Franklin, Glendale; Charles G. Briggs, Lemon Grove; Galen Nichols, Imperial; Robert S. Parker, Pasadena.

DANCE OF AL MALAIKAH.

Nobles of Local Temple to Hold Ball at Shrine Auditorium to Get Funds for the Big Week.

Thursday's will be a big night for Al Malaikah Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, and for the matter of that, for all Shrinedom in Southern California. On that evening will be given the great Shriners' ball at Shrine Auditorium to secure funds to assist in the magnificent entertainment planned for the Imperial Council and nobles from all North America in the week of May 6.

The glory of the evening will be Al Malaikah's new Arab Legion of Honor. The patrol, gorgeous in new uniforms of three different and successive kinds, will there drill in public for the first time. Chief credit for the splendid training and brilliant appearance of this crack patrol is due to its captain, A. J. Copp, Jr., who has worked indefatigably for its creation, equipment and drilling. The other officers who will participate are First Lieutenant Frank L. Miller, Second Lieutenant Sterling S. Boothe, Corporals T. M. Bridges, A. C. Brodie, W. E. Bush, C. W. Dryer, Bernal Dyas, M. R. Gray, Ebenezer Ingram, J. H. Jeffries, E. A. Jesburg and L. R. Mellus and Bearers Harry M. Jack and J. S. King. At the head of the executive department for Al Malaikah are President L. J. Selby and Secretary Bernal Dyas.

An additional and vivid coloring will be given the festive occasion by the San Diego patrol, which has just acquired a new set of uniforms, also. Then, also, the old Al Malaikah patrol will be on hand in full force. Al Malaikah's band of forty-five pieces will escort the drill teams on the floor.

All signs point to a movement of Shriners in this direction exceeding the most liberal estimates. The following dates are given for the influx of the Coast temples:

Nile Temple, Seattle, solid special will leave Portland, Or., 11 o'clock p.m., May 2; Al Azhar, Calgary, Alberta, and Al Kader, Spokane, combined special, 11:30 p.m.; Al Kader special, 11:45 p.m. These trains will run as three sections and reach Los Angeles as follows: No. 1, Saturday evening, May 5; No. 2, Sunday, 6:30 a.m.; No. 3 Sunday, 8 a.m. The Oakland Shrine will leave in a special train of eleven coaches Sunday morning, May 5, reaching Los Angeles 11 p.m. Sunday. San Francisco has chartered the steamer Harvard and will arrive at San Pedro Sunday, May 5, 10 a.m., Los Angeles, 12 noon.

Violent Cathartics Injure Health

Side step purgatives—their harsh action is liable to injure the bowels. Why not use CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS a purely vegetable remedy that has been successfully used by millions for half a century. Acts gently but surely and not only quickly relieves but forever ends the misery of constipation. Use them for dizziness, indigestion, sick headache and all liver troubles.
